Caught Off Guard

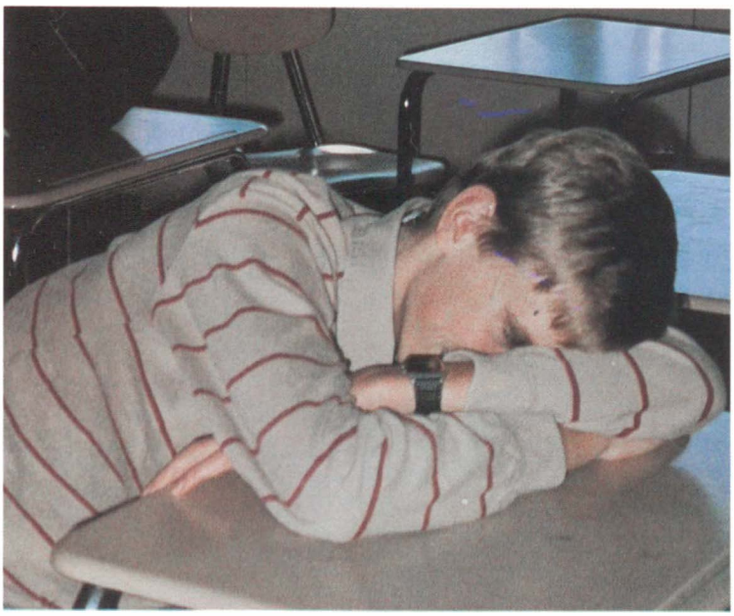

"Oh, no, it can't be time." (Marcelle DerGarabedian)

"But I'm not ready for this yet." (Matt Babcock)

"That is so funny! Ha, ha, ha . . ." (Jim McAllister)

Cynthia and Albert are bright-eyed. (Cynthia Ahlgren)

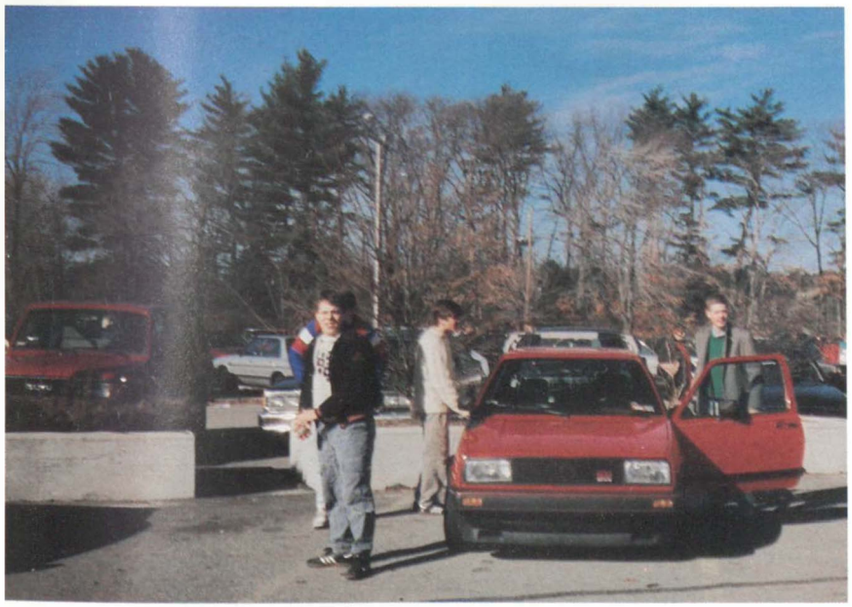

"It's a beautiful day in the neighborhood . . ." (Holly Williams)

MORNINGS — START OF THE RACE

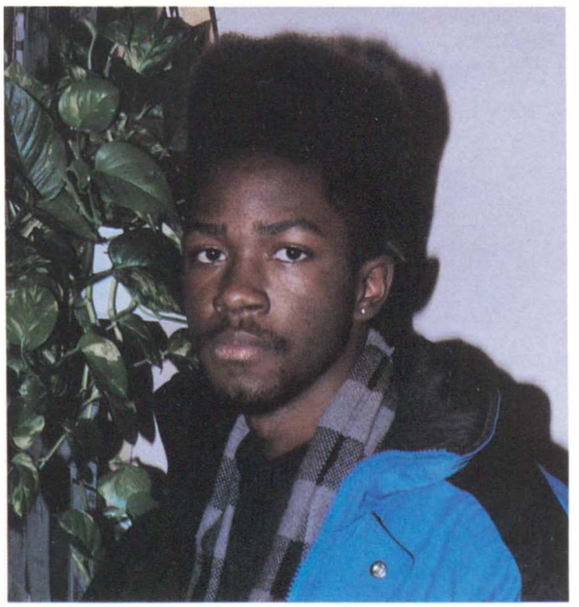

If people don't like mornings, then why do they say, "Good Morning"? Hmmm! If Monday mornings are supposed to be the worst, then how can every morning feel the same? Hmmm! These questions puzzled us, so we decided to explore the realm of the A.M.

After an extensive school survey, we came up with our "standard" morning:

6:30	Five more minutes, Ma!
6:37	All right, I'm up.
6:45	I wish you would hurry up and get out of the bathroom.
6:50	Who took my black jeans?
6:59	No, Ma, I don't want oatmeal.
7:09	I gotta go — I'm late.
7:17	Ma, I missed the bus. I need a ride.
7:35	I can't believe she made me walk.
7:56	What do you mean my tardiness is unexcused!

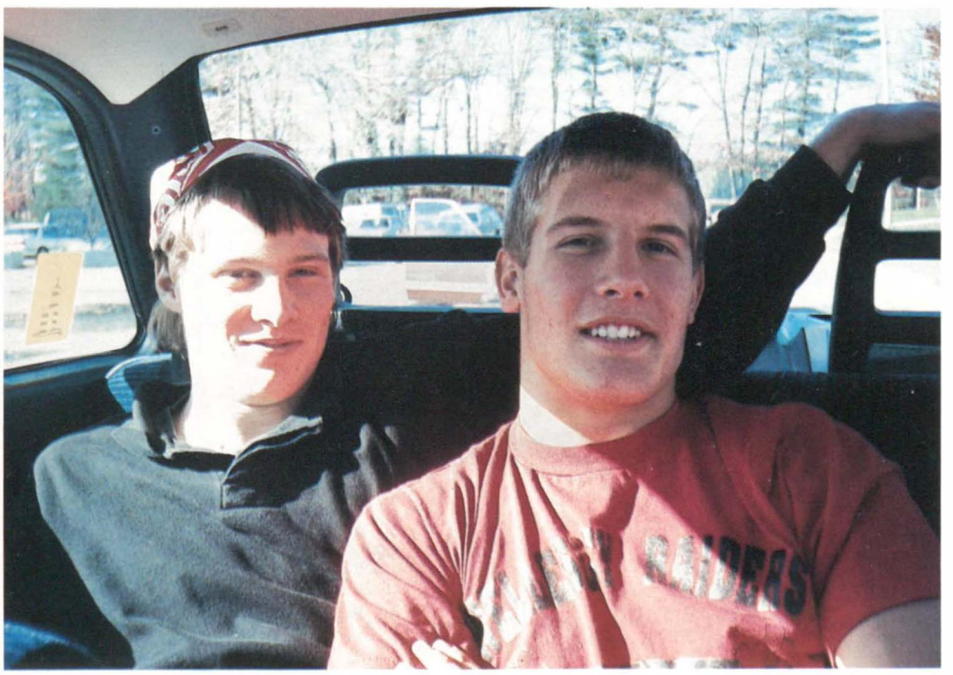

"Did anyone think to bring books?"

"It all started when the hairspray exploded." (Mike Pinckney)

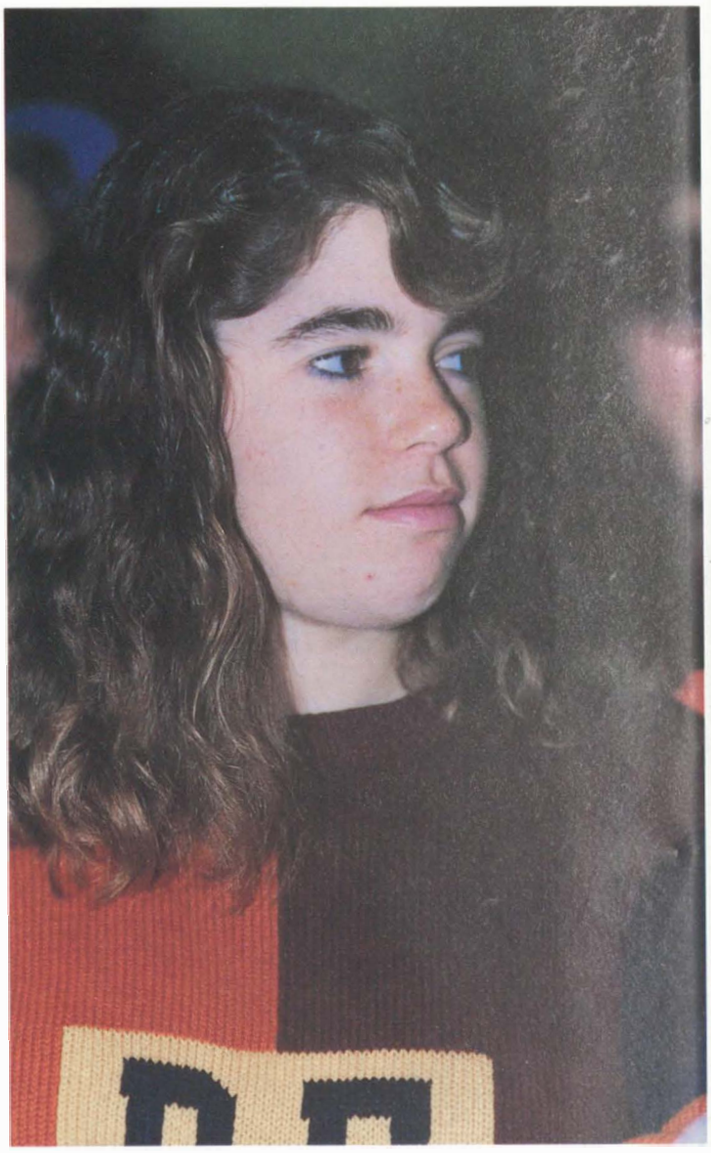

"Please, no more autographs." (Jon Register)

"Just check out the sticker, Sidney." (Frank Parker, Paul Celi)

"Coming out from under wraps . . ." (Rousharaei Rousharak)

"I doubt it." (Julie Wilker)

The Preppie with the Corporate Image (Bob Walsh, Susan Verde)

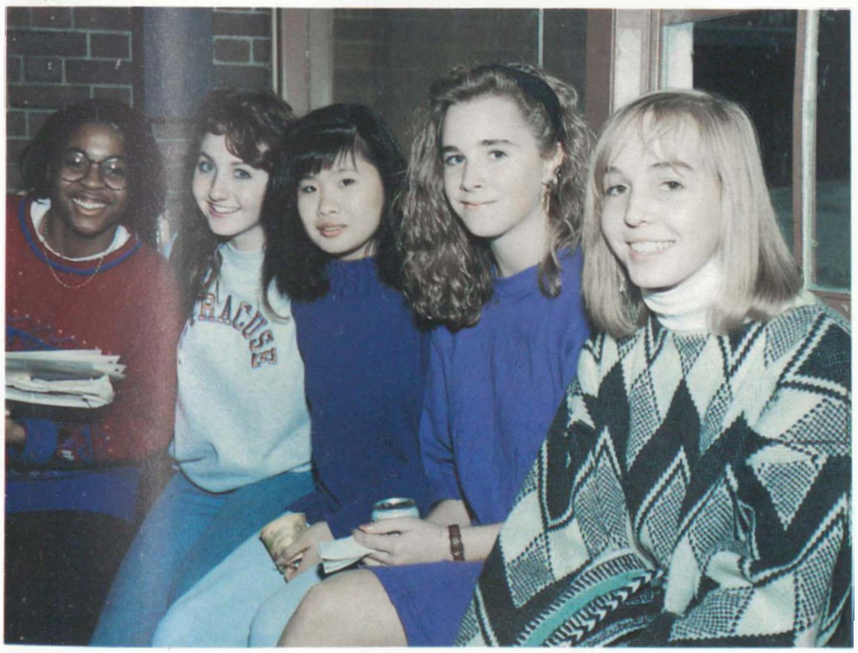

Demetri "Board" (Demetri Papageorgiou)

"Yes, I got an A!" (Missy Medoff, Dora Tavel)

THE FACE sPACE

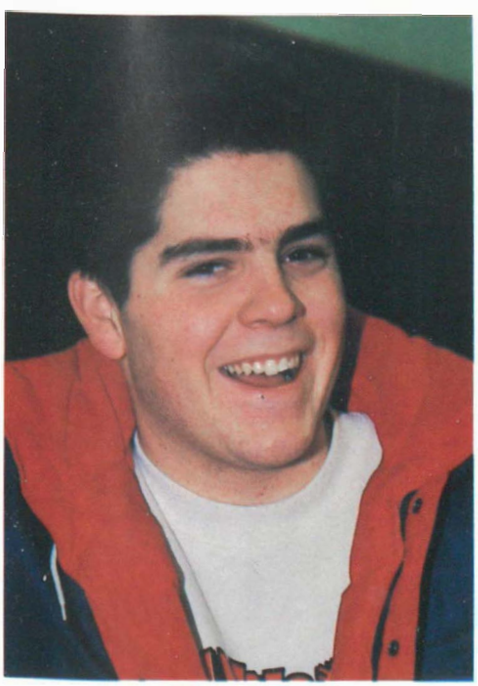

A sea of humanity sifts into familiar individuals — friends — wearing fleeting expressions that paint the mood of the moment. For the most part, the mood is upbeat, so the canvas is one which depicts enthusiasm, optimism, and expectation.

"After lunch we'll work on the yearbook." (Cassandra Johnson, Marisa Kramer, Ping Kang, Amy Deloughrey, Susan Stickler)

Showing Spirit (Amy Patterson)

"Oh, that's a great line!" (Dave Calder)

"John, may I borrow that sweater Friday night?" (John Faubert, Chris Doorley, Agatha Donovan)

Scarlet O'Seniors (Betsy Bogard, Sheelah Riley, Pam Kunz, Vanessa Barges, Debbie Chafin)

Don't give them an inch! (Jessica Mayer, Buffy Nebeker, Amy Neher, Vicki Crawshaw)

Musical Motivation

Rockettes, eat your hearts out!

Who could lose with a gallery like this?

"RACY" RED

Spirit: liveliness; enthusiasm; courage

Webster defined it and Wellesley embodied it. Whether the season was just beginning or winding down, fans turned out in huge contingents to spur Wellesley on to success. Spirit and success intertwined and regenerated each other.

Hard work and a winning attitude carried many of our teams into the finals of the Bay State League. Team success prompted the graphic arts students to design commemorative shirts and the community beyond the campus joined in feeling a sense of pride and a cause for celebration.

We have one! (Won?)

No, the W is not for Walpole. (Hope Bishop, Amy Spooner)

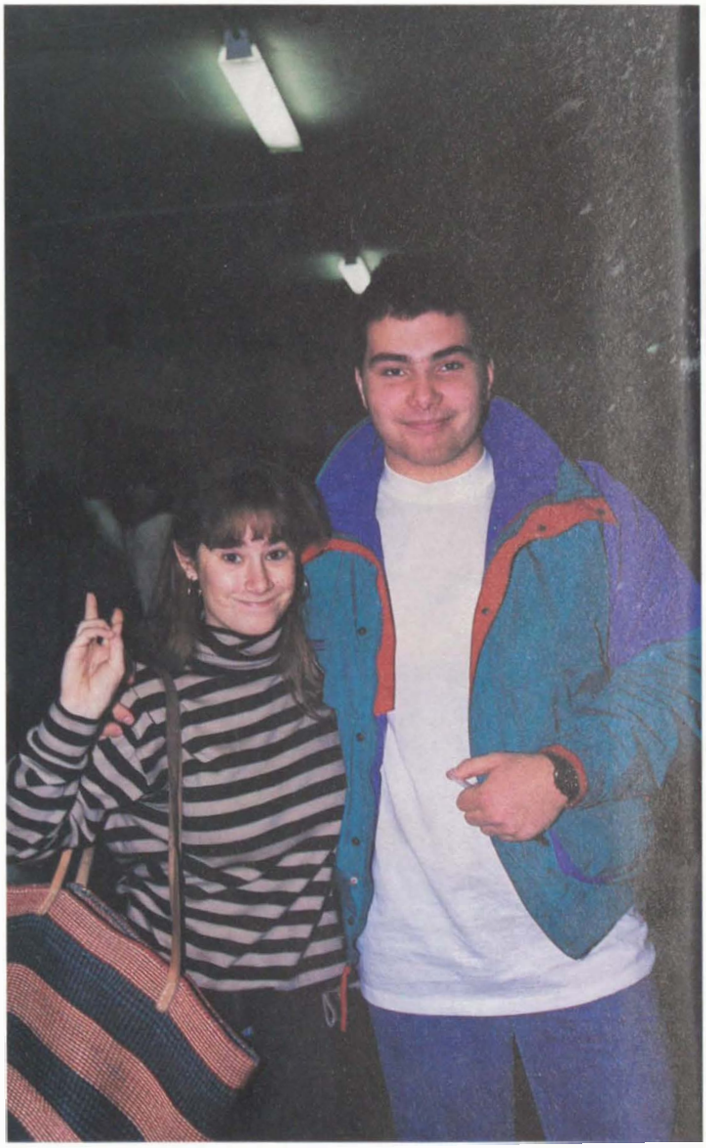

Measure the diameter of my mouth. (Pam Kocher)

Radiant in red. (Sally Reis, Hope Bishop, Allison Garvin)

Just "bust a move." (Ping Kang)

We thought we'd "do lunch." (Rachel Stoff, Ed Burnstead)

Danielle's Favorite Bow (Danielle Cotreau)

Am I blue? (Eileen McLoughlin)

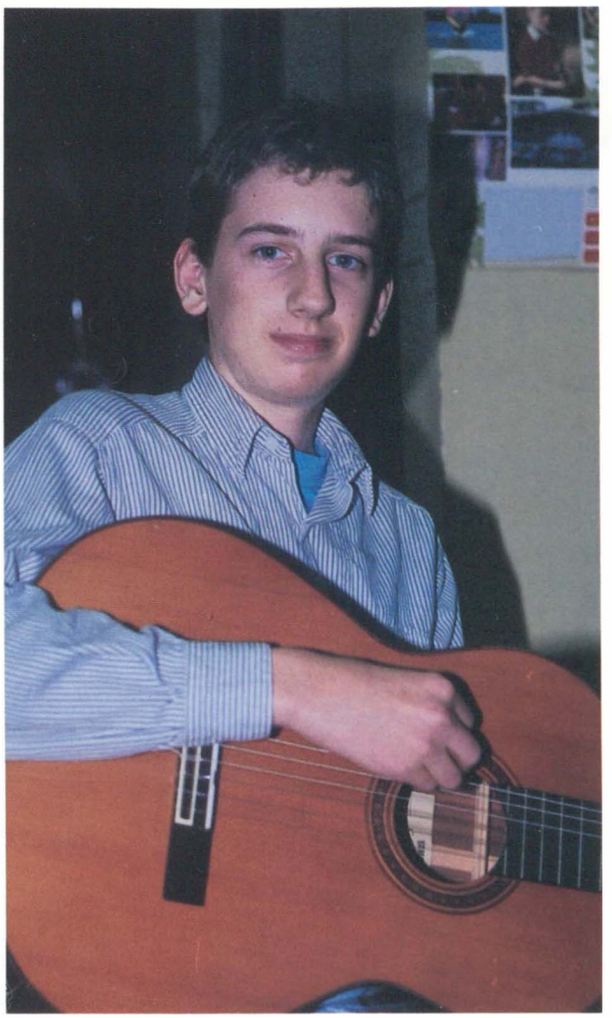

GETTING OFF TRACK

Stacey Baker loves to write poetry and Nick Soutter takes Russian lessons three days a week. Debbie Chafin is an accomplished ballerina while Jessica Mayer displays her grace and elegance on ice.

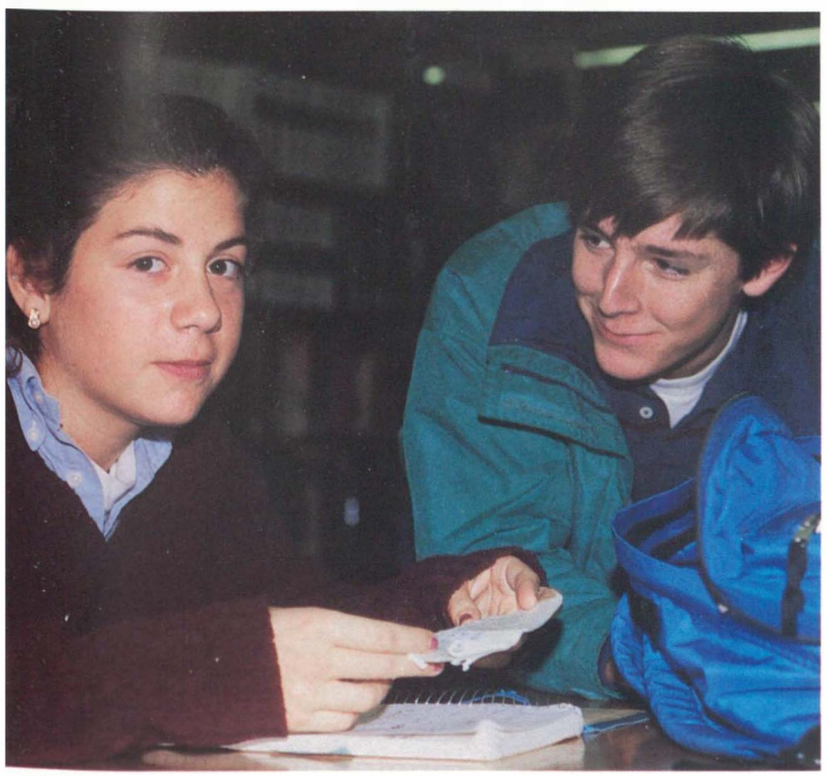

The student body abounds with talented individuals who enjoy getting off the fast track and having time to explore their special interests. Whether it be time for Rock 'n Roll or ruminating, students find they need time and space to retreat from the hectic academic pace.

"Shh! I love you too, Mom!" (Andrea Hendricks)

When does Willie Nelson retire? (Reggie McDonough)

"Oh, please, Dora, give him the note." (Dora Tavel, Doug McGregor)

"Leave me alone. I'm trying to catch up on my current events." (Emily Shanahan)

The orchid glove makes my outfit. (Debbie Chafin, Vanessa Barges)

We'll do what to Needham?!

Two hot little numbers. (Christine O'Brien, Kristen Roberts)

Stacey gives defense some pointers. (Amy Neher, Jessica Mayer, Tennyson Harwood, Stacey Clews, Jill Leahy)

Kicking off for Wellesley is Tonya Smythwick.

THANKS for GIVING us a great season!

The frenzy felt at the Thanksgiving rally and game reflected sentiments generated by a sensational season. Wellesley football had not been a "happening" for all too long and the community was truly grateful for the experience.

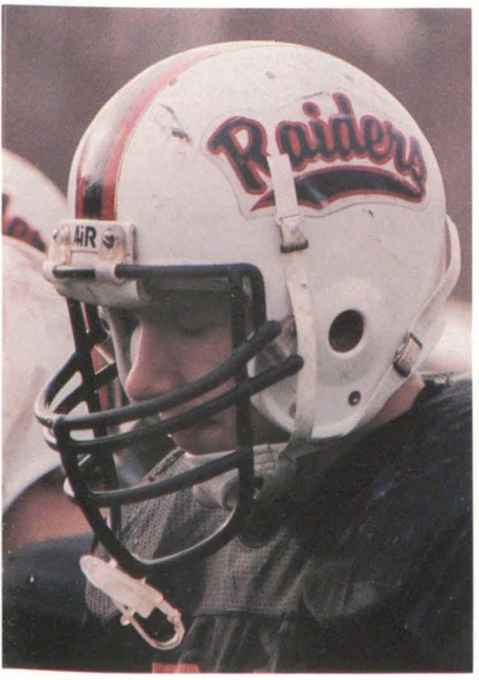

Even though thoughts of a forthcoming turkey dinner were not motivating factors, as snow on Thanksgiving postponed the game to Saturday, Wellesley managed to wallop Needham soundly. The Senior Women and a host of faithful fans were on hand to watch the event.

Let's get rowdy! (Marni Greene, Jen Hansford, Hope Bishop, Sally Reis)

Who should I give the ball to? (Drew Tripp)

"... and I'm thankful Walpole plays somewhere else."

Promoting pride. (Tamara Boseman, Jamila Younger, Conquista Roscoe)

Only a jock would dare . . . (Matt Donahue)

Milk? Who drinks milk?

"These are a few of our favorite things." (Erik Rohde, Becky MacDonald, Stephen Botts, Matt Cavaliero)

Guess who shops at the same store? (Joe Diliberto, Jen Ow)

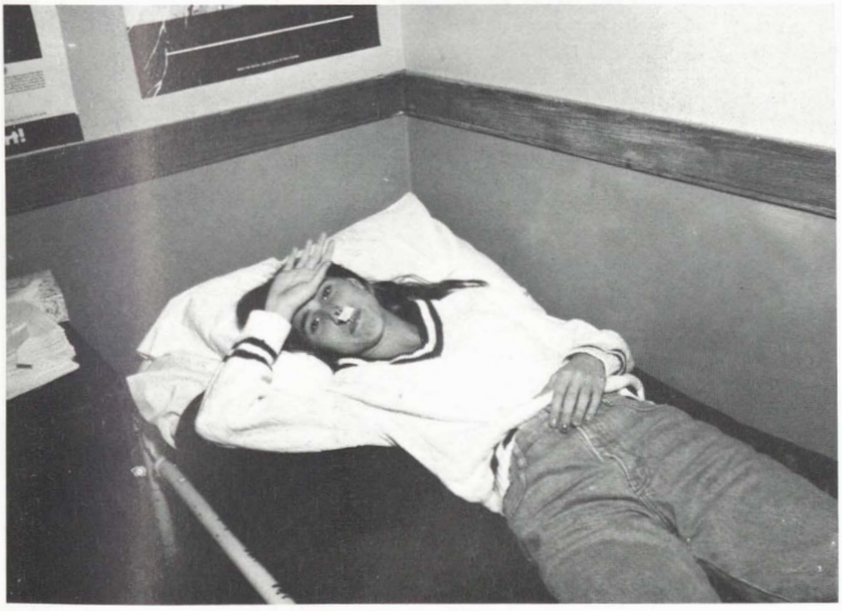

You put your right foot in . . .

TRACKING TRENDS

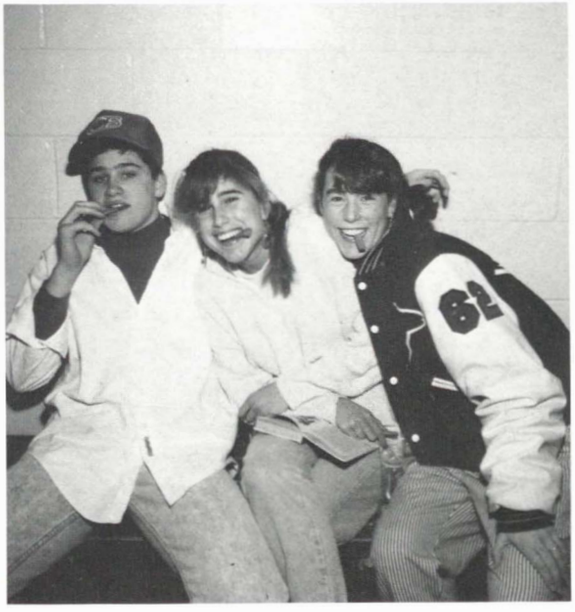

Fashions, fads, and fancies change with incredible speed, but some favorites at this moment in time include scrunchies for ponytails, huge earrings, boat shoes, and the inevitable jeans and sneakers.

The Nintendo video game is popular and the following albums and tapes:

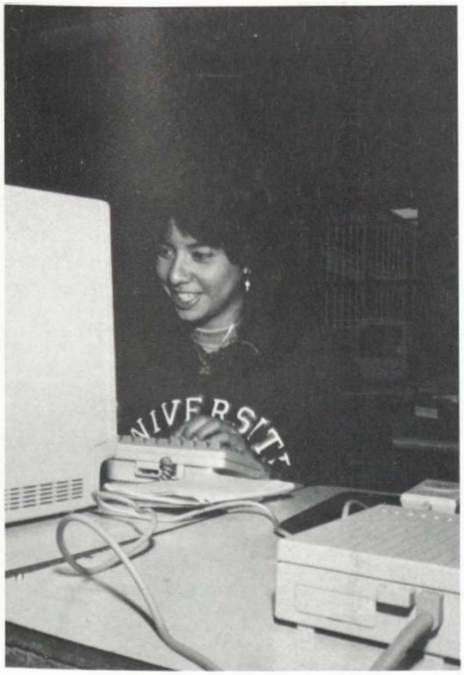

The Rolling Stones "Tour"
New Kids on the Block "Hangin' Tough"
Popular Movies: Rain Man, Beaches
Popular Video: Madonna "Cherish"
Cost of Album or Cassette: $7.00

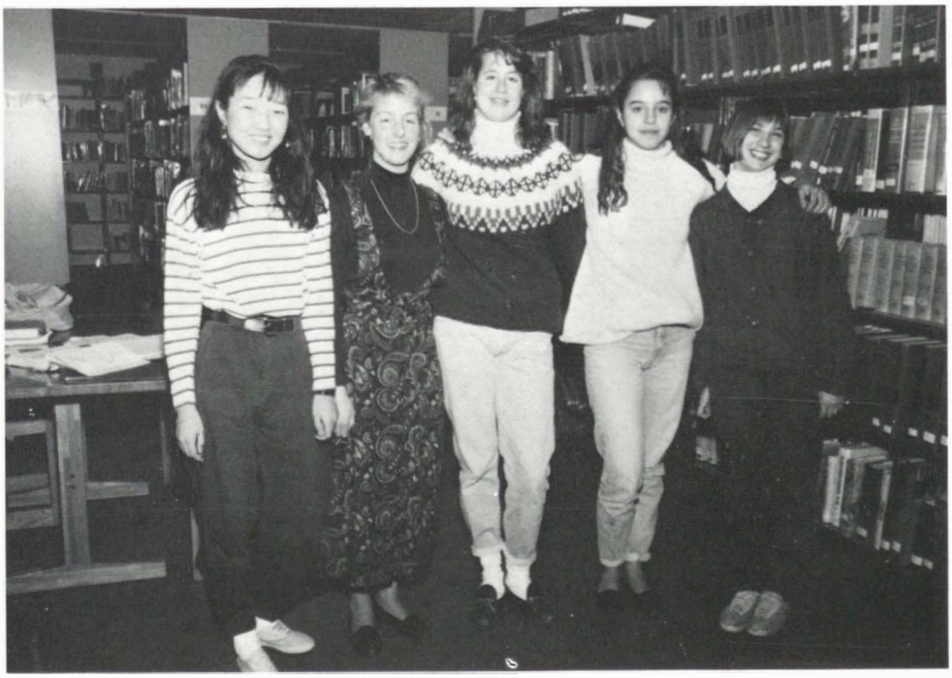

"Tests always make me feel ill." (Jessica David)

"Anyone for a carrot stick?" (Mark LeBrun, Allison David, Amy Burrill)

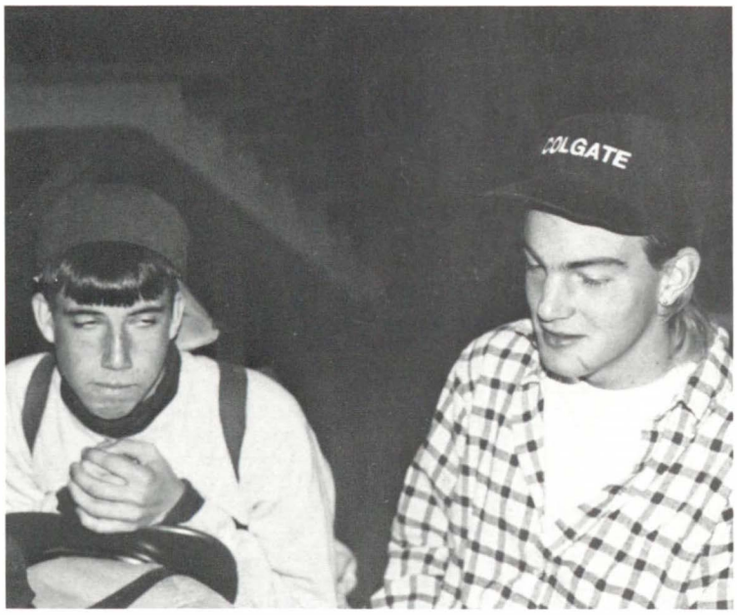

Omayra's having a "Mac attack" — without the golden arches. (Omayra Marrero)

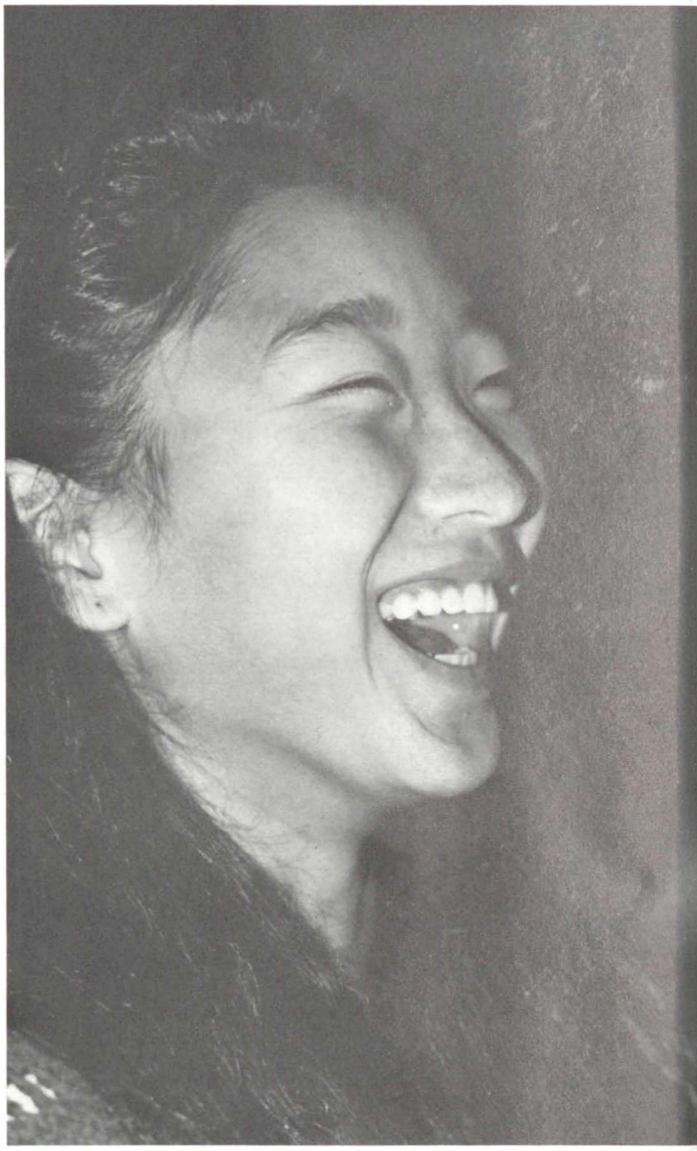

A conga line in the library? (Lena Lee, Susan Verde, Cassin Janik, Cristina Sierra, Erika Lichter)

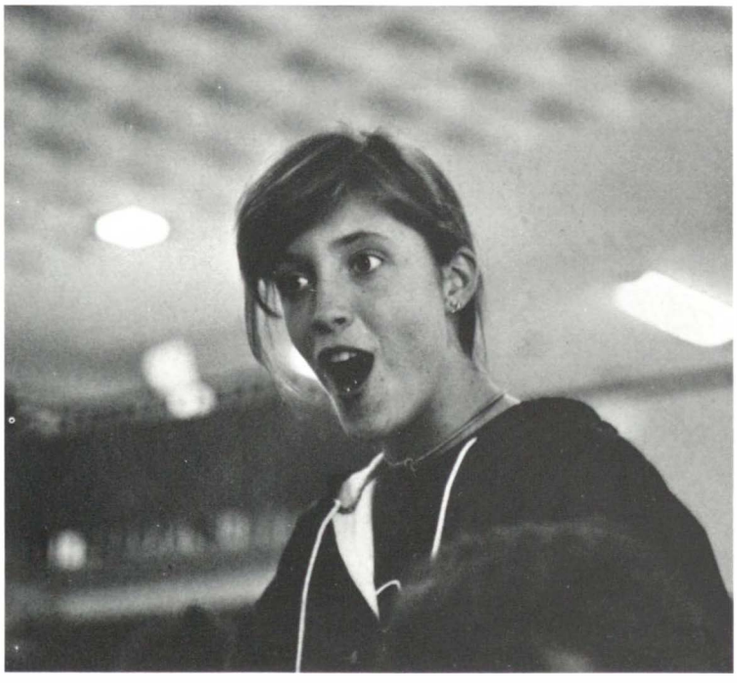

"Can you believe he said that?" (Eileen McLoughlin)

"Please, sir, could I have a crumb?" (Dan Black, Efaren Stonner)

"Oh, that's priceless!" (Julie Damon)

"That's the most shocking thing I've ever heard." (Alethea Hannemann)

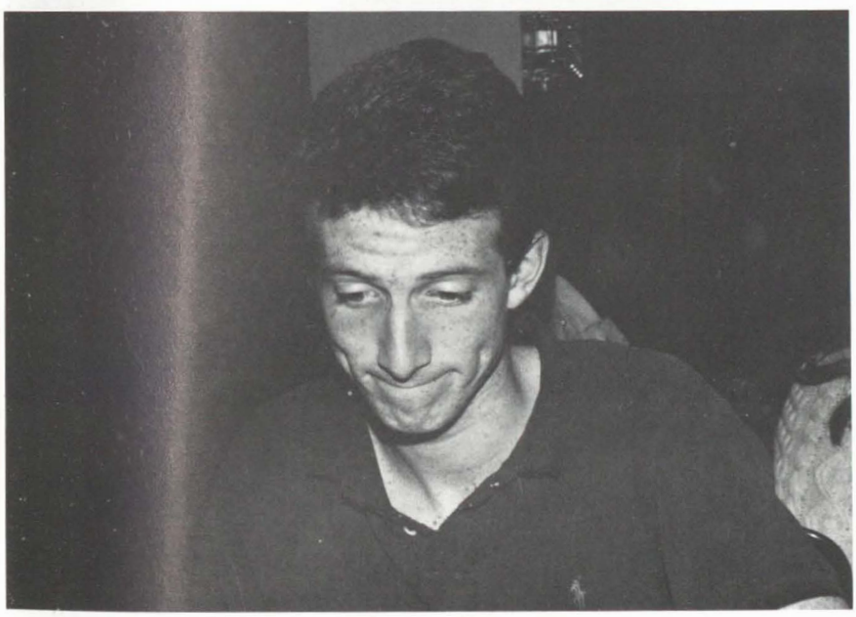

"Are you sure this is F day?" (Betsy Bogard)

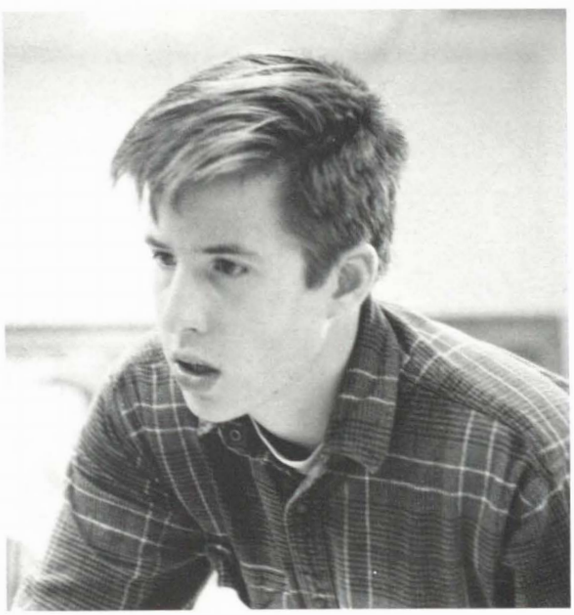

STUDENT, EXPRESS!

Yawn, giggle, darn, ouch! What? Yippee! Candids capture moments of truth that are woven into the fabric of each day. The variety of threads keeps the texture fresh and interesting and prevents one day from being exactly like any other.

It's sometimes hard to remember that moments of panic or great disappointment heighten pleasure, surprise, humor, and joy. If you remember the time you forgot there would be a history test, the day you were accepted to college, or the day you dissected a frog, perhaps you can relate to these expressions.

Not even Ralph Lauren can make it better. (Mike Cloonan)

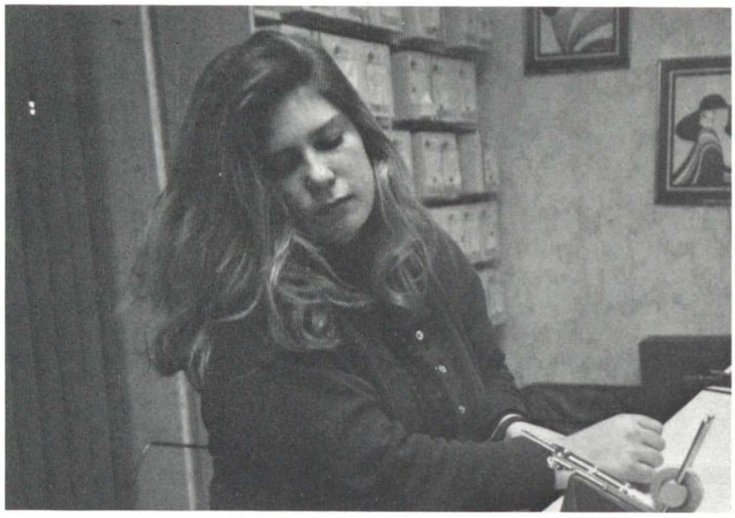

"Gentlemen of the jury . . ." (Chip Janik)

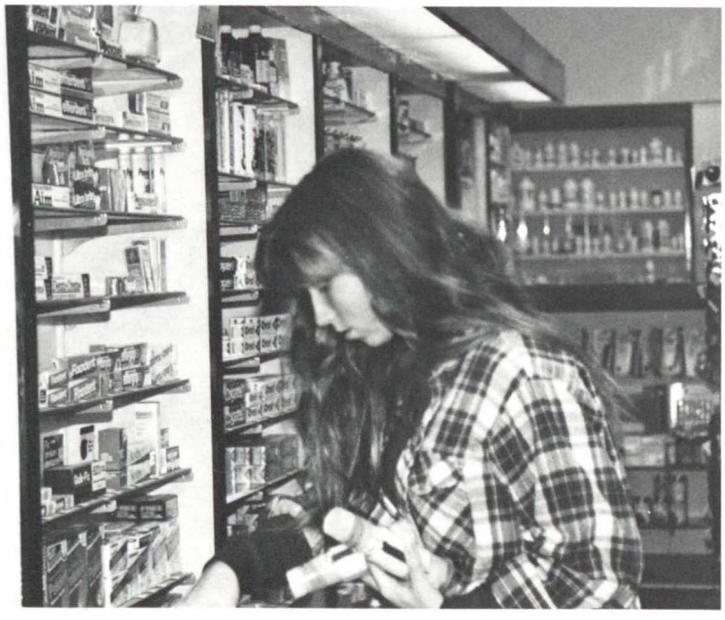

"Of course I know it's not all braided." (Heidi Wynard)

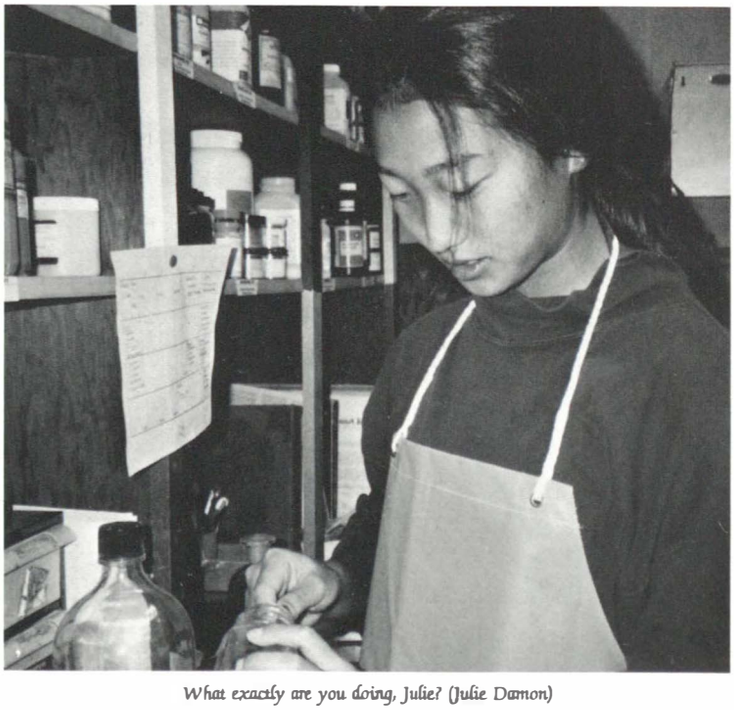

"I just don't buy the Darwin theory!" (Pam Poitras)

"Alison, don't fall asleep on the job." (Alison Bulger)

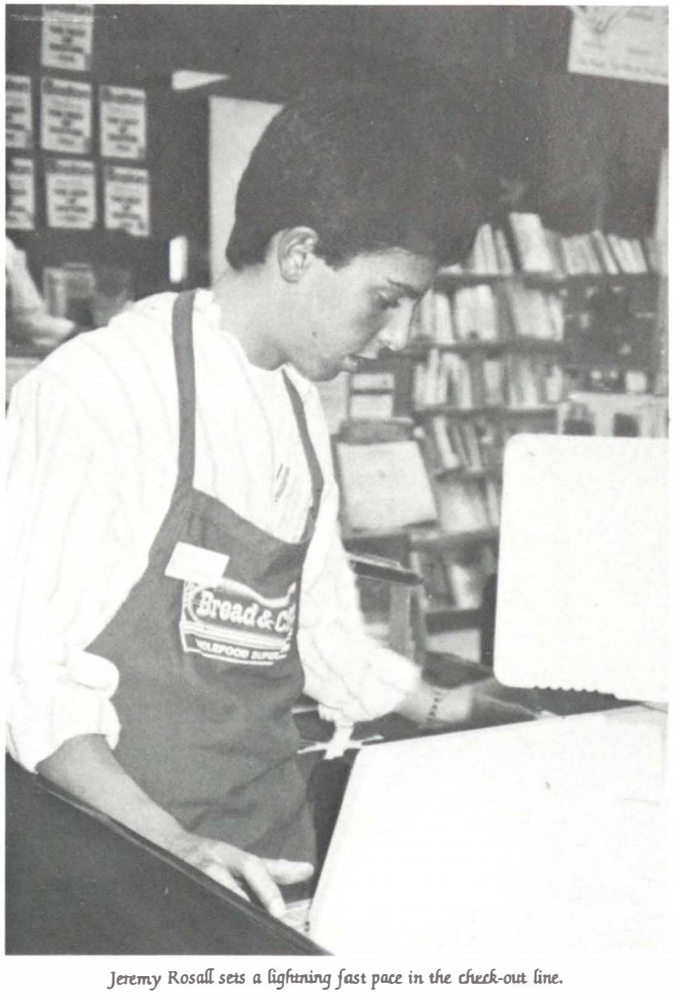

Jocelyn Boyea, super shelf stocker.

What exactly are you doing, Julie? (Julie Damon)

"You say you'd rather be on the other side of the camera, Sharon?" (Sharon Kingsley)

Jeremy Rosall sets a lightning fast pace in the check-out line.

THE WORK PLACE

America has by far the highest rate of working students in the world, and Wellesley has its share. The student body includes cashiers, stock persons, dry cleaners, and TV station personnel. While in their high school days, our parents might have car hopped burger meals to "wheels," we have picked up speed by delivering pizzas to homes.

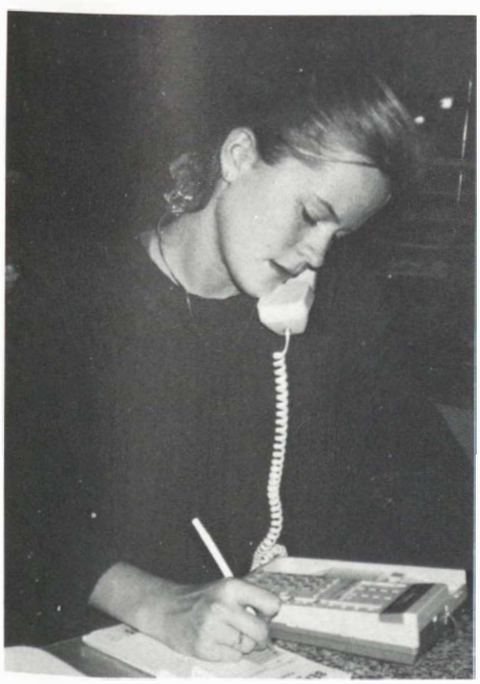

Juggling a job and school is difficult, but students do it for a variety of reasons. Some do it for the fun of it or to put the experience on college applications; others want the money for college or a car. Whatever the reason, these extremely busy people learn time management skills and often set the pace for their fellow students.

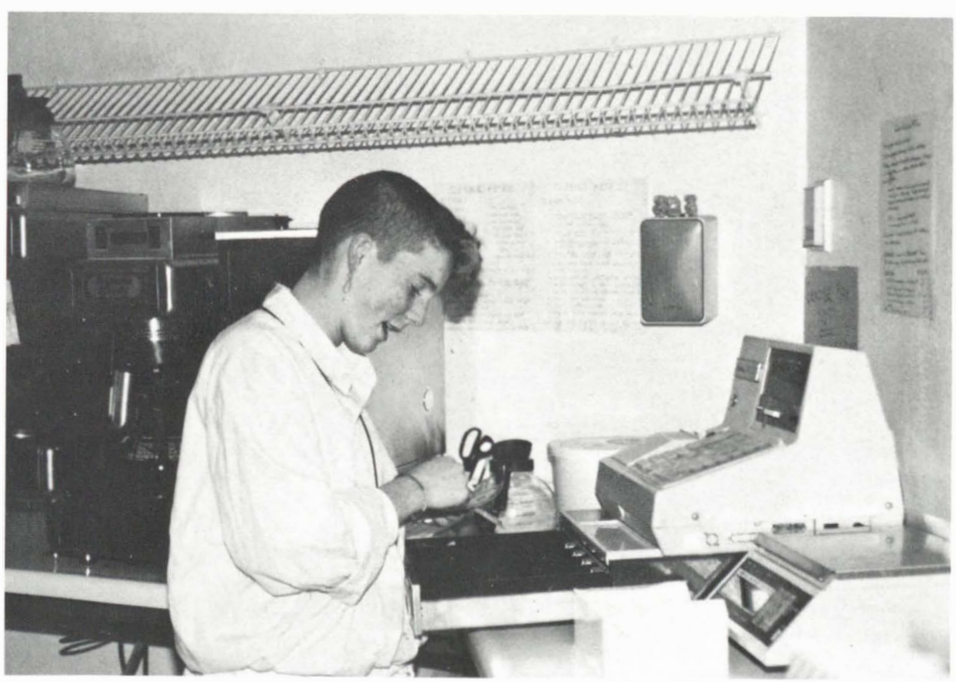

Put slot A into slot B . . . (Nicole Sviokla)

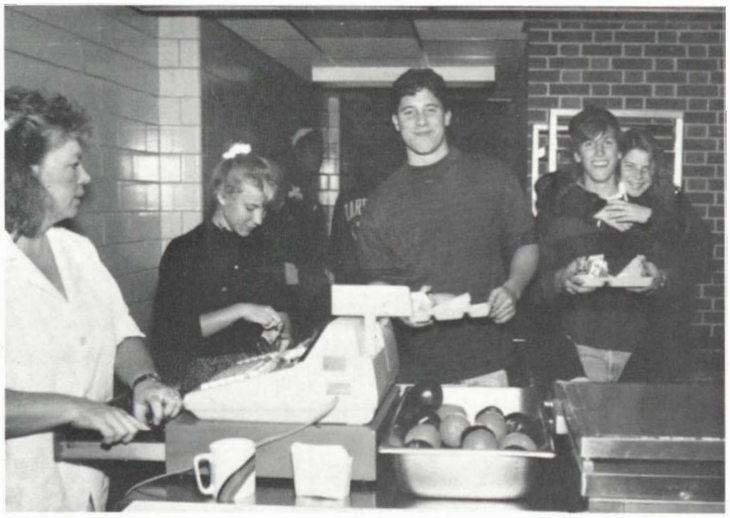

"My kangaroo money is right here." (Marisa Kramer, Stacey Baker)

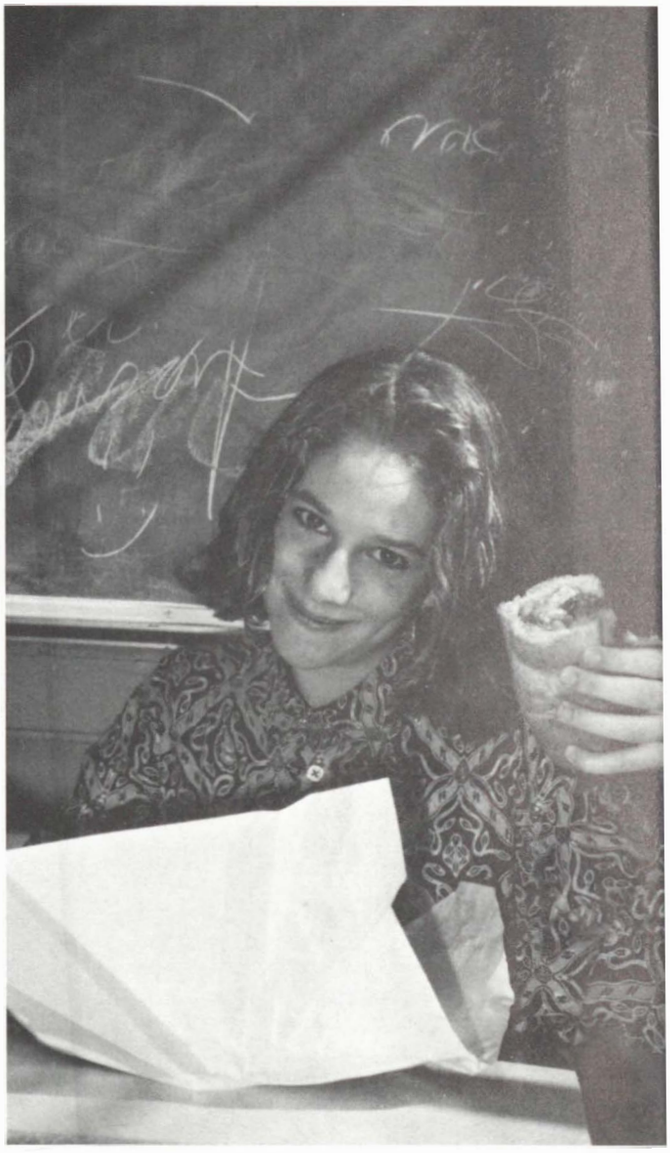

"May I take your order, please?" (Amanda Sviokla)

"It was wear a hairnet or cut my hair." (Tory Garner)

The excitement of the Deli-Bar. (Elizabeth Clarkson, Tom Parmensi, Alex Halsey, Dayna Bachelder)

That doesn't look like a school lunch! (Jessica Foster)

"Umm . . . lunch!" (Susan Verde, Jenny Whiteside)

"No, I don't want to share."

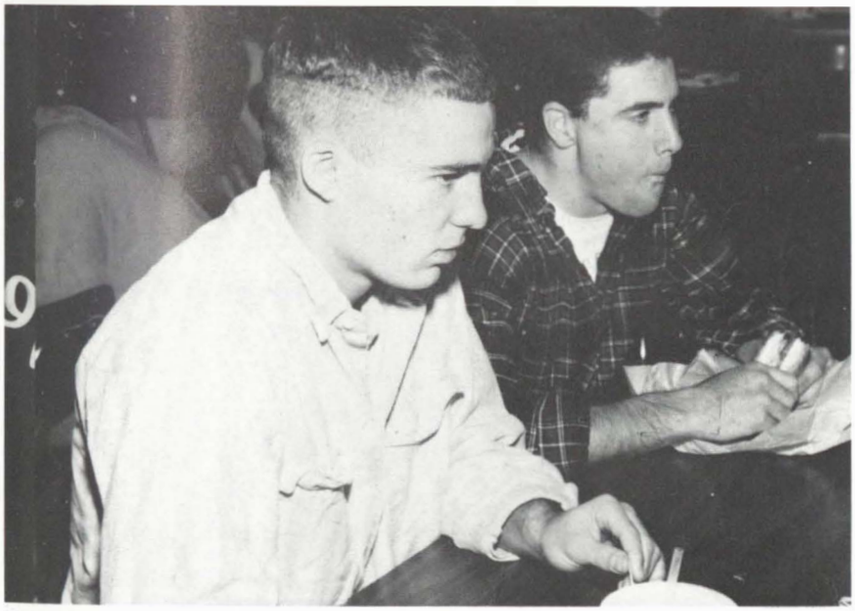

"Didn't your mother ever tell you not to talk and eat at the same time?" (Melissa Halloran)

FAST FOOD

My mom didn't make my lunch today! I could try to make Jeremy take me to McDonald's, if only the parking attendant wasn't there. Why did they have to get a parking attendant anyway? There wasn't one last year!

Maybe I'll just sit here and eat generic junk food (well, ya know, Lance's) and I'll admire the resplendent flags surrounding the cafeteria. However, where shall I sit? There isn't an empty chair to be found anywhere. I'll just have to share; I learned that in kindergarten.

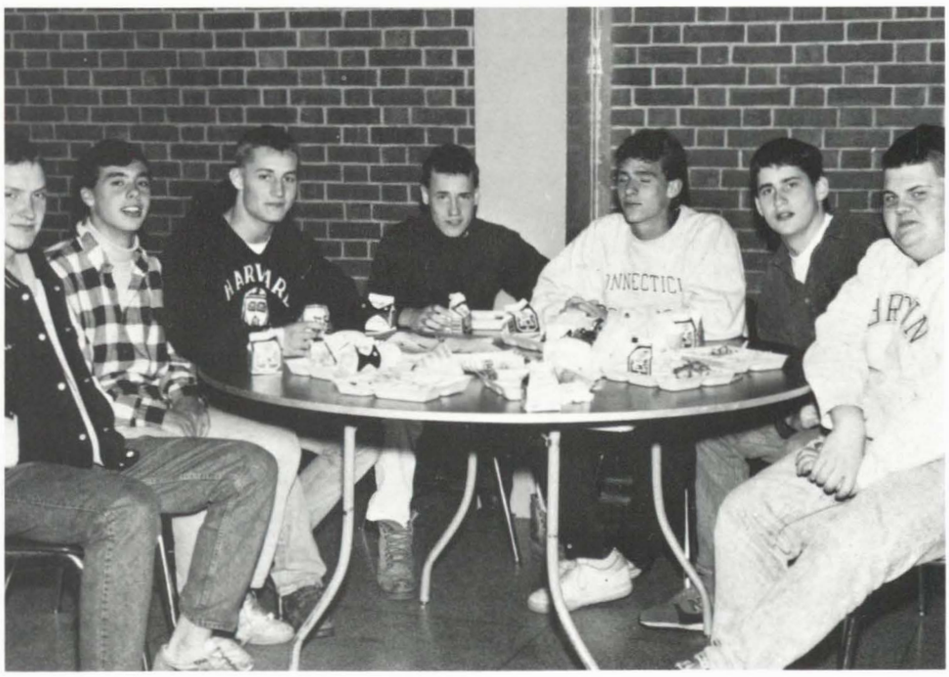

"So what was in that lunch, Drew?" (Drew Tripp, Joe Markell)

"Oh, look at that gorgeous senior over there!" (Katie Walston, Jessica Jonas)

Moisten with Motts. (Lara Grant)

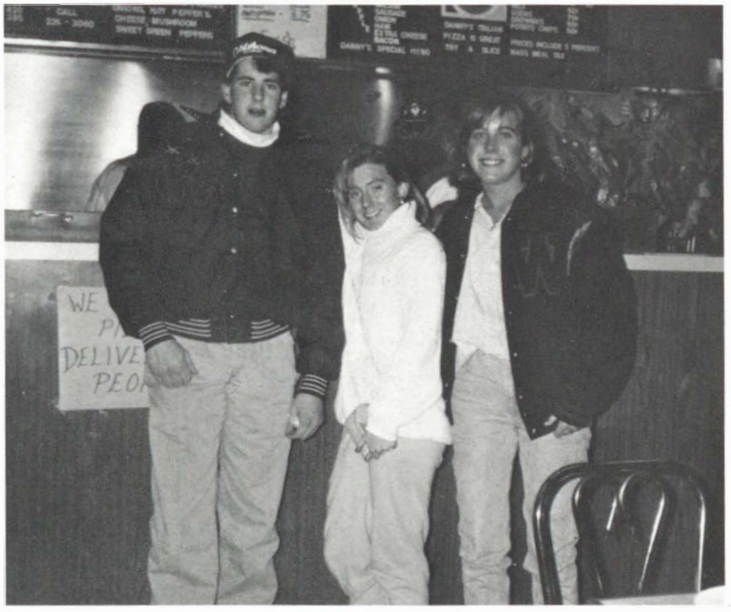

The infamous round table.

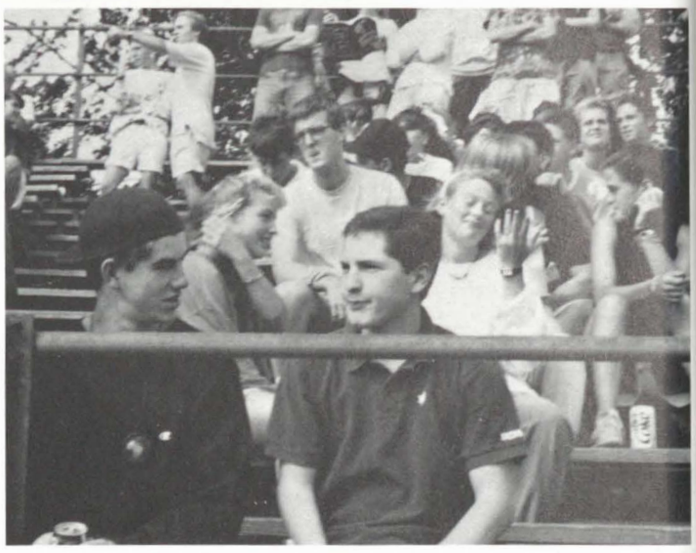

"Ooh, I bet that hurt."

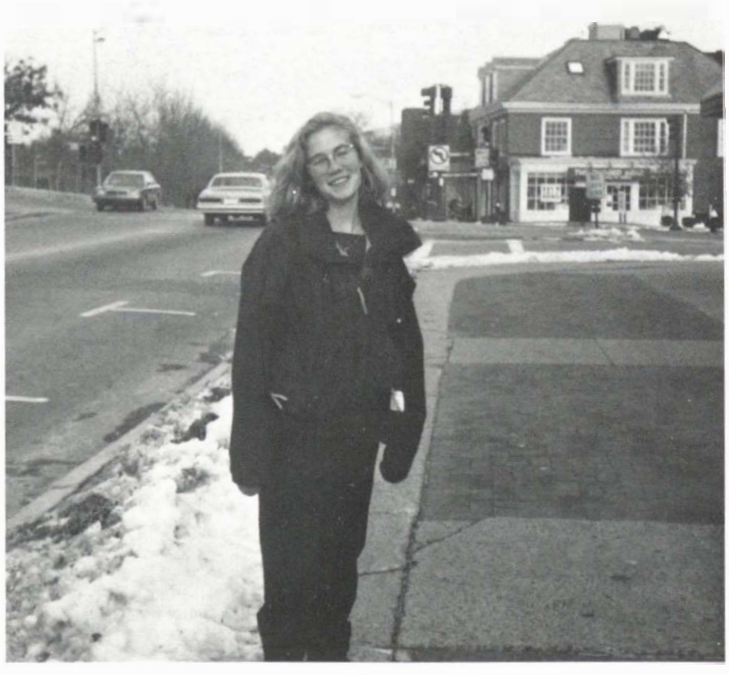

"Lighten up, Guys." (P. J. Joseph, Erik Rohde, Matt Zalosh, Jared Parker, Dave Giroux)

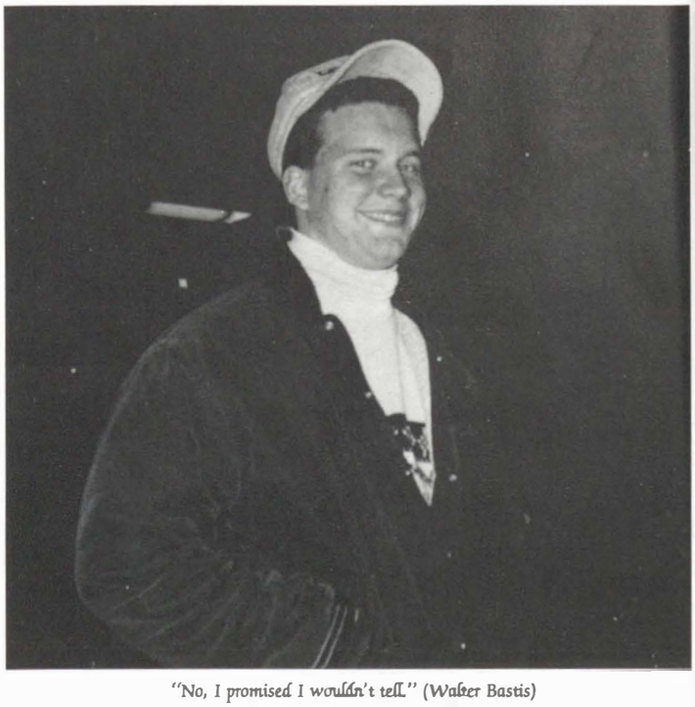

Danny's Devotees (Derek Roman, Amy Higgins, Rachel Burnazos)

"So, what's the plan for tonight?" (P. J. Aylward, Jason Garfinkle)

"The bus doesn't come until when?" (Susan MacDonald)

"No, I promised I wouldn't tell." (Walter Bastis)

THE PARTY PACE

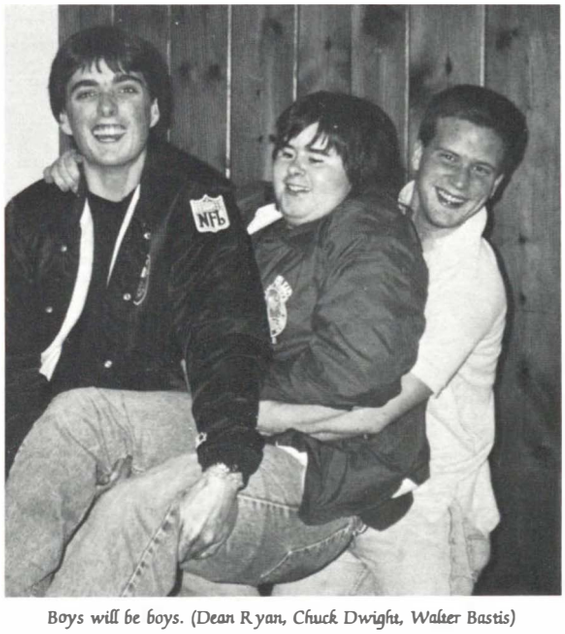

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party" . . . and, indeed, they did. With the success of our beloved athletic teams, there was much to celebrate. High spirits made party goers welcome, and even uninvited freshmen were allowed into senior bashes. Mobil Mart and Danny's, our favorite hangouts, didn't see as much of us because of all the house parties.

The bash of the year had to be Em Weiner's tribute to the football team. Em, along with other Senior Women, prepared dinner for the senior football players. After dinner the general public of WHS joined the group to congratulate the team for their 9-1 season.

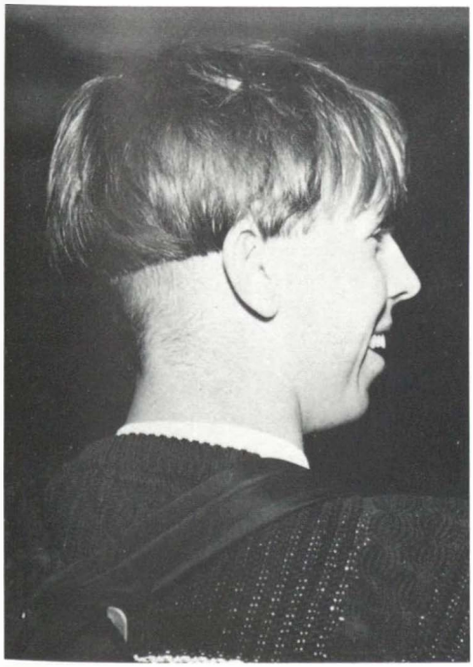

We wish underclassmen continued success in their activities and the spirit to maintain the pace of those wonderful Wellesley weekends.

Lovelies at their leisure.

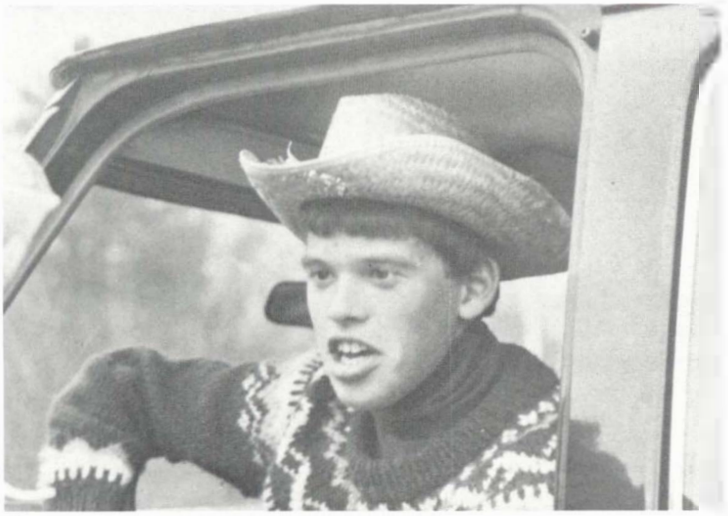

Boys will be boys. (Dean Ryan, Chuck Dwight, Walter Bastis)

"Well, I fell asleep in the chair . . ." (Brian Muller)

"Are we having fun or what?"

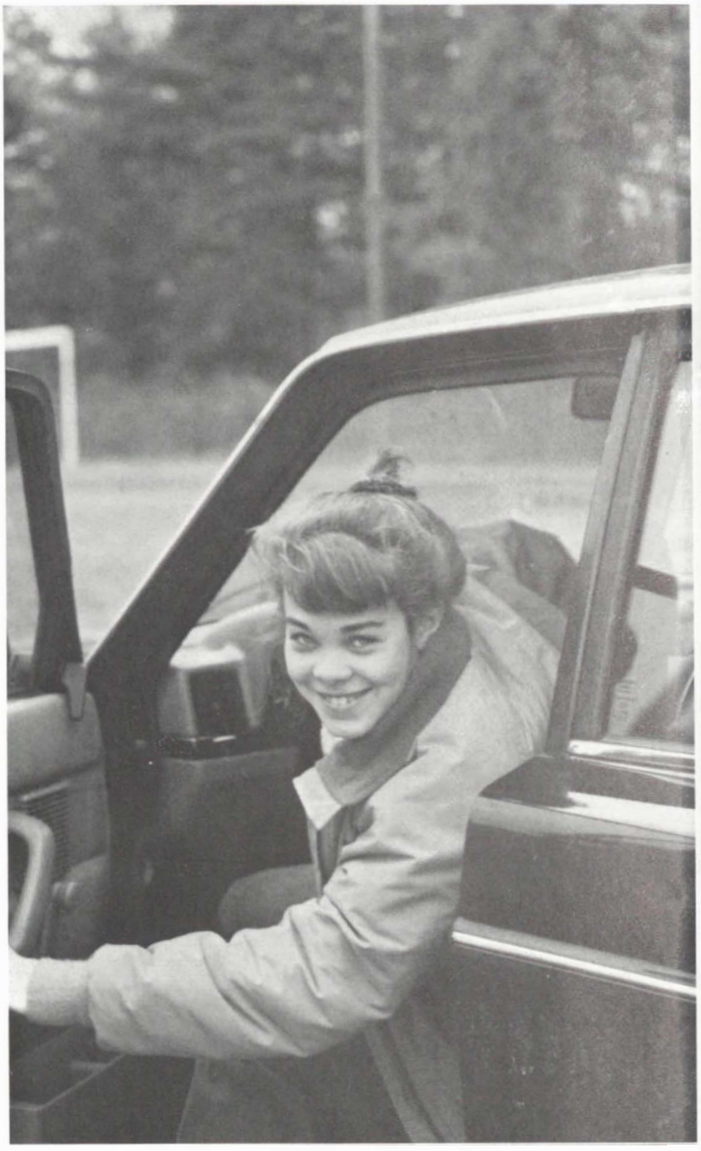

"Meanwhile, back at the ranch . . ." (Jared Parker)

"Good morning, Sidney."

"I have so many tests today you wouldn't believe it!"

"Yes, I have the car today?" (Michelle Gobiel)

"I'd like to thank my chauffeur . . ."

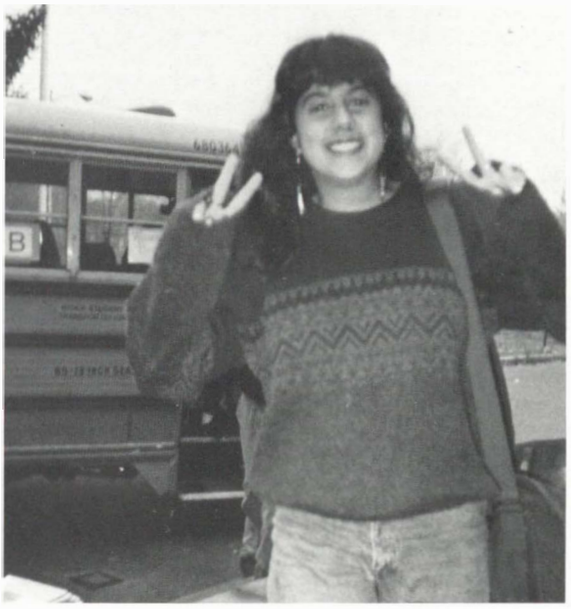

To Walk, or . . . NOT TO WALK

"Could I please have the car today? You have to grocery shop? Well, why don't we eat out tonight? It's my turn to drive, and Hank, Joe, Alice, Ned, and Rita are counting on me.

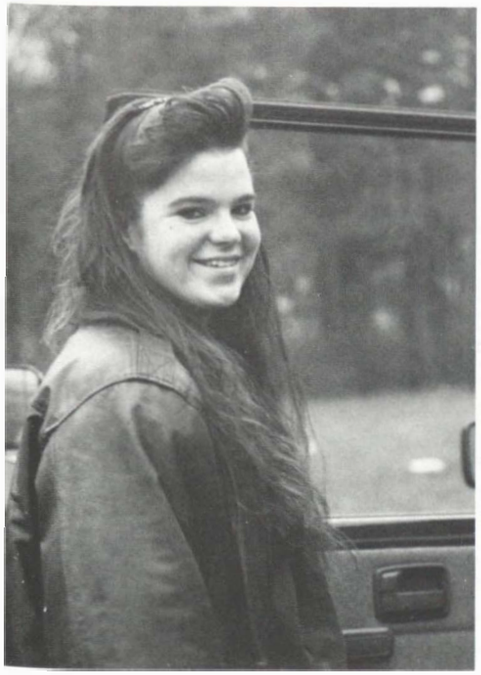

If I have to tell them all I don't have the car, it could take such a long time on the phone, I couldn't finish my homework. You know how you hate it when that happens. Maybe I should get a car for my birthday so this won't be such a problem. I've seen some good looking Volvos, Jaguars and BMW's in the parking lot."

"Yes, we've arrived!"

"Look, Mr. Craig, this is the answer!" (Lauren Ferrara)

"It's 2 o'clock, but I hate to leave." (Nancy Gerety)

Lovely hood ornaments.

Glamour Girls: Kim Detwiller, Katie Civetta, Alison Kamar, Julie Gordon, Sue Kestenbaum, and Alethea Hannemann.

Hey Guys: (Brian Mullaney, Ben Bleichman, Frank Truslow, and Jon Mahoney.)

P. J. Joseph and "friend."

Like Hi? (Danielle Curran, Jess David, and Marissa Bachman)

Mellowing out on the bus ride. (Joey Markell and Brian Casey)

SNOW SMUGGLED FROM NOTCH

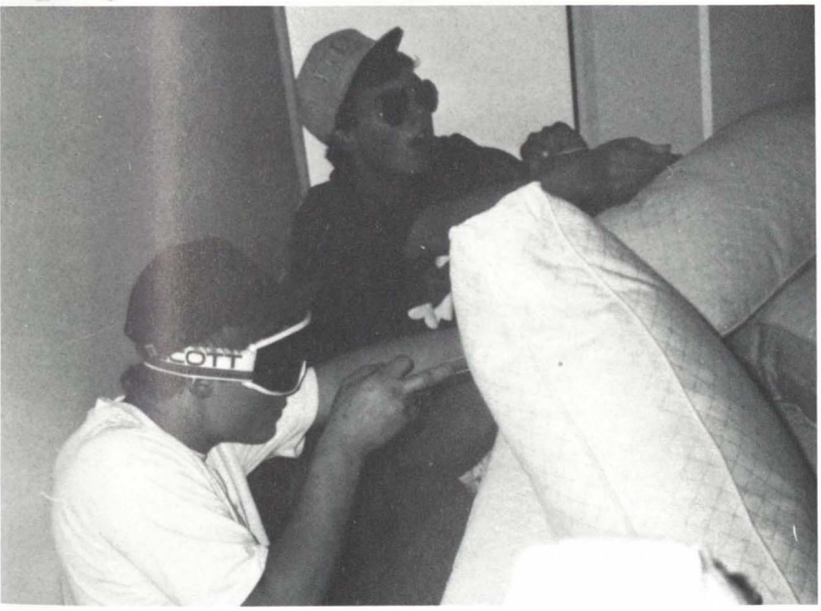

After enduring a five hour bus ride to Smuggler's Notch in Vermont, on March 2nd, the sophomore skiers were dismayed to find that the snow was in short supply and only five trails were open.

Mr. Vasaturo, Mrs. Joseph, Miss Ritter, and the Gormans were in charge of making sure the group was having fun, but not spending all their money on the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle video games.

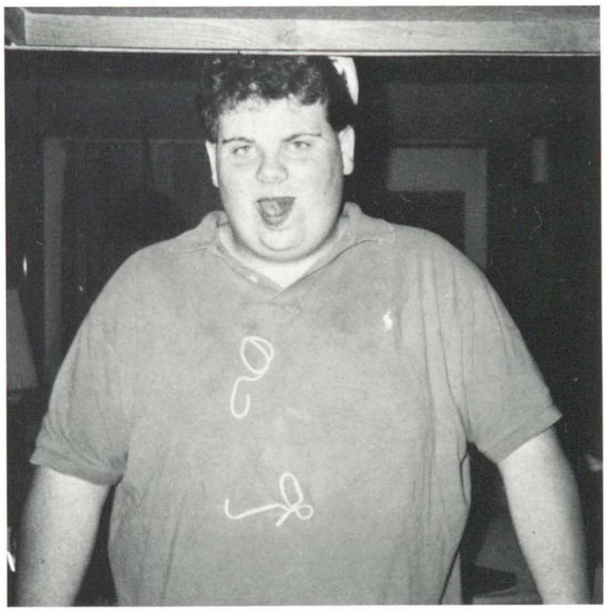

The dance with Belmont Hill added spice to their adventure. And of course, getting John Walsh out of the trees and having Atkinson wipe on the Bunny Blues trail was also interesting.

Wellesley seemed to have the answer to warding off snow because when the Class of '91 followed the sophomores to the Smuggler's Notch trails on March 16th, they found the same disappointing conditions.

They managed to entertain themselves anyway. Laura Nash and friends had thought to bring their Lacrosse sticks, some people opted for volleyball, Frank Truslow and company had raging rubber band wars, and Sara Peterson and Jillian Fraser decided to go horseback riding. It wasn't quite what everyone expected to be doing on a ski weekend, but they had no problem changing their pace to suit the conditions.

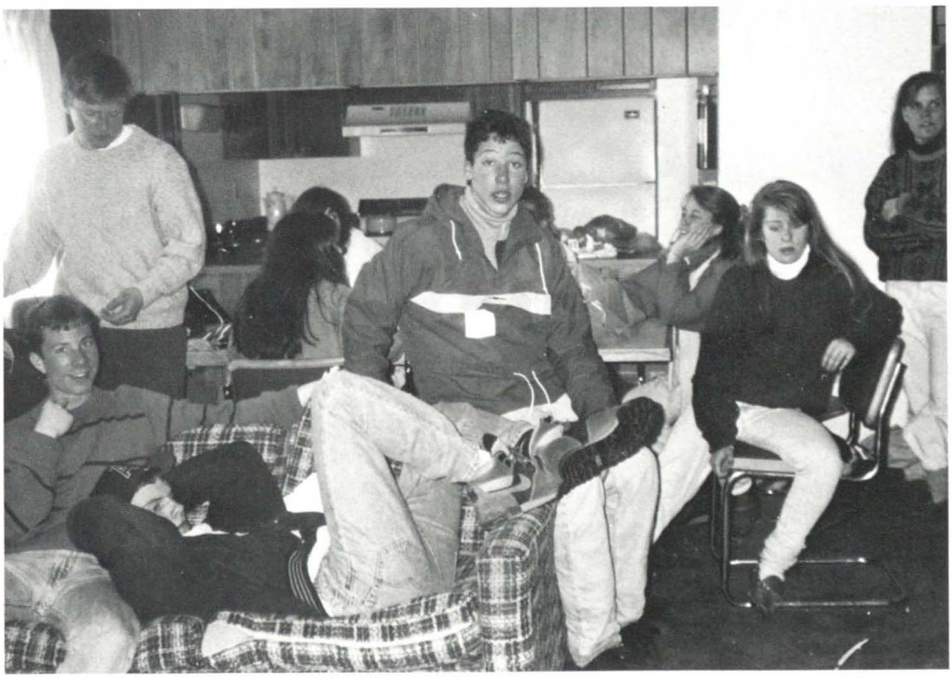

It's War! Frank Truslow and Matt Zalosh enjoy a rubber band fight.

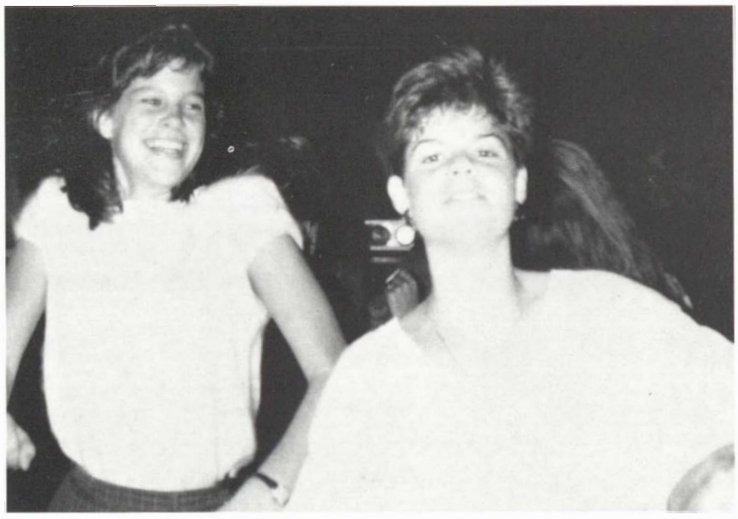

You missed your mouth, Jon.

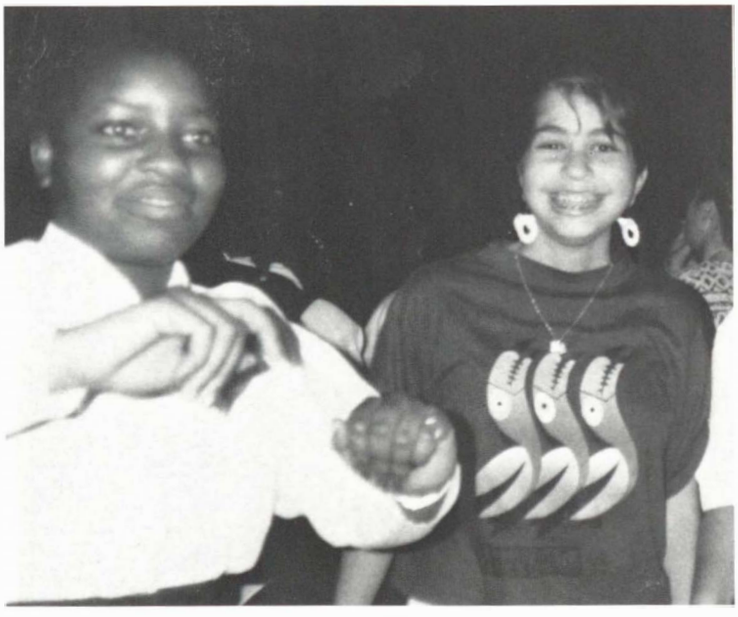

Hanging out in the arcade.

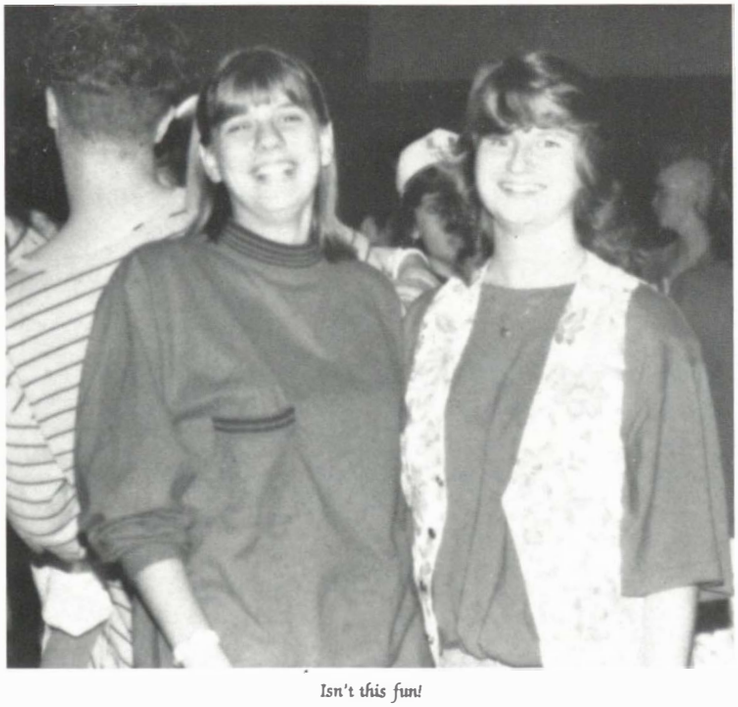

Now that we are all here . . . (Travis Cundiff, Louis Joseph, Trina Juliani, George Donovan, etc.)

Boogie down, Laura! (Laura Abernethy and Kristen Downes)

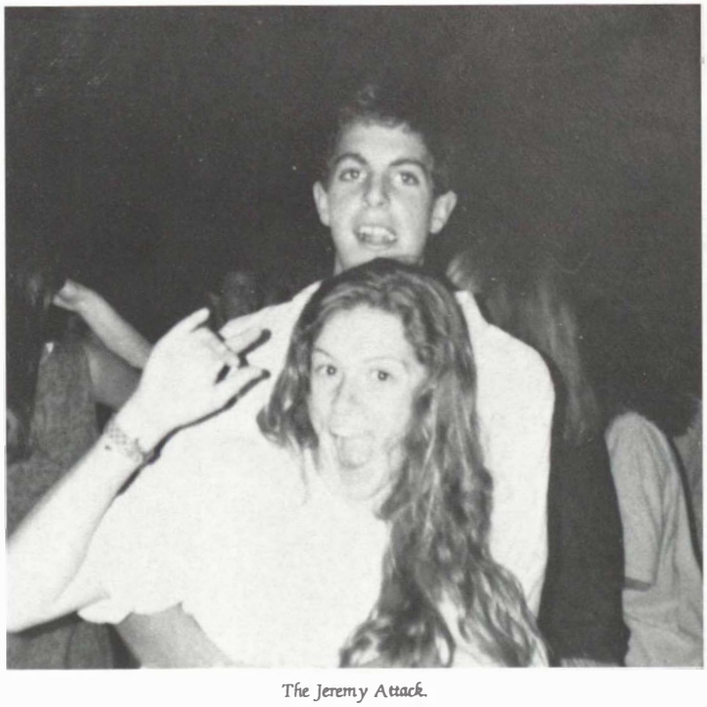

Could you be happier, Doris? (Emily R. and Doris C.)

Isn't this fun!

Omayra Marrero struts her stuff.

The Jeremy Attack.

DANCERS DON'T DRAG FEET

"Over four hundred people in the cafeteria?"

"How much did we make?"

This year students opted to pick up the pace a bit at the dances that were held. No, they didn't play faster music; they took in more money. Dances have always served as fund raisers for the individual classes, but this year clubs and other organizations got in on the action.

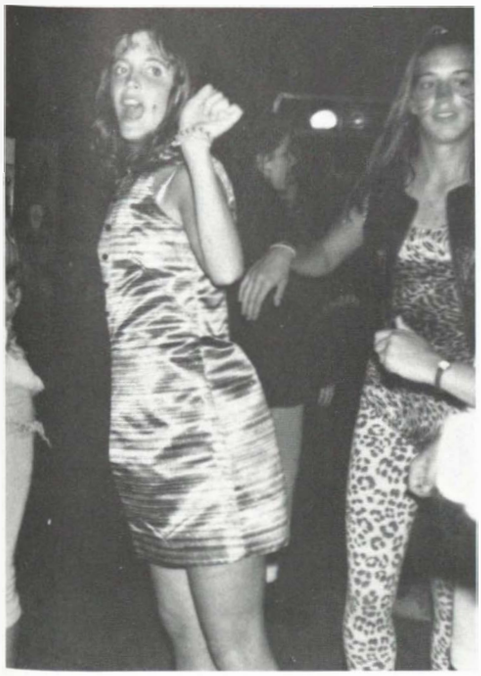

The Senior Class kicked off the season by presenting a new tradition, a Homecoming Dance. This spirited "happening" was followed by Club Coca Cola's debut, which packed the house and raised megabucks for SADD's endeavors, which included helping to sponsor the Special Olympics. What could be better than good friends, good times, and good works? With the disc jockey playing "Bust a Move," and "Buffalo Stance," and strobe lights transforming the cafeteria, let the cash flow in and the dancers donate.

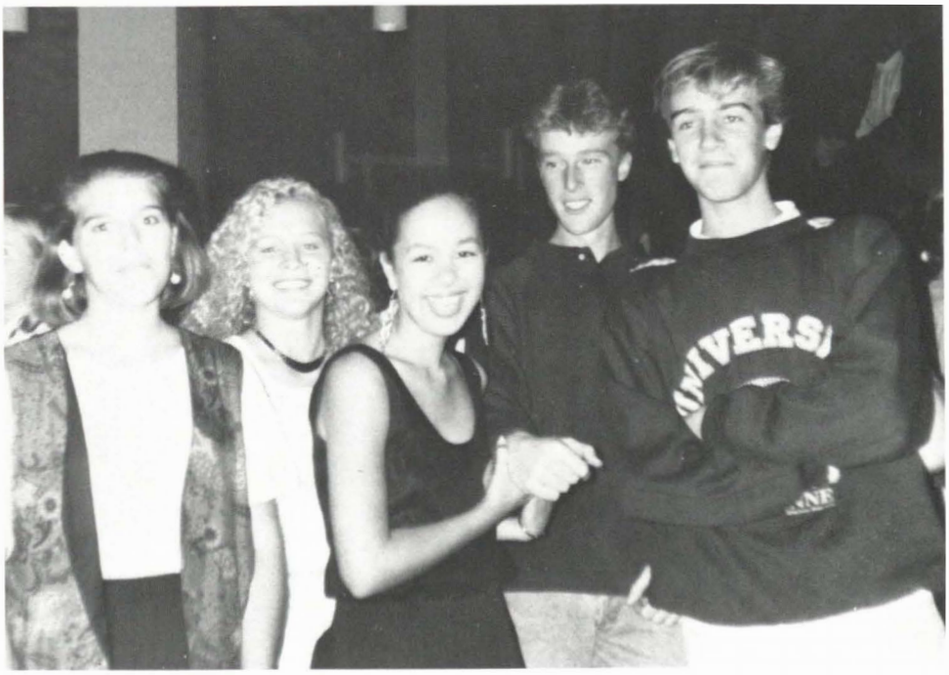

Some juniors take a twirl.

Surprise! (Jen Meyers)

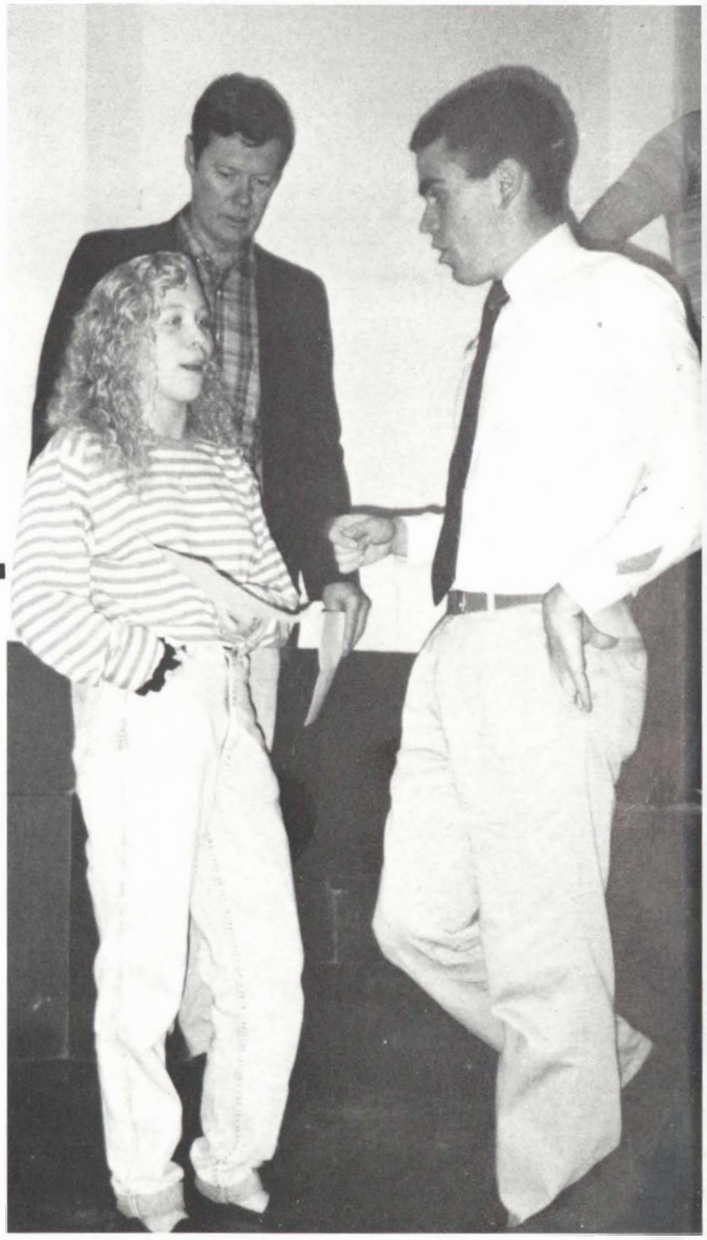

You don't say!

What a great group!

"Now let me see." (Mrs. Fiske)

"May I have your autograph, Mr. President?" (Britt Greineder, Mr. Kerivan, Brian Doyle)

Thirsty anyone? (Jim McAllister, Jess Foster, Pam Kocher, Lisa Moore)

"I'll buy this and . . ." (Mandy Preville)

Melissa Dowling meditates before her performance.

A CHANGE OF PACE

"What day is it." Teachers and students had to ask each other daily. Although this may seem to be a stupid question, those who had to suffer through the new schedules didn't think so. Mr. Spurr even had to invent a new slide rule for the express purpose of keeping track of the seven day cycle lettered A to G. A great deal of thought and energy went into revamping the system to allow more teaching time and scheduling flexibility, but the jury is still out on whether the best solution has been found. Those electives are still pretty elusive.

UP IN SMOKE. Along with the old schedule, the old smoking policy was reduced to ashes. Yes, WHS has joined the Great American Smokeout! Gone are the days of designated smoking areas. If you have to smoke during the school day . . . TOUGH! So, go ahead, take a deep breath. Between the asbestos removal and the new smoking policy, it's no longer hazardous to your health.

The School Store kept pace with the "new for the nineties" innovations and opened its doors with a new look and a new name, Campus Treasures. In addition to school supplies, there are boutique and gift items available as well as a line of designer clothes by Cynthia Dewar (WHS '89).

A LAB(OR) OF LOVE. In the continuing effort to ensure that every student has the tools to succeed and even excel, two new labs have been created, staffed by the faculty, and open daily for tutorial help. The Writing Lab and Math Lab are hot spots for people who need assistance with an assignment or help understanding a troublesome topic. Write on!

The students themselves generated change. The schoolwide Student Council Caucus gave students an opportunity to voice concerns and propose articles ranging from initiating a wrestling unit in gym classes to eliminating substitute teachers. Unfortunately, they couldn't vote for an increase in the Performing Arts budget. For the first time in many years we didn't have a musical; instead the students and faculty worked together to present skits and songs in a very polished variety show. What a talented community we are!

Students also instituted a new "Homecoming" tradition with a parade before the first Varsity game and a dance afterwards.

SADD's Club Coca Cola brought over four hundred people into the cafeteria. Such success indicates a continuation of this event annually for the proceeds help to sponsor the Special Olympics and other SADD activities.

Mrs. Hershenson was "loverly."

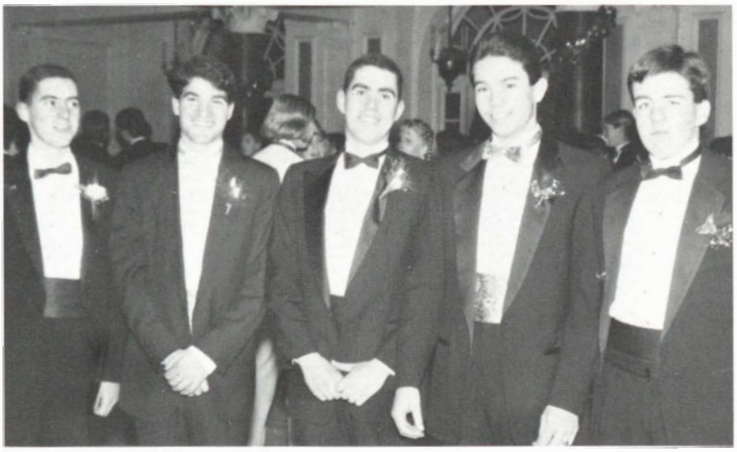

Homecoming spirit.

COTILLION: AN ENCHANTED EVENING

How do you do!

"Where are your dates, boys?"

The Grand Staircase.

A Chorus Line

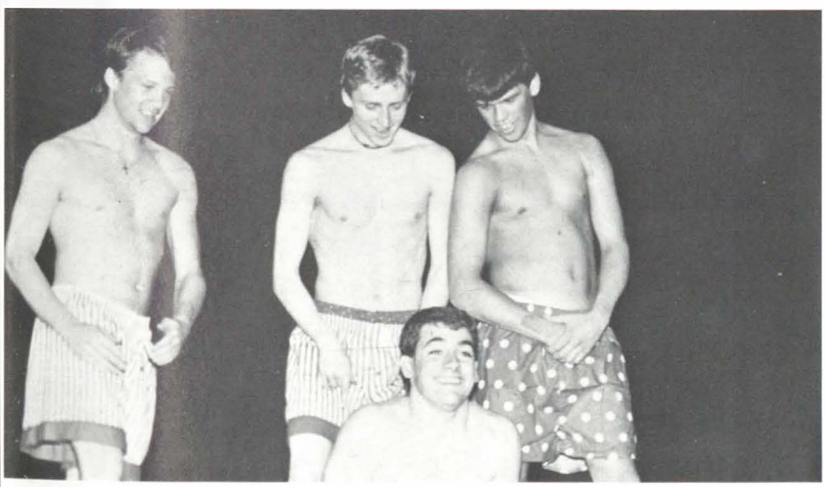

Is he having a "Mac Attack," Tennyson?

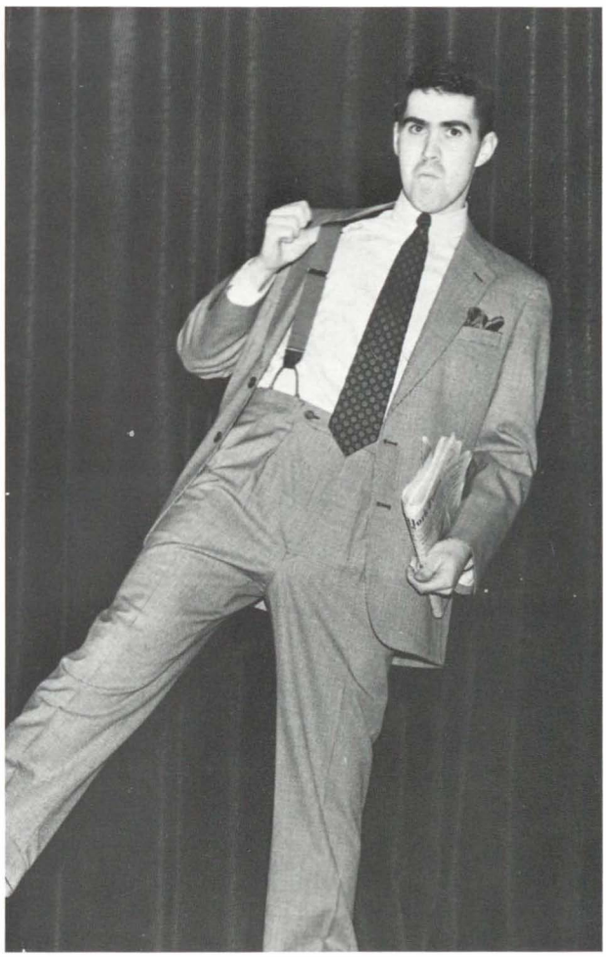

A "FUN"RAISER FOR SADD

Oh, my, our men looked good. Well, come to think of it, they looked pretty funny too. They really ran the gamut of the urbane, sophisticated businessman's look and the elegant attire of formal evening wear to those outrageous shorts.

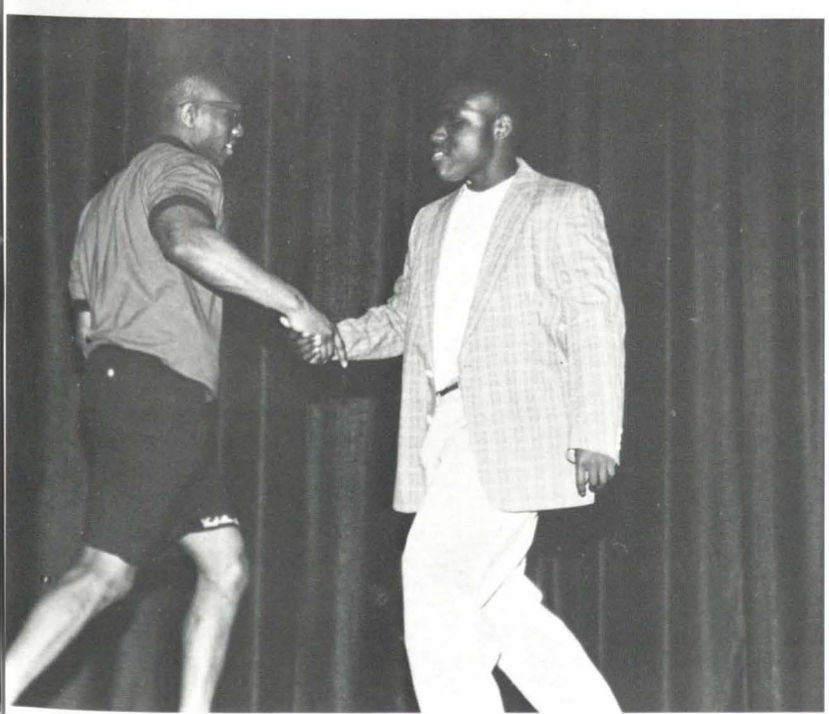

Thanks to the generosity of local businesses, the men were sartorially splendid. SADD picked up the proceeds from this fundraiser and the audience applauded the playful antics of the models who were such good sports.

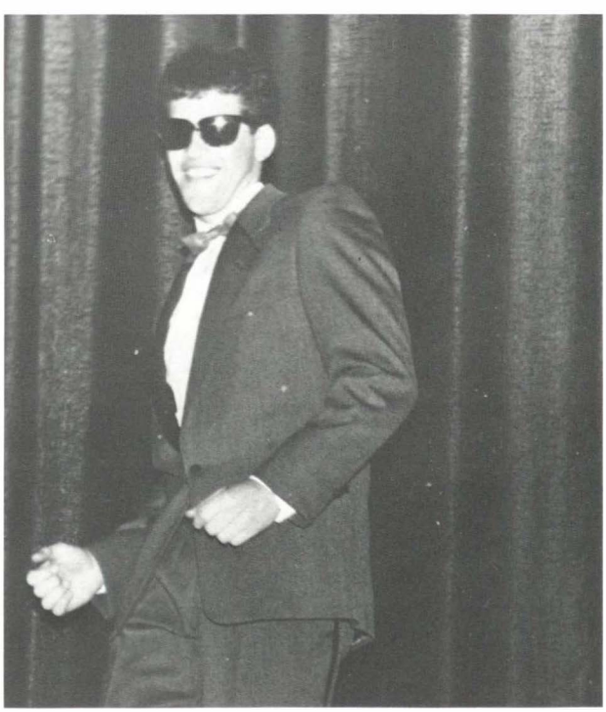

"Studley" Men (John Faubert, Frank Parker, Jared Parker, Brian O'Connell)

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

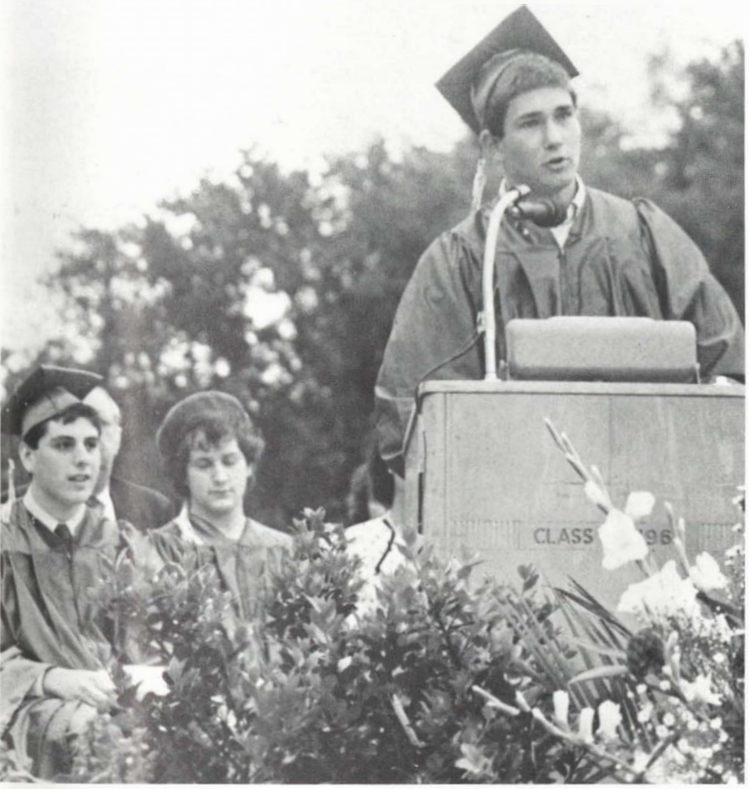

Class Officers . . . SENIOR Class Officers . . . what can you say about them? This year the President Jason Garfinkle, Vice-President David Collard, Treasurer Matt Cooney and Secretary Pam Kocher had their hands full. Together with their advisors Mrs. Goddard and Mr. Scafati, they planned all the senior activities. They worked out many problems and even began a new tradition of Homecoming. As the year progressed, the pace picked up and the officers became busier and busier. From the prom to the All Night Party, from the banquet to senior month, they all made it a year that will never be forgotten. The Class of 1990 has left its mark on this school and much should be attributed to these officers.

MAKING MEMORIES

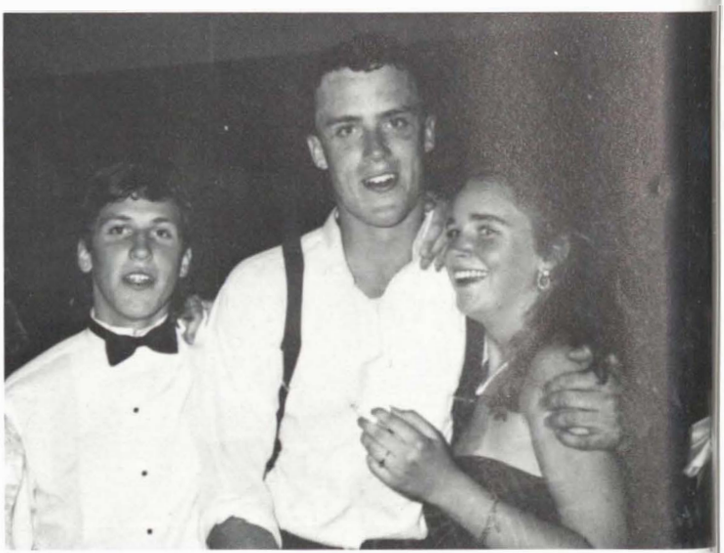

Beach Party (Joelle Kane, Dayna Bachelder)

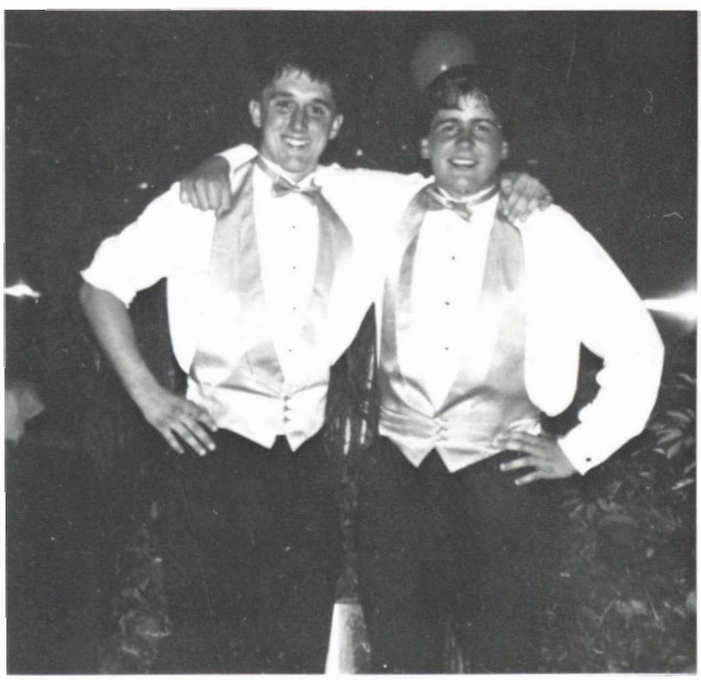

Senior year was a time when friendships became stronger and lasting impressions were formed. Through parties, days at the beach and school activities, seniors spent a lot of time together. No one but the members of the Class of 1990 will know how special the year truly was. They have funny memories of Jello Wrestling, fond recollections of the Prom, and treasured moments from the last month of school.

RAIDERETTES RATE RAVE REVIEWS

"If you want it, you got it!" (Vickie Crawshaw)

The old tradition of Senior Squaws evolved into the new concept of Raiderettes, who made their debut at the Thanksgiving Pep Rally. Under the direction of our own Mrs. Goddard, the group performed a dynamite choreography routine. (eat your heart out, Jane Fonda!) As an overwhelming majority of senior women participated, the display of spirit was truly an impressive boost for the football team.

The Raiderettes then proceeded to follow in their successful football team's footsteps by "smoking" Needham in the Powder Puff Game. Of course, the women ended up playing tackle football without pads, but then, they're tough!

To the Class of 1991, we hope your football season is as rewarding as ours was and that you can "bust the moves" as we did. Keep the winning tradition alive!

"Wait a minute. Didn't I just see Mr. Davis going that way? How can he be in two places at once?"

High school halls were haunted on Halloween and Mr. Davis had a double, namely Emiliano Cecchini. Humor abounded during the annual Halloween Costume Parade as Hans and Franz from Saturday Night Live (Steve Gaughan and Jared Parker) cavorted in the courtyard with the likes of Beetle Juice (Andy Marston), a bag lady (Tory Garner) and Mother Nature (Sharon Kingsley). The assorted outfits included both innovative garb and the more traditional look of Clown Michelle Gobiel and witch Marisa Kramer. Even the Child Lab children, who were also dressed up for the occasion, were entertained rather than "spooked" by seeing their older friends in costume too.

KIDS WILL BE KIDS

May was when the seniors all came together and showed their spirit until they were free on the 25th. The Senior Calendar and Senior Voice became an everyday necessity much to the thrill and disappointment of the administration, but always a thrill to the seniors.

The year old traditions like Beep Day, McDonald's Day and T-shirt Day were kept alive. To start out the month, seniors participated in Ball Day, weekly softball games and D-Day cookouts. Everything that was planned had the sole purpose of getting seniors together to have one last hurrah, and that they did.

Senior month activities were anxiously awaited by the entire senior class, so once they got going, there was no stopping them. As time went on, senior spirit streaked to great heights. People came together and friendships were made between total strangers.

CLUB 90 GOES CARIBBEAN

"Celebrate good times, come on . . . it's a celebration!" Club 90 is an annual dance given by the senior class. It is known as the best dance of the year and is highly attended. This is the big senior fundraiser. The themes vary year to year. This year it was the Caribbean. Everyone in their Bermuda shorts or sundresses showed their enthusiasm. The cafeteria was decorated completely with a volcano spurting out lava and the raffled Scott, the 50 foot sea serpent made by three seniors Brian Muller, John Kehoe and Steve Gaughn. This dance sets the pace for senior spring events!

SENIOR BANQUET — Casual Fun

The Copley Plaza Grand Ballroom was the site of this year's Senior Banquet. The banquet is always built up over the years as a culmination of our high school years. Most people would think that describes graduation and it does, but in a different way.

The banquet is a time when only the seniors are together and can truly reminisce about the past four years. Once the buses arrived in Boston and everyone walked into the Ballroom, people became awestruck. The formal attire felt quite appropriate amidst the crystal chandeliers, mirrored doors and gilt edged walls and balconies encompassing the room.

The evening began with a lot of photo opportunities until dinner was ready to be served. That is when the pampering began. But things never did reach a very sophisticated mood since Jared, Steve, and the rest of their table enjoyed hooting at all the girls when they walked by.

After dinner came the truly poignant moments of the evening. Mickey Watkin's slide show, a glimpse of the video yearbook and some outstanding performances by class members nearly brought people to tears. A song that Alex Smith wrote about the Class of 1990 just for the occasion especially hit a soft spot in some hearts. But just when things started to get a bit "mushy," Drew Tripp and Tad Davidson decided to break the ice by slow dancing together across the dance floor.

When all business was done, the partying began. The D.J. let loose and so did the Class of 1990. It all ended with the song "Never Say Goodbye" and that is something everyone wishes could be true.

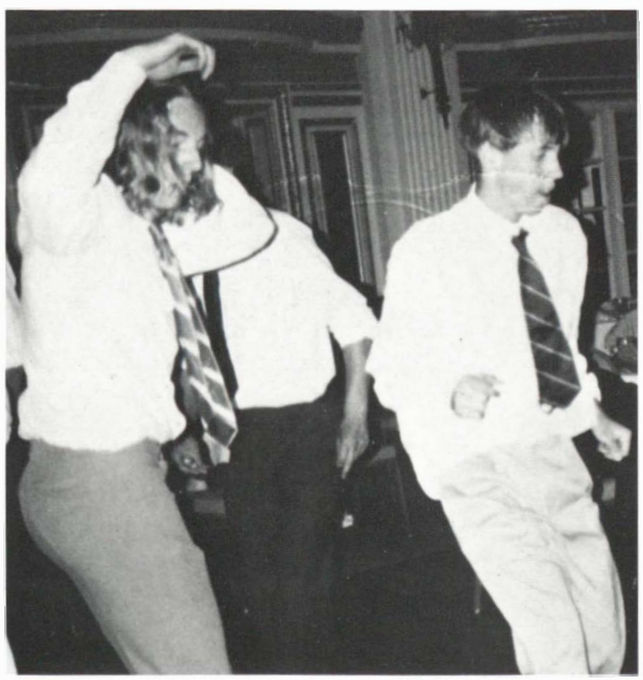

Howdy baby! (Sharon Kingsley, Marisa Kramer, Eleanor Kalejs)

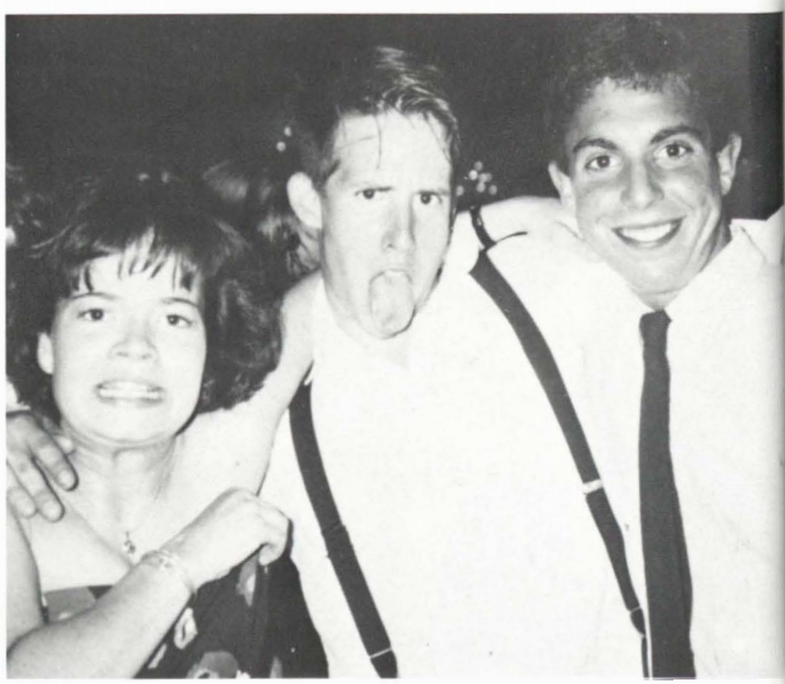

Smile, we're seniors. (Julie Bae, Emily Shea)

Shake, rattle and roll! (Andy Marston, Alex Halsey, John Faubert)

"Shake it up baby now!" (John Kehoe, Brian Mueller)

How ARE we feeling? (Jane Quinnan, Chip Janik, Jeremy Rosall)

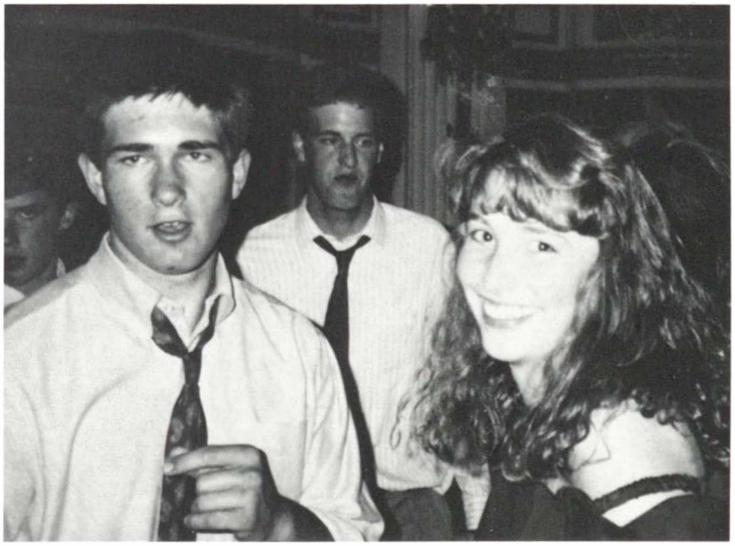

Hey! Hey! Hey! (Meridith Welch, Michelle Gobiel)

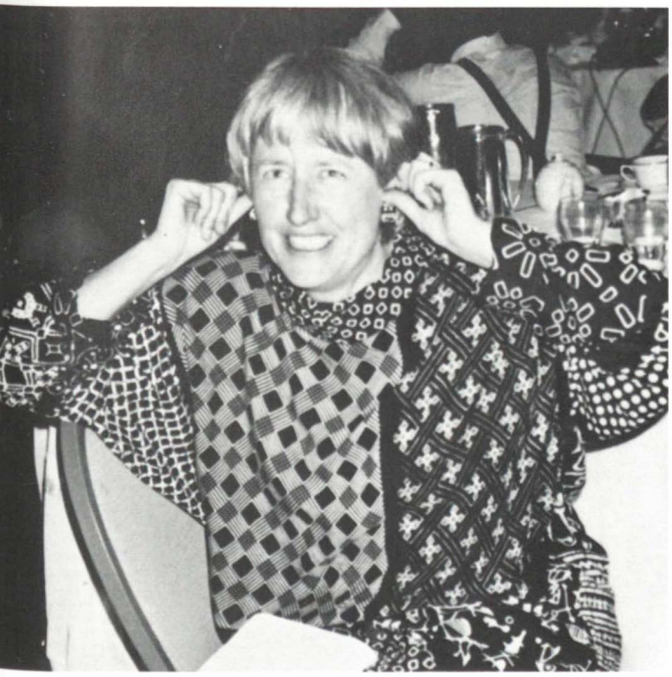

"Yes, she's my sister! Who are you?" (Ana Tejeda, Courtney Powers)

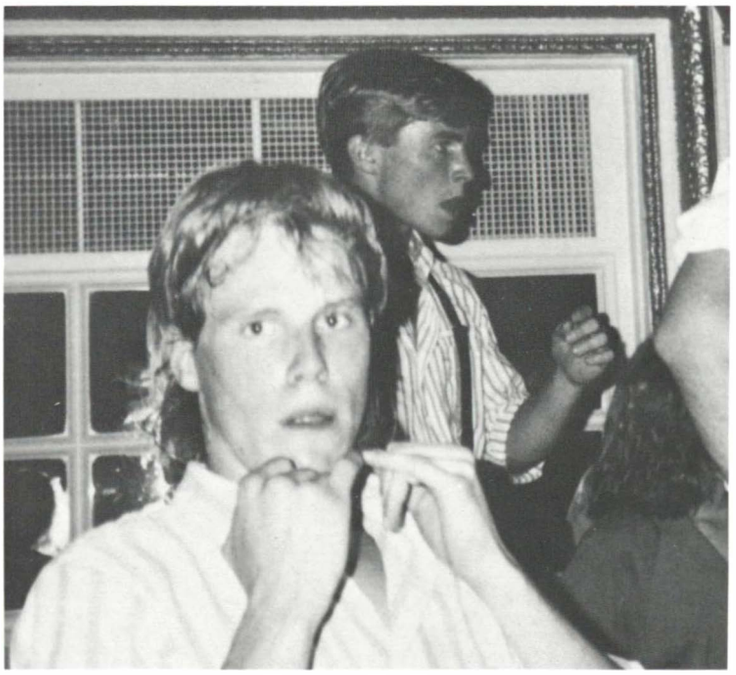

What's everyone looking at?

I don't know. (Dave Collard, Chris O'Brien, Pam Kunz)

This music is SO loud! (Mrs. Goddard)

Hey Jim, did you see a ghost?

SENIOR PROM

"This is one great limo." Jeremy Rosall, Amy Deloughrey)

The Senior Prom . . . so much can be associated with those words. On each of these pages a different meaning has found expression, so enjoy . . .

The mere words "Senior Prom" create a frenzy. "Where do I get a tux?" . . . "I need a new dress!" . . . "Date? I need a date?" Confusion is something that just comes with the prom; it isn't intended; it's just there. In the end everything always works out, but the beginning is always a nightmare. "Is it too soon to ask for a date?" . . . "Is it too late to ask for a date?" By the time the Senior Prom rolls around, most are experienced in the details of what to do and when to do it, but somehow the excited confusion always exists.

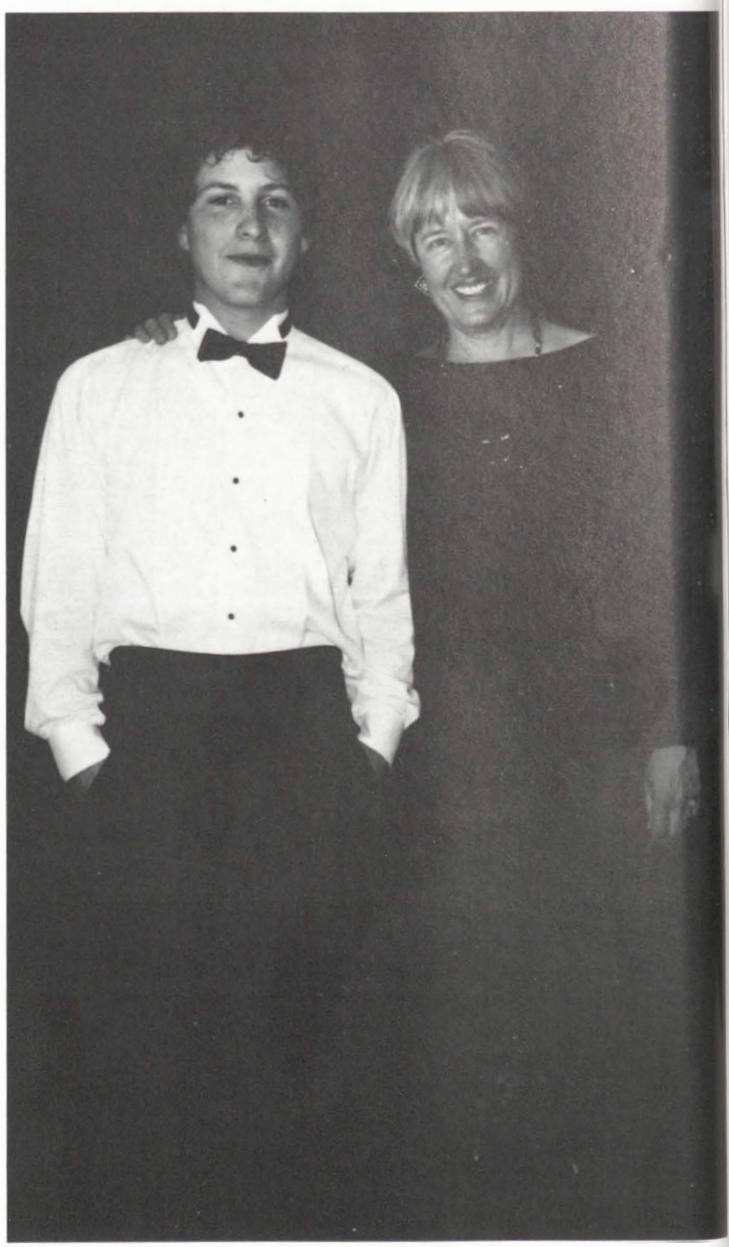

"Where should we eat dinner?" . . . "What time should we get to the prom?" Both of these questions are very important and must be addressed with the utmost care. A lot of planning is needed. It's about a split between eating out or at someone's house, but the arrival time is about the same, right before the doors close. Prom night is definitely famous for fashionably late attendants, and this year at the World Trade Center was no different. The milling around after arrival lasted only a short time and then as the pace picked up the seniors got down.

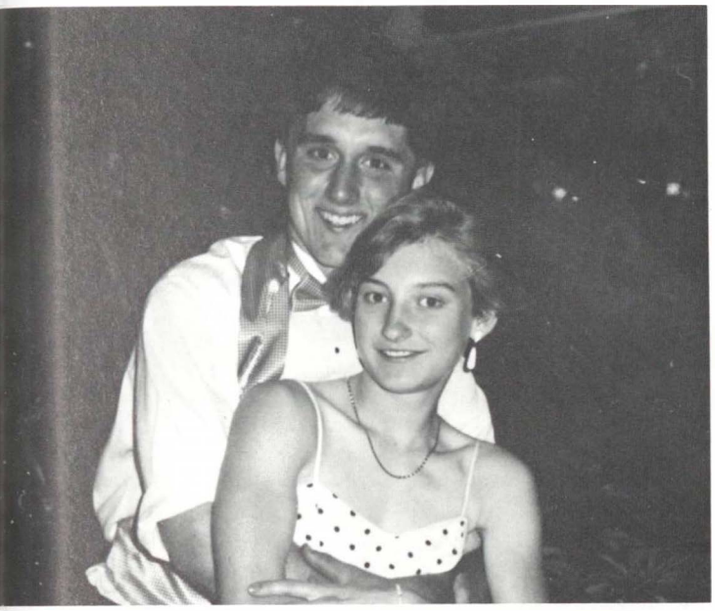

The Rock and Roll Legend, P. J. Aylward.

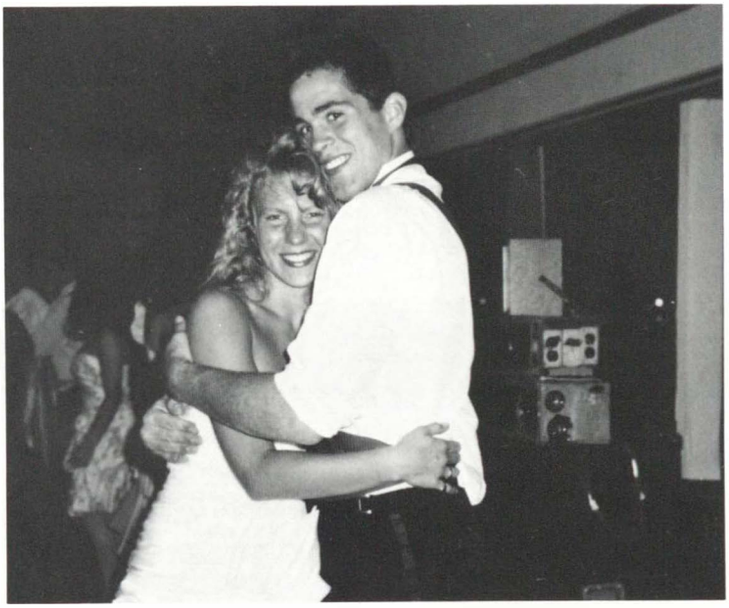

"I'm so excited!" (Marnie Green, Mrs. Prioleau, Conquista and date)

Opposites attract. (Jason Garfinkle, Mrs. Goddard)

Love, sweet love. (Greg Reidy, Jen Olsen)

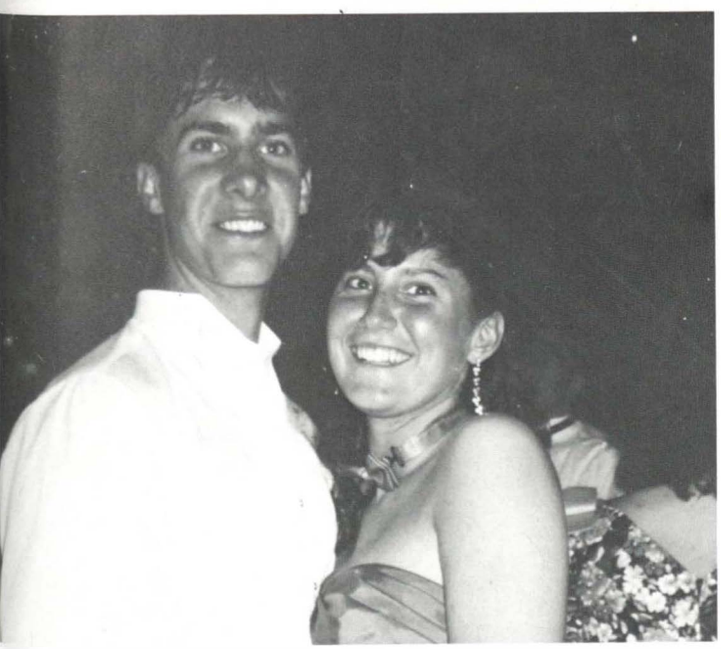

Get a little closer. (Elizabeth Clarkson, Mike Griggnafini)

The Scafattis

Would you care to dance? (THE D.J.)

Nice tie, Jill. (Chris Doorley, Jill Leahy)

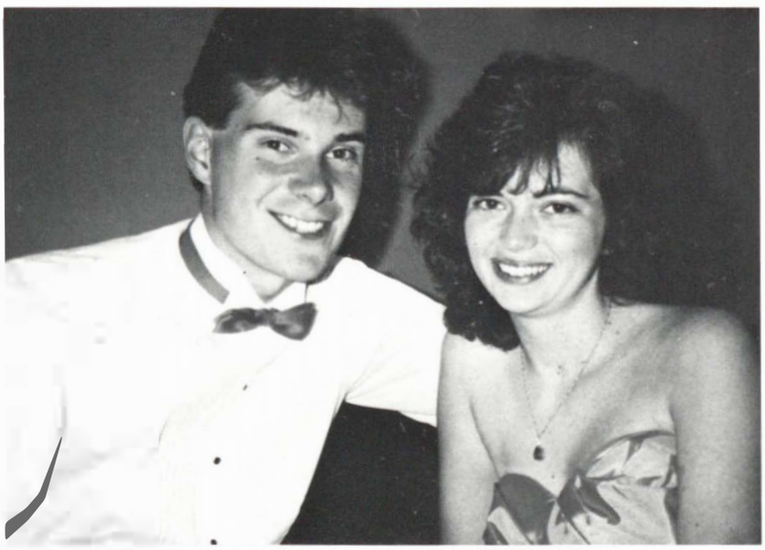

Oh, that's so cute. (Jess Mayer)

Dancing . . . now what's a prom without dancing? Well, it's not a prom. This year the Senior Class was treated to two modes of musical entertainment. For the first half of the prom a D.J. cranked out tunes while everyone danced with a view of the harbor. When he shut down, Second Guess popped up. Last year's senior band regrouped to give their old friends a night to remember. These two sources provided very different music, so it is safe to say that everyone at the prom heard the music they most wanted to hear.

Prom night is not only a time for old friends to get together but also a chance to meet new ones. Many people have boyfriends and girlfriends outside of Wellesley High School, and the prom serves as a place for others to meet them. This year there were many new faces all around, but that didn't stop the party. The new faces blended in with the old and no one felt uncomfortable, because it was expected. So, the Senior Prom is not only for seniors; it is for seniors and their friends. But one thing should be noted, a double standard did exist here. All the girls who brought someone new were admired but all the guys who brought sophomores . . . well, you get the point.

Hi mom! (Courtney Gelberman, Adam Trask)

Cherished moments. (Rob Tatro, Sharon Kingsley)

What are you all looking at? (T. Garner, C. Kelton, J. Markell, M. Gobiel, J. Duncan, K. Roberts)

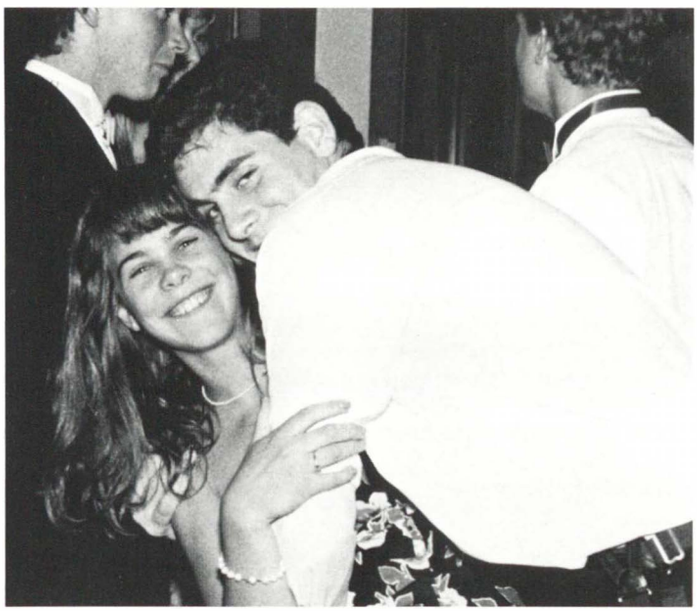

Ready to go. (Wally Bastis, Sue MacDonald)

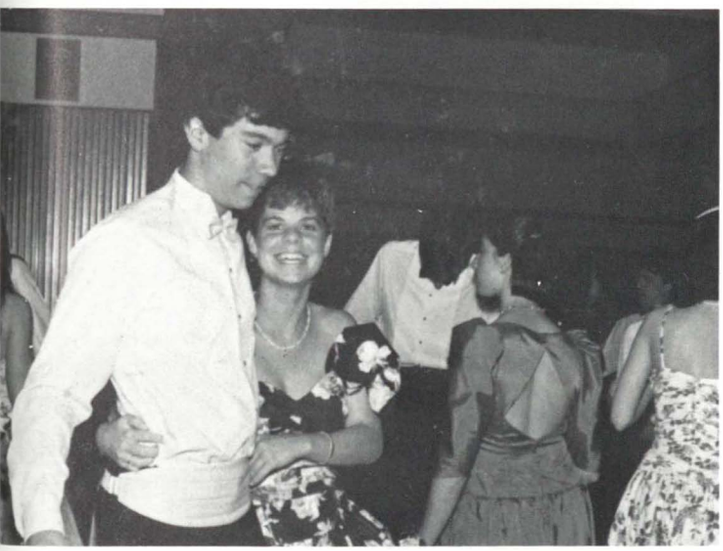

Pictures, pictures, pictures (Eleanor Kalejs, Francis Twarg, Adriel Kramer, Marisa Kramer)

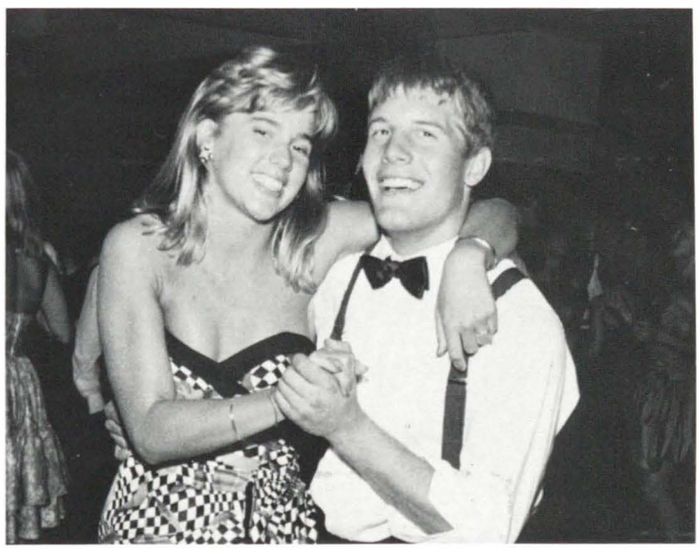

Give me a hug! (Chrissy Cussen, Brooks Medoff, Emily Scattergood)

It's Michelle and Joey!

"Put your left foot in . . ." (Kristen Downes and Andy Leichester)

Say CHEESE! (Amy Patterson and Paul Celi)

What a happy crowd! (E. Hughes, K. Donahue, S. Olsen, M. Gobiel, T. Harwood, M. Watkins)

GRADUATION

How sweet it was! Graduation. This was the moment when the Class of 1990 left their high school lives behind them and became freshmen once again . . . oh, excuse me . . . first year undergraduates. Walking in caps and gowns over to the field for the commencement sent a surge of emotions through every senior's body; no one knew whether to laugh or cry.

Getting the diploma was something that everyone had waited eighteen years for; it was hard to believe that THIS WAS IT!

When the names were read, everyone held their breath until they stepped off the stage, diploma in hand . . . anything could happen. Kelly Brooks was the first with a dramatic get-away; she jumped and screamed making it quite obvious this girl was happy. Then came Nancy Dow; no one could top her cartwheel and throwing of confetti. But perhaps the best was Gary Larkin who showed the graduates that their worst nightmare, tripping on the stage, could be funny. He fumbled and tripped on purpose which some people would argue was a telling commentary.

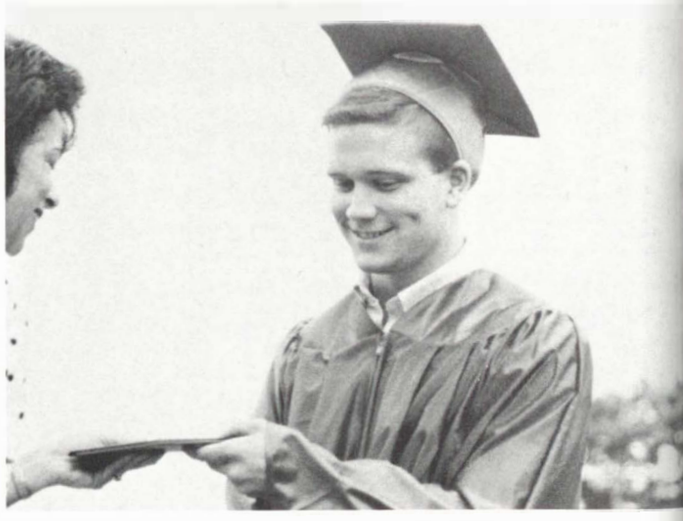

When it all came to an end, and J. Garf in his beret lit up a cigar, along with many other members of the class, joy was all that existed. The caps and tassels went flying and graduates screeched and ran to hug their closest friends. A mob was created on the football field, everyone hugging everyone, and tears running down people's faces. It all lasted for about fifteen or twenty minutes before people went to find their families and be with them until the All Night Party rolled around.

Gee thanks! (Matt Babcock)

"I did it." (Vicky Crawshaw)

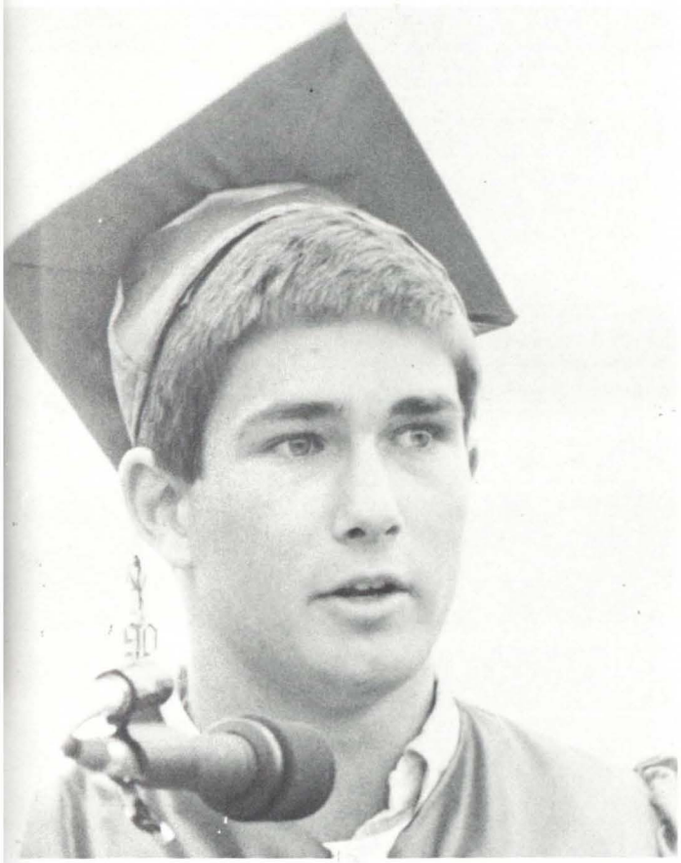

"I hope I don't trip." (Wally Bastis)

All Night Party

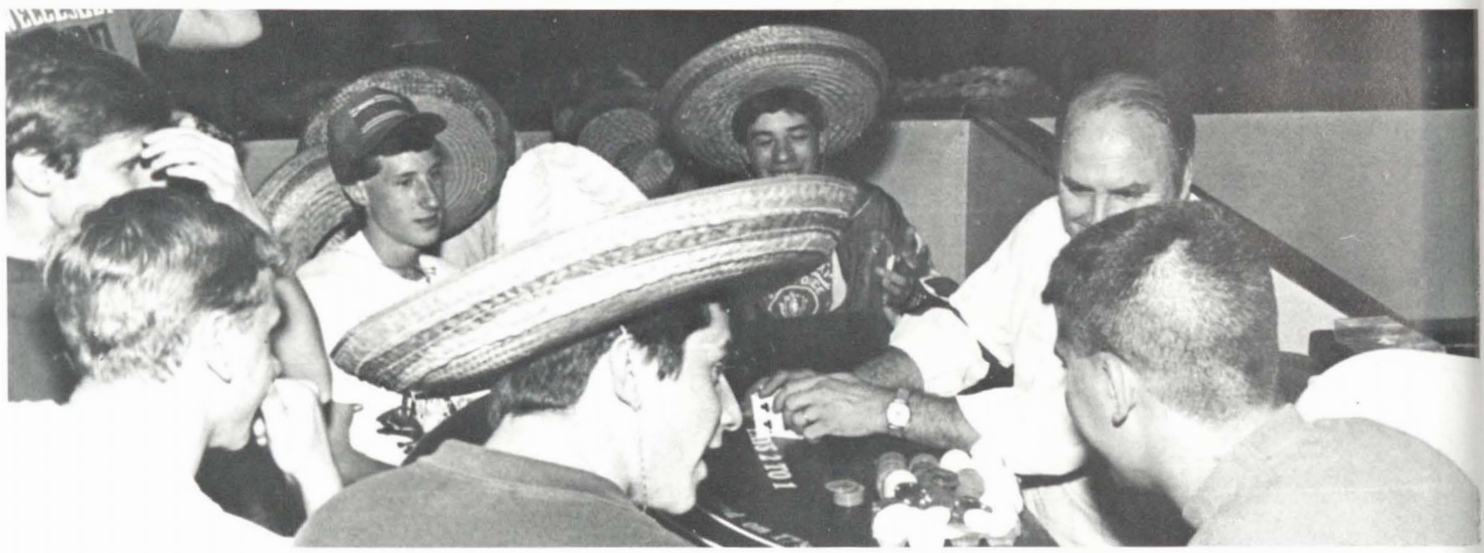

"Peek a Boo, we see you!" (Mike Grignaffini, Elizabeth Clarkson)

When asked whether to Fiesta or Siesta, the Senior Class screamed, "Fiesta!" This year's All Night Party was a Mexican Fiesta. The parents of the Class of 1990 transformed the high school into a small Mexican town and everywhere you looked there was something to do.

They supplied a gambling casino on the mez where people could play blackjack and roulette. There was also someone who made balloon hats and animals for everyone and even a place to get a caricature or a temporary tattoo. As the students wandered about, trying everything, parents took Polaroid pictures of the festivities and people dressed up in front of the hacienda. Everything was free so everyone there took advantage of it.

Dancing was provided. Just as at the Senior Prom there were two modes of entertainment available for the graduates. A band played first, supplying a real Mexican flavor, but after an hour or so the stage was turned over to the D.J.

However, the music was not nonstop, every half-hour things came to a halt and door prizes were awarded. Many stores from around town had donated food and prizes. "Everyone's a winner here at All Night Party!"

"Julius, seize her? Don't let Mrs. Fraylick get away." Englishland just won't be the same without the piercing blue eyes of this diminutive woman of stature. May she enjoy an Odyssey through Europe where she can realize all her Great Expectations.

The department, under the direction of Mr. Goddard, will undergo more transition next year as it reorganizes to serve a smaller population. Instead of the literature being separated into individual elective courses for juniors and seniors, it will be interspersed in year-long courses. The Humanities program will remain as an elective, back by popular demand, and the newly instituted and highly acclaimed writing lab will continue to serve students and teachers across the disciplines.

With the changes going on in our world, being able to understand and converse in different languages becomes more important every day. The staff here, under the chairmanship of Mr. Haggerty, clearly intends to see that we are ready to meet the challenge.

Whether it's touring the Monet exhibit, celebrating the Bicentennial of the French Revolution, or participating in a cultural exchange by letter or modem, the foreign language students receive a sense of history and sociology as well as grammar. No wonder nearly all WHS students take at least two years of a second language. The choices range from French, Spanish, and German to even Greek. The teachers range from effervescent and bubbly to loving but strict. Senor Droney's exuberant voice booms Spanish "bingo" down the hall while Mr. Esposito, with his penchant for punctuality, presided over a quiet Latin domain, unless he's leading his class in Latin's song, "Adeste Fidelis" — Etudiez les langues!

There are those who enjoy the exact science of math and the challenge of fitting together the pieces of an equation. Their aspirations might include someday accomplishing a major engineering feat —— or even balancing the sad Massachusetts budget.

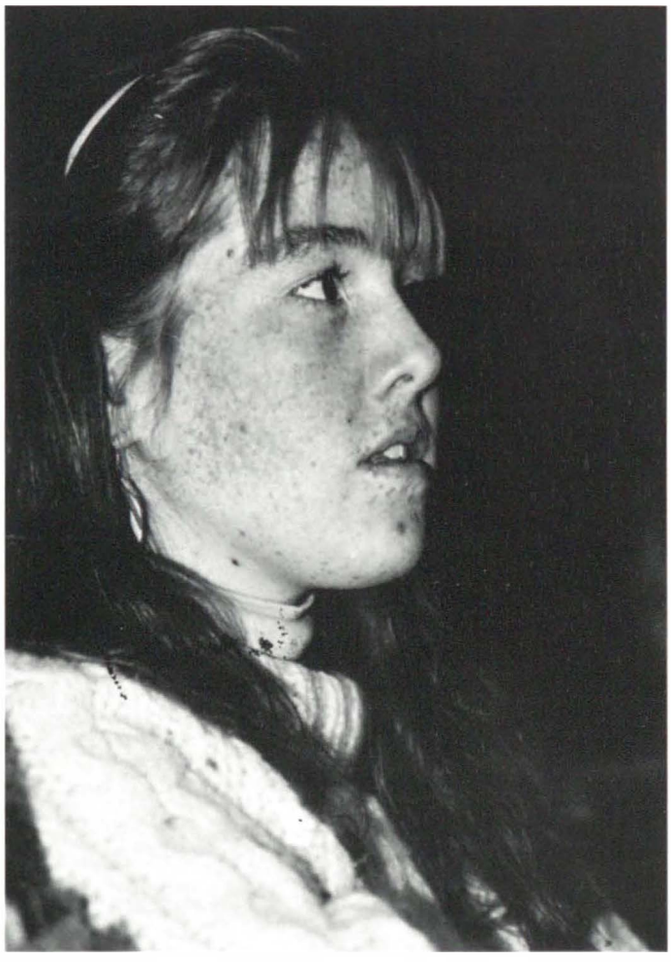

Along with the geometry geniuses and the algebra elite are a few remaining individuals who would rather be napping or watching the wall come down in Germany. Mix us all together and we survive with the humor of our great Math teachers like tidy Mr. Spur with his cleanliness, and Mr. Levin with his food.

Mr. Sullivan is the driving force of the math team. The members compete against other schools in the hopes of attaining a state championship. The team practices regularly on Tuesday afternoons with Mr. Sullivan, who demands complete commitment from the members and believes in reward coming from hard work.

Students involved in the Science Olympiad have learned that science really can be fun. They compete in five monthly meets against other schools in the Western Suburban Science League over the year. At each meet there are three different events. Each event involves some sort of hands on project, or creative problem solving. Usually about two weeks before a meet the team will get together after school to prepare for their next competition. At the end of the year a state meet is held. Forty schools compete and there are twenty events. This year our Science Olympiad team was very successful. They came in fourth in the state overall.

The science fair gives students the opportunity to compete against each other, while exploring their particular areas of interest. This fair, held each March, is a popular event. One hundred students mainly from biology and chemistry classes participated in it this year. The winners went onto a regional fair in Bridgewater and two continued on to the State Science Fair at MIT.

The Social Studies Department, headed by Mr. Whitbeck, developed a new exchange program last spring when ten students from his Soviet Union class went to Leningrad and the host students came to Wellesley in the fall. The department has even taken on the challenge of making a Russian language course outside of school available to students. The world is a changing place with a quickening pace and Mr. Whitbeck is trying to meet that.

Budget cuts presented the fear that some electives might not be offered next year. When 75 students vied for the 30 available slots in the Humanities program, and parents of juniors made repeated calls to the school committee, this senior elective was saved. The teachers of the course, Mr. Murphy and Mrs. Goddard, attribute its popularity to the material offered. The class covers both contemporary American history and literature. Of course, the fact that the teaching duo makes the class fun and informative at the same time doesn't hurt. Students claim they are in a basic state of depression when this course doesn't meet.

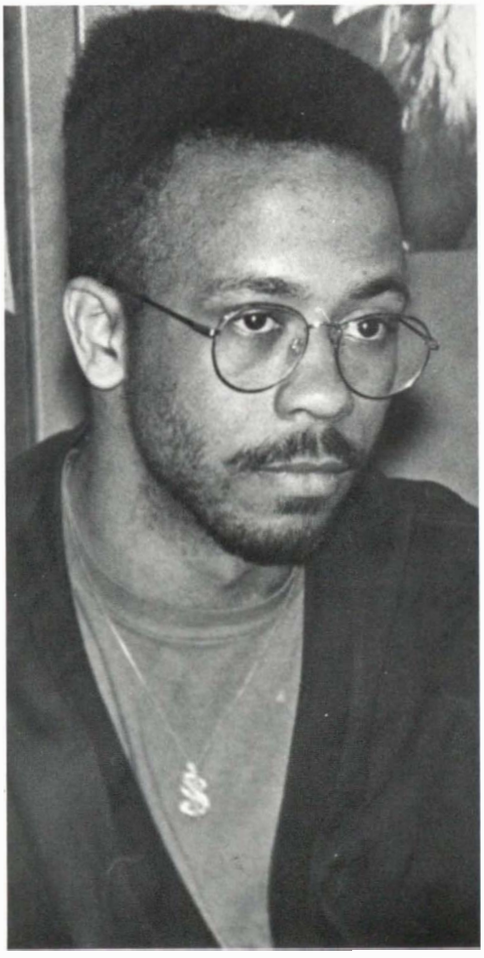

Mr. Murphy and Mr. Whitbeck exchange ideas.

Under the direction of Carol Devendorf, the combined choruses sang their hearts out at concerts and other school functions. The Brooks Brothers entertained the eighth graders before this year's Step Up Concert which served to acquaint next year's freshmen with the high school. With the Song Sisters, Brooks Brothers and the standard chorus together, the sound was truly impressive as it was during their final tribute to the seniors at graduation.

The instrumental department will suffer a great loss next year because of Mr. Davis's retirement. The direction of the orchestra, jazz ensemble and symphonic band will be turned over to someone new. The students who had the "Big D" know what a loss his leaving is. He brought people together musically and socially. The trip to Florida and New York this year brought much joy and excitement to our musicians.

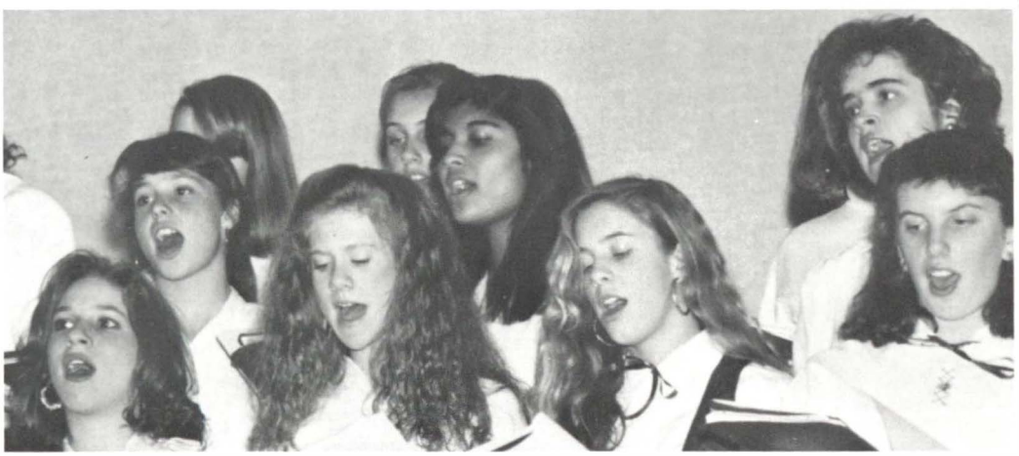

"Quick, turn the page."

"We'll miss you, Mr. D."

"Get the dummy out of the closet." Although this may not sound like a typical physical education class, CPR and AIDS education are part of the health requirement for gym. Of course, the standard fare is offered as well. In winter one of the most popular activities is floor hockey. It can get rough, but in general, it is a great deal of fun and certainly preferable to the required mile run.

Spring brings volleyball, razzle-dazzle football, and more great times, all in the name of physical fitness.

The library, which is well equipped with materials for research, is also a very comfortable and attractive place to socialize. The ever vigilant librarians try to hush the gossips and help the harried, but some students are just more productive than others during their free periods.

However, at thesis time or when a project is due, we are very grateful for the constantly updated resources, the helpfulness and guidance of the librarians, and the general peacefulness which is, we must admit, conducive to helping us keep up a strong academic pace.

The avant-garde business department, under the direction of Miss Copell, introduces students to the intricacies of the business world as well as some very practical lifelong skills. Miss Hickey and Mr. Shaw give students a taste of several fields of business such as store management, business administration, computer applications and accounting.

In the Business Administration class, a GTE business consultant visits once a week in conjunction with the school/business partnership. The students of the Accounting class set up computerized systems for firms in town and they also learn how to prepare tax returns so their parents don't have to go through that process.

Our annual WHS exchanges started with twenty-one WHS students enjoying a three week stay in Munich, a week in West Berlin, a day in East Berlin and a weekend climbing in the Alps. As those students look back on that incredible time, it has special meaning since they were the last group to experience a separated East and West Germany and the dramatic differences in the culture of the two.

The WHS students who went to the USSR had an equally exciting time in Leningrad, Moscow, and Novgorod. This was a special visit for all of the students because the Baltic Republic of Lithuania had declared independence from the USSR, and the group had an opportunity to discuss this important issue, with their Soviet peers.

While no trip was made to France, we were visited by a group from a town outside Paris. In the spring, Mrs. Grodberg accompanied students to Costa Rica where they lived with families, and attended the Licco Laboratorio at the University of Costa Rica.

All of the travelers agreed the exchange experience was invaluable!

GUIDANCE
Managing Our Maneuvers

Smile, you're on candid camera! (Mr. Whelehan)

Through course selection forms, recommendations, and applying to colleges, guidance counselors play a very supportive and active role. Guidance counselors welcome us as freshmen to Wellesley High School and inform us of school activities and suggest courses that we should take. The following year sophomore group guidance students began analyzing themselves, finding their interests and special talents, and having the opportunity to question the next few crucial years. Junior year, when students start to search for college or career placement, guidance counselors become confidants as well as advisors. They work very closely with the seniors helping them with applications to college and standardized testing forms. We feel very privileged to have Mr. Whelehan, Mrs. Gulrich, Mr. Duggan, Mr. Edwards, Mr. Touhey and Ms. O'Byrne to help guide us through our high school years.

DEVELOPING IN

"What were your first impressions of WHS?" We asked this question to a diverse group of staff members and here are some of their responses.

Faculty Senate President Marlies Steuart said, "I wanted to teach here so badly . . . I liked what was happening here academically and wanted to become a part of it." The Faculty Senate consists of elected teachers who try to advocate for the concerns of the teachers at Wellesley High School.

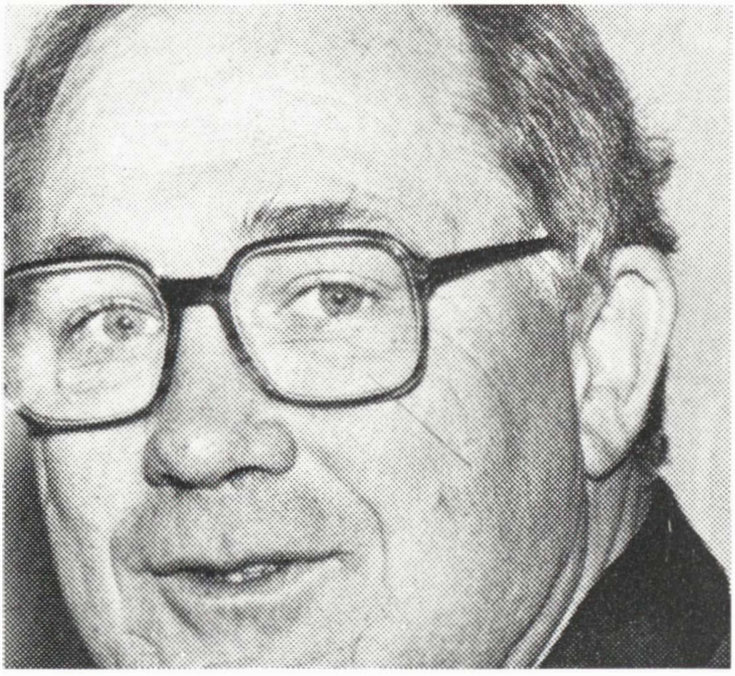

School nurse, Gail Albertini, described her first week at WHS as "exciting." Formerly working as a head nurse at a women's prison in Framingham, she thought she had seen it all in terms of interesting experiences and people. Now, after being at WHS for seven years with part of that time working on annual mini-health fairs and currently serving as SADD's faculty advisor, she is more comfortable in the WHS community and enjoys her work.

DIVERSE DIRECTIONS

"... white — I felt like a chocolate chip cookie in a glass of milk," responded ABC senior Omayra Marrero.

Liliana Lopez, another ABC senior, answered, "I was really scared." You might respond in a similar manner if your ethnic group was a minority in the school you attend and your friends and family were back in your home state. In spite of the separation from family and friends during the school year, all of the girls in the ABC (A Better Chance) program feel that the academic, social and cultural experiences they have gained by their participation were worth the sacrifice. ABC provides minority high school students nationwide with the chance to get a better education than the one they might have received in their own public school system. Liliana has even decided to remain in town another four years — while she attends Wellesley College.

The METCO (Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity) program shares similar goals, except all of the students commute daily from Boston and some have been in the Wellesley Public School System since kindergarten. METCO senior Daneen Jackson said, "I began my participation in the Wellesley METCO program at the age of five; I have grown up within the corridors, classrooms, hallways, playgrounds and schools of this community. The experience felt normal to me and I adjusted well ... the METCO program has kept Wellesley from being isolated from the city of Boston; (it) built a bridge through children ... I have learned to relate clearly and confidently with people of different races, and I feel that they have learned to communicate with me."

LUNCH SERVICES
Fuel for the Future

There's no doubt about it! The cafeteria food is definitely improving, even if it hasn't made it to a four star rating. The new "Deli Works" is a hit! Students in utter surprise are raving. "This is actually good!" Not only is the quality improving, but the options are too. Now students can choose between a nutritious hot or cold lunch. The lunch services employees have even tried to keep the lines more orderly and efficient, and heaven knows, that's hard to do with clamoring, hungry students who have a short lunch break.

What would we do without our friendly and reliable custodians? They are always there to help clean up after us with our not-so-tidy habits and they take care of any emergencies or accidents.

"What is the most unusual job you have ever been called to do?" I asked Mr. Novicki, the Head Custodian.

JUNIOR PROM

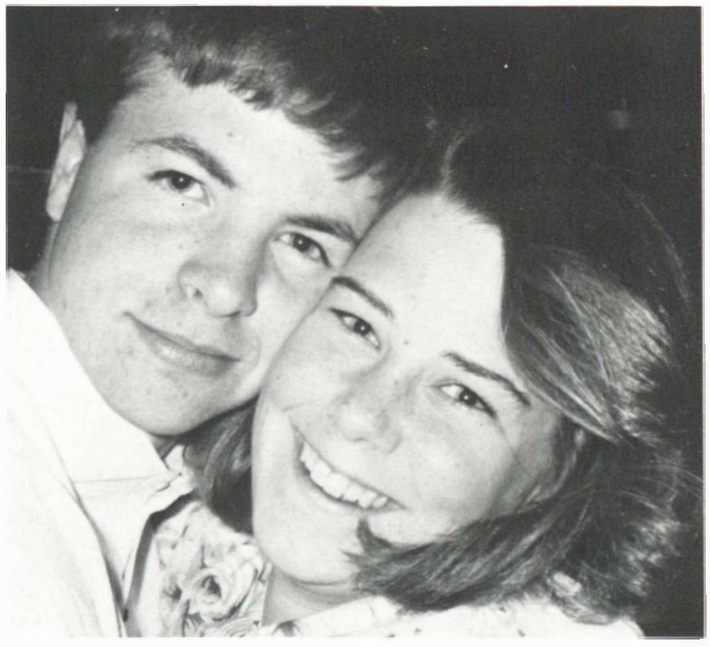

Alethea Hanneman and Christina Sierra

This year the Junior Prom was held at the Natick Hilton. The junior class had their first experience with "prom mania" and have prepared themselves well for next year. Music was provided by a D.J. and everyone took full advantage of it. Among all the dancing juniors were some seniors who made the night quite funny. Brian Casey brought Emily Wiener and it was lucky for her that Joey Markell had brought Michelle Gobiel because if he hadn't, Emily might have walked around half naked all evening. Even though many seniors were invited, those that weren't volunteered to be chauffeurs for the juniors. All in all, the night turned out to be grand and one that no one will ever forget.

BOYS' SOCCER

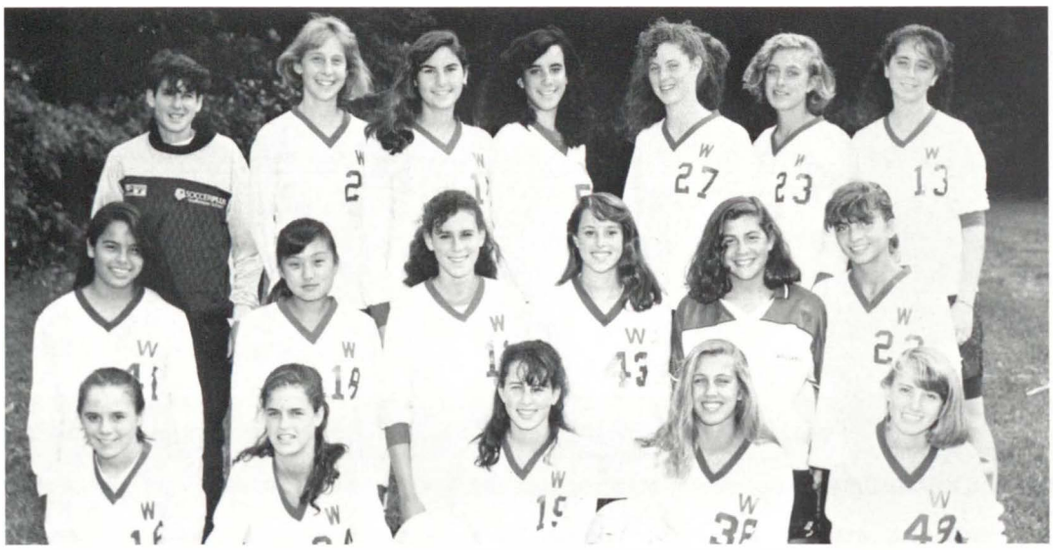

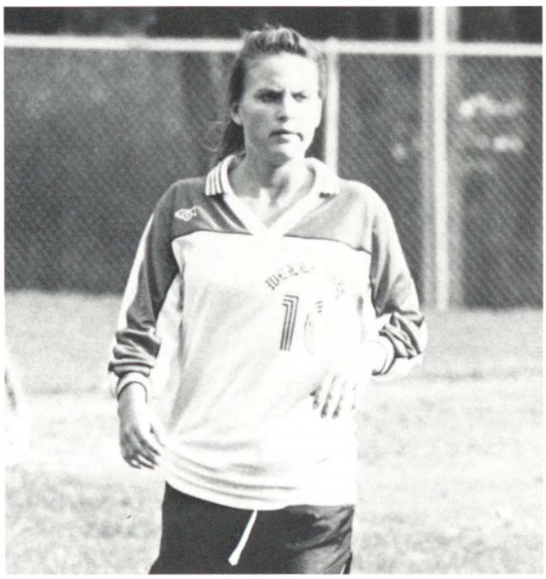

The 1989 Boys' Soccer team rekindled the age old tradition of quality Wellesley soccer. Many spectators, as well as the players themselves, considered this group one of the best teams in the state. The squad, made up of a mixture of youth and age, jelled into a unit quickly, resulting in an undefeated first half of the season. The team went on to finish second in the Bay State League, and continued on to win the Division II South Sectional Championship. Although the disheartening but exciting loss to Framingham North in the Eastern Massachusetts Finals ended the team's championship hopes, the pride, effort, and community spirit of the team will be remembered always.

Girls' Soccer

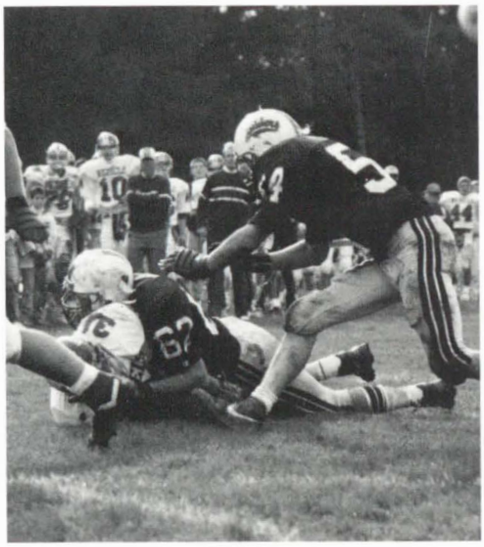

Due to the desire to win in many tight matches, the Wellesley women of soccer had an outstanding season with a final record of 14-3-1. The Raiders highlighted the season with two victories over Bay State League champion Needham. Upon destroying Dedham 5-0, Wellesley earned its 200th victory in girls' soccer. The Raiders' best efforts were displayed in the heartbreaking loss to Newton North in seven overtimes. Although Wellesley came up on the losing end of this three hour battle, the winning attitude and outstanding play in this match represented what a truly spectacular season it was.

Football

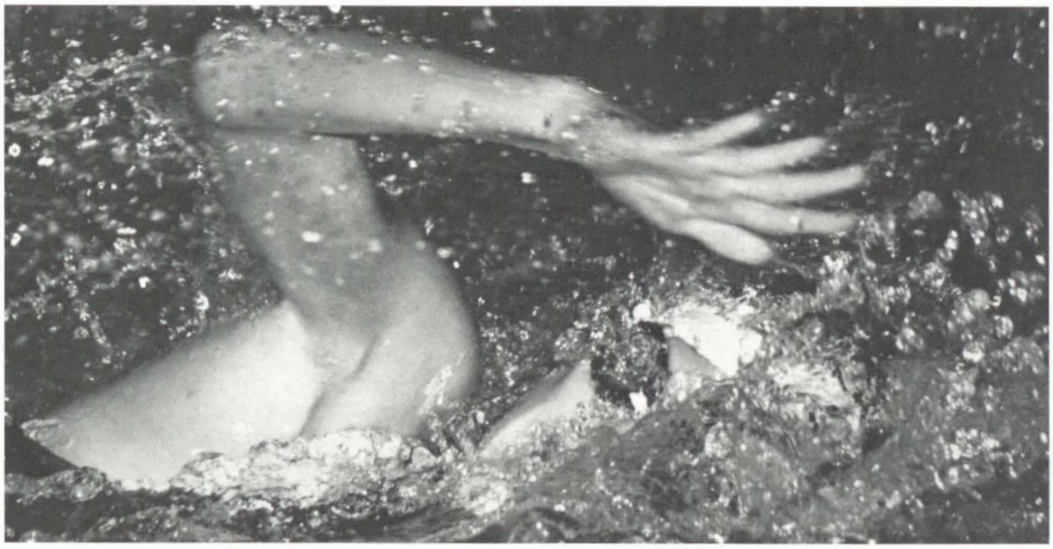

The men in uniform for 1989 ran their way to an impressive 9-1 record and finished fifth in the state behind running backs Tory White and Okeru Mitchell, as well as punter Aaron Chaisson. The two ball carriers rushed for over 1000 yards each, and White was selected as a Boston Globe All-Scholastic. The varsity Raiders registered multiple shutouts and dominated their opponents on both sides of the football. The Division I All-Star "Finger" led the swarming defense in terrorizing opposing backfields. The squad finished the season with a 35-0 slaughtering of rival Needham, and missed the Super Bowl by just one game, a 10-0 loss to powerhouse Walpole. Through the efforts of both the players and the coaching staff, Head Coach Andrew J. Levin was recognized as the Division I Coach of the Year. The 1989 football season will be remembered as one of hard work, dedication, and most of all, PRIDE!

"What you have done for the school, the town, and for ourselves is tremendous. It's the best thing that has happened to this town in twenty years." — Coach Levin 11/11/89

Girls' Swimming

The girls' swimming team faced a challenge this year with the loss of the seniors from the class of 1989 and their coach of ten years, Rick Echlov. Led by two great new coaches, Billy Sullivan and Pam Kuong, the team met the challenge and dominated the state for the second straight year, due to talent and hard work. The team was further supported by the leadership of tri-captains Chrissy Cussen, Erika Hughes, and Amy Patterson, as well as the enthusiasm of all 44 swimmers and divers. En route to the state championship, the team conquered the Bay State League title and the South Sectional championship. Amy Patterson, Britt Greineder, Martina Moore, and Margaret Rieley were named Boston Globe All-Scholastics. The team will miss its seniors but is looking forward to another successful season.

Cross-Country

Although the 1989 Cross-Country team finished the season with a record of 2-7, the future looks bright for the men in Spandex'. The Raiders lost five of their seven varsity members of the 1988 season to graduation, as well as junior Craig Morrison to injury. Coach Bowman and senior captains Matt Babcock and Brian Muller were forced to lead a squad comprised mainly of freshmen into their fierce competition of the Bay State League. As expected, senior superstar Babcock placed first in every meet. However, as the season progressed, Bab received some much needed assistance from the dynamic duo of Chris Reese and Andy Mulkerin, who helped to keep every meet close, and every spectator on the edge of his seat. Babcock finished among the top eight runners in the conference, and was named a league all-star. With the return of Morrison, the team is looking to climb back up among the leaders of the Bay State League where they belong.

GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL

The Girls' Volleyball Team had a winning season this year as they grabbed fourth place in the league and made it through the tournament to the semi-finals. Their captain, Lisa Moore, led the team with an enthusiasm that was appreciated by all of the team members. Other star players on the team were Amy Fitzgibbons and Emma Hurley. Lisa, Amy, and Emma were All Star players and all three played extremely well. The outstanding triumph of the team was due not only to the skillfulness of the players and the support given by their terrific coach, Mr. Toffling, but also the tight bond that had formed among the players. Mr. Toffling has great hopes for next year's team and believes that they will make it all the way.

BOYS'S VOLLEYBALL

Head and shoulders above the competition! You can certainly say that about "Demi-God" Matt Godrick who stands six feet eight inches tall. When you combine that with speed and athleticism and realize the man is only a junior, it bodes well for Wellesley volleyball. In fact, a national magazine predicts that Wellesley will be one of the top teams in the state.

This season started off slowly but gained momentum as the team almost beat the best team in the league which remained undefeated for the season.

This is only Coach Petty's second year with the team and he is happy to report that his marriage is still intact even though in the last game of the season Wellesley trounced (15-1, 15-2) the Needham team coached by his wife.

CHEERLEADING

Wellesley High School is fortunate to be able to offer to its students both Fall and Winter Cheerleading as a varsity sport. The Fall Squad, coached by Nancy MacDonald, led our Raiders football team through a very successful season.

During the winter season, the Raider Basketball team, listening to the cheers of Marcia Ritter's Winter Cheerleading Squad, raced up and down the court to certain victory. Each squad also entered into Cheerleading Competition with Bay State League Cheerleaders from surrounding communities. Through hard work and loud voices, the Raider Cheerleaders brought a sense of pride to Wellesley High School and the coaches.

BOYS' BASKETBALL

Despite their intense efforts, the boys' basketball team was able to salvage only seven wins out of eighteen attempts. The boards were dominated by forward Adam "Adrock" Rosser, while the outside shot was more than perfected by the ever so deadly Greg "Egger" Reidy. Anytime the team was in need of a quick three points, the Egger was the man to turn to. Point guard Lincoln Peart led the Raiders in assists.

When one thinks of defense, C. D. comes to mind. Senior Chris Doorley was the main man of the Raider "D." Chris O'Brien, the very reliable sixth man, was always there when the starting five weren't doing their job. The Raiders always knew that they could count on Chris when the chips were down.

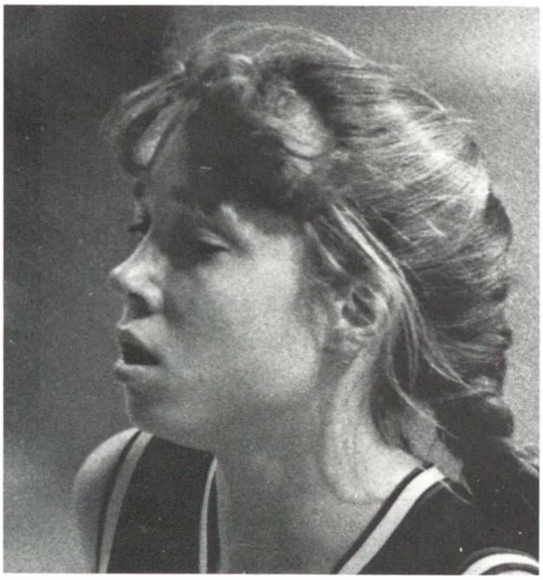

Most people might be willing to bet on a very dismal season to come since the team is losing MVP Adam Rosser, as well as the other five SENIORS. However, Wellesley's future looks bright! With five returning juniors and sophomore Larry Kahn to lead the team, 1991 should be a prosperous season. Good luck!

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

Surprising many people, what was thought to be a "rebuilding year," turned into yet another successful Wellesley High season. Led by seniors Karen Donahue, Stephanie Olsen, and Lisa Moore, the Raiders boasted an 18-4 record, and advanced to the Sectional finals before falling to the eventual State Champions, Bridgewater-Raynham. The season had many highlights, but nothing could compare to beating the number 1 seed, Brockton by 2 points in the Sectional semi-finals.

The winning won't stop here, for next year's squad will be led by returning starters, Emma Hurley and Lynn Cloonan. (A.K.A. "Twin Towers")

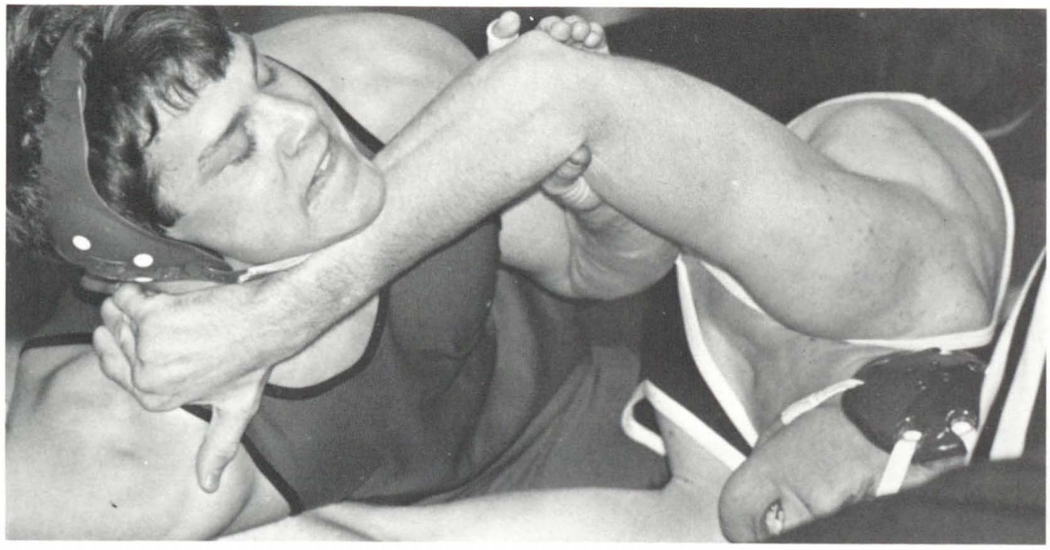

Bay State League All-star honors went to Karen Donahue and Lynn Cloonan.

This season marks the end of Coach Donald Fay's stay at Wellesley High. Best of luck to Coach Fay and thanks for a great five years.

WRESTLING

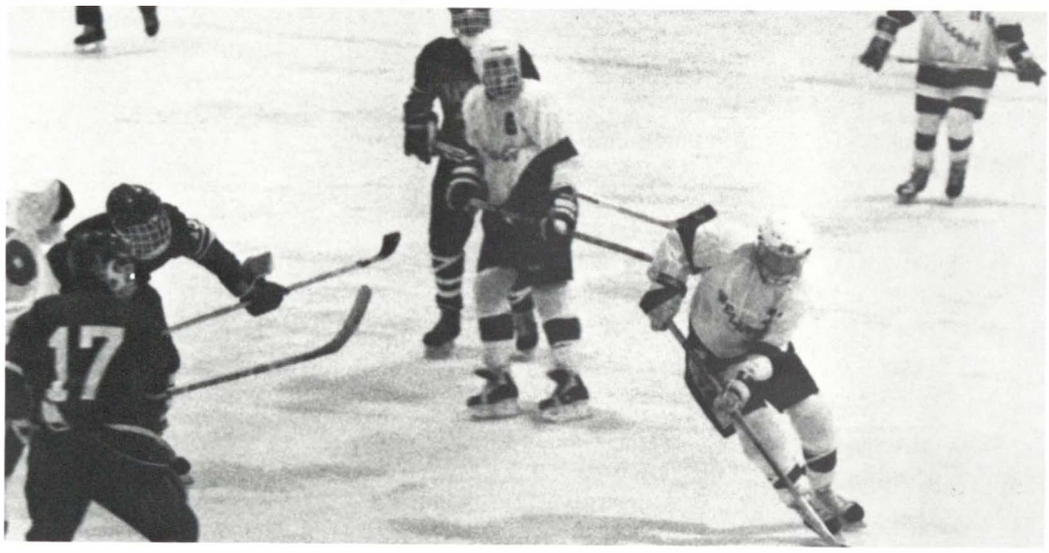

Due to the off target predictions of various outside coaches before the season started, many teams were taken by surprise by the all-around strength of the Red Raider line-up this winter. Balanced by experienced heavy weights and young lighter weights, this year's wrestling squad lived up to Wellesley's tradition of leadership in the evenly matched Bay State League.

As the team cruised through the season, beating league rivals soundly in dual meets (final record 11-5), individual wrestlers also found success just as sweet. Tri-Captains Paul Celi, Mike Grignaffini and Tad Davidson chalked up consistent victories throughout the season at 152, 160 and 171 lbs. respectively. This "1-2-3 punch" at these successive weights classes often provided the necessary points to secure wins late in the match.

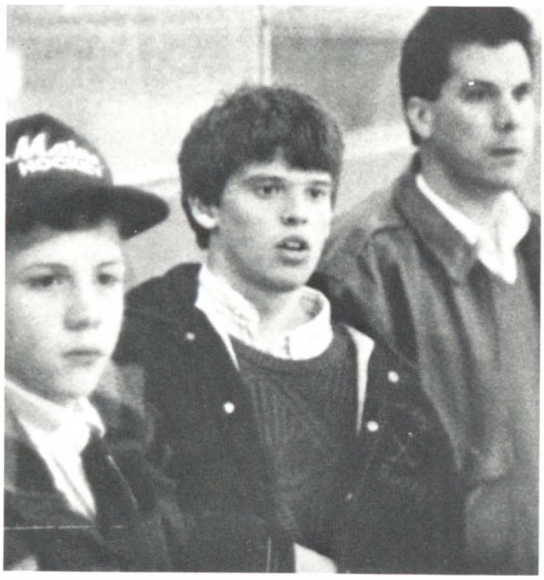

Due to an unfortunate event, Wellesley had to forfeit their match to Natick, costing the squad the co-championship the following week when they were to face the first place team. Going down to wrestle in Norwood's packed gym, the Red Raiders were able to hand the Mustangs their first B.S.L. defeat of the season, thus proving to the rest of the league that their rightful place was at the top.

HOCKEY

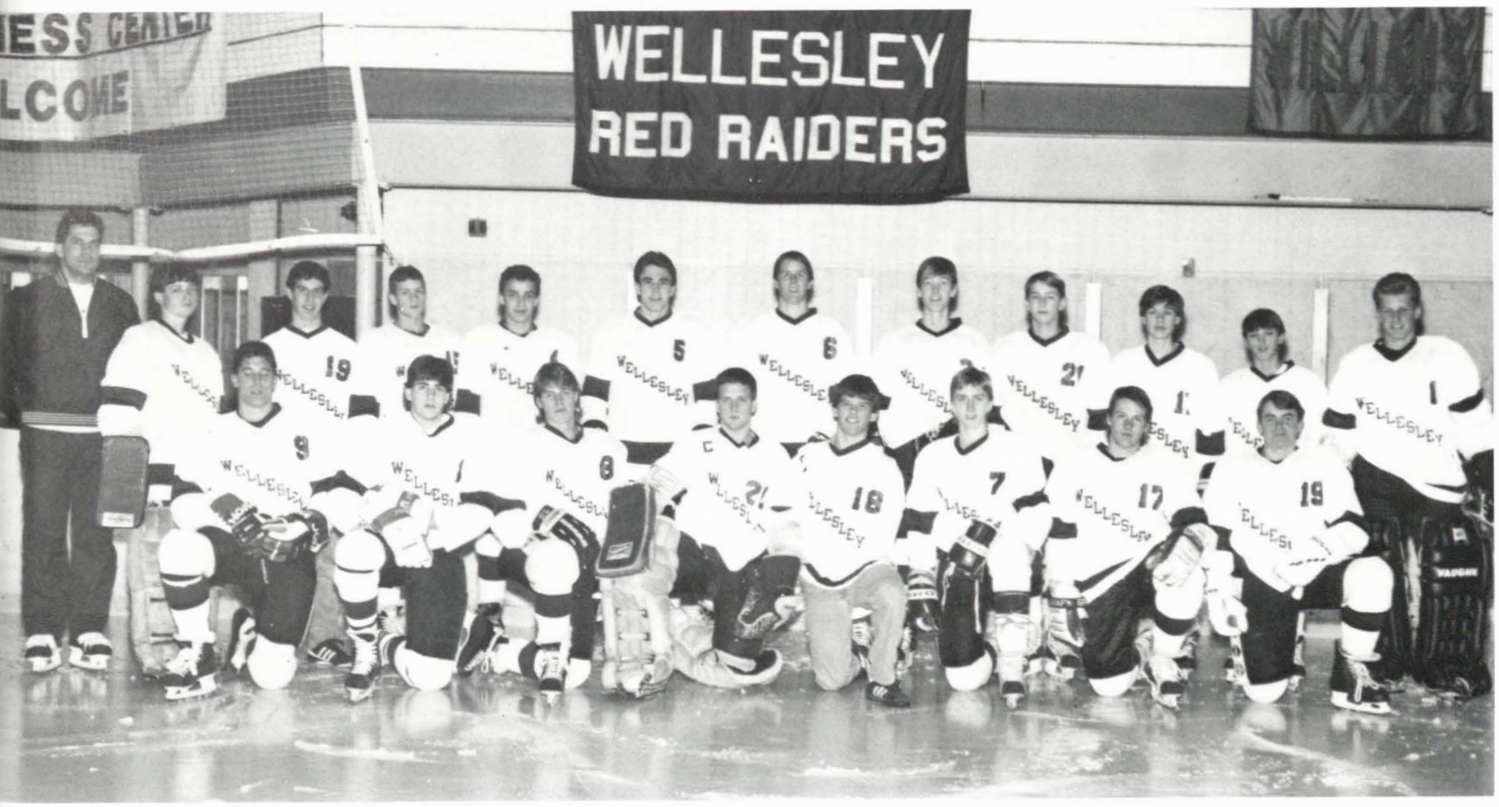

Despite posting another winless record, the hockey team had many bright spots in the '89-'90 campaign. Most of the kids on the team enjoyed playing and the younger skaters look forward to next season. Sophomore Mac Hay is a standout underclassmen along with All-Star freshman David Hoffman. Graduating seniors and co-captains, Wally Bastis and Jared Parker, earned All-Star status. The first line added color to the clashes on ice and Frank Parker was the leading goal scorer (8). Bo O'Connell earned the title "Mr. Hustle," and Derek Roman with his bone crushing hits reminded the opposition Wellesley was a force to be reckoned with even though the scores did not reflect that.

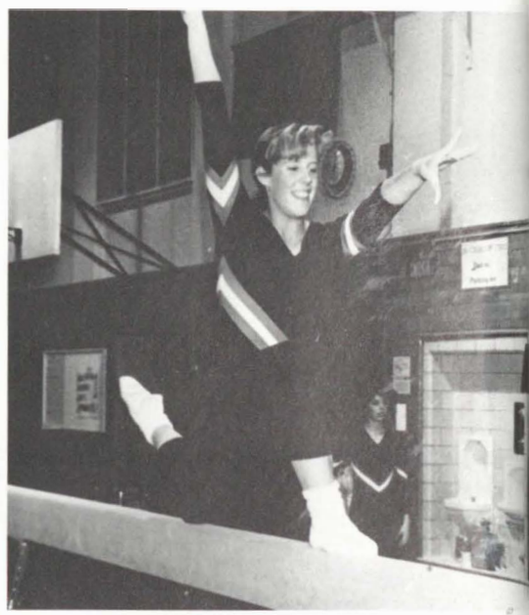

On a sadder note, four year Head Coach Gary Gildea stepped down with a career Bay State League record of 1-71.

GYMNASTICS

To refer to this year's gymnastic squad as a team would be more than demeaning, it would be a capital offense. It would be far more accurate to describe the members as one big happy family. With every happy family, there comes an occasional dispute between members. However, Co-Captain Kim Welburn and Jessica David soon overcame any minor altercations, so performance was never affected. Despite many ups and downs, and "classic guy scandals," the best team Wellesley has produced in many years earned a record of 10-1.

The team was led by the team's Most Valuable Player and Co-Captain Vicky "Rocky" Crawshaw, and Kim Welburn, Nicole Rubin, and Kristie Gackenheimer. Rubin and Gackenheimer, though only freshmen, participated in the State Individual Meet. Despite losing both captains, the women in tights feel next season looks very promising.

BOYS' SWIM TEAM

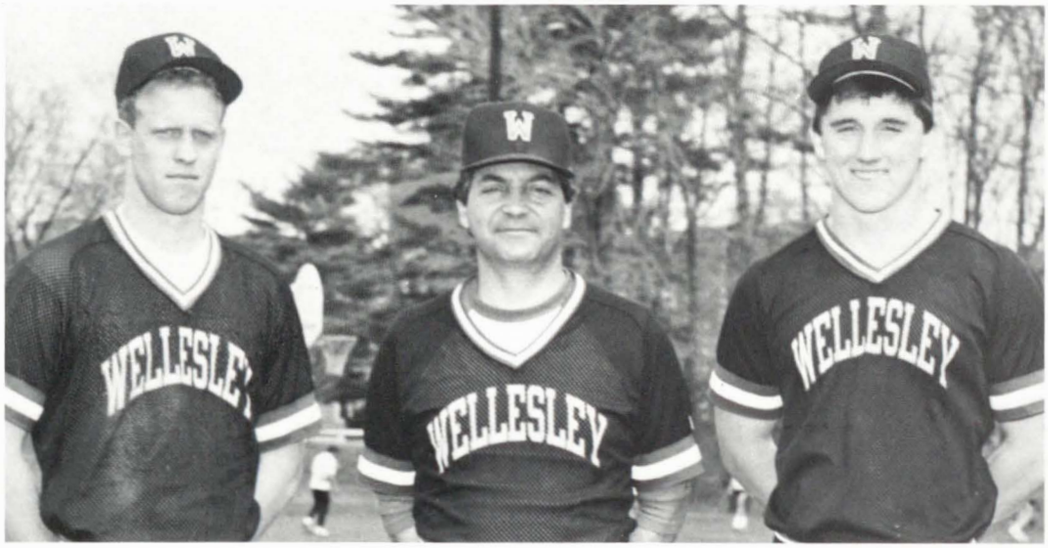

Talk about making waves!

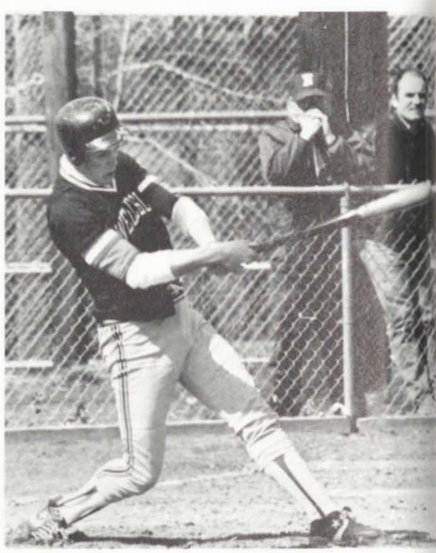

This team enjoyed bringing home the Bay State League title so much last year that they set out to do it again. With confidence generated by the success they had achieved in the past, the Boys' Varsity Swim Team won the Bay State League title for the second year in a row. The team, captained by Dave Giroux and Steve Gaughan, won 8 of 10 meets. Mike Tarantino was named the team's Most Valuable Player. Coach Hunter Adams will miss the seniors, but he looks forward to the return of Jim Desimone, Tim Dowling, Aaron Chaisson, Doug Stover, and Adam Horst. With so many team members who have already tasted victory, they will be looking for their third Bay State League title in as many years.

BASEBALL

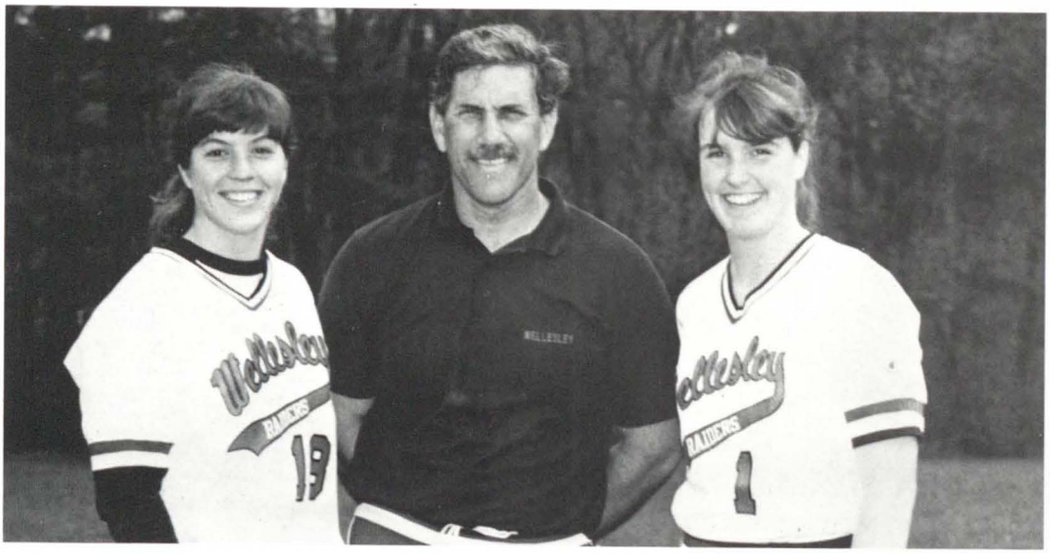

Chris O'Brien may not have had the one thousand strikeouts his teammates were fond of telling the opposition he had, but he did have some amazing statistics. For instance, modest Chris wouldn't brag, but he enjoyed a 2.67 ERA. Chosen for the Sanford Award, he looked mighty effective out there on the mound. Chris O'Connell was another big contributor, leading the group in on base percentage while co-captain and catcher, Greg Reidy, was selected as the Most Valuable Player. Fellow Captain Jamie Hackett helped sustain team spirit, for the overall 9-11 season box score doesn't tell the whole story. It was a sweet victory when arch rival Needham bowed 10-7 after beating Wellesley during the first round of the season, and the poor Milton players probably wished they had never shown up for their 18-3 loss. Junior Dan Black was a veritable human vacuum cleaner at shortstop and his wizardry was of tremendous value to the team throughout the season.

SOFTBALL

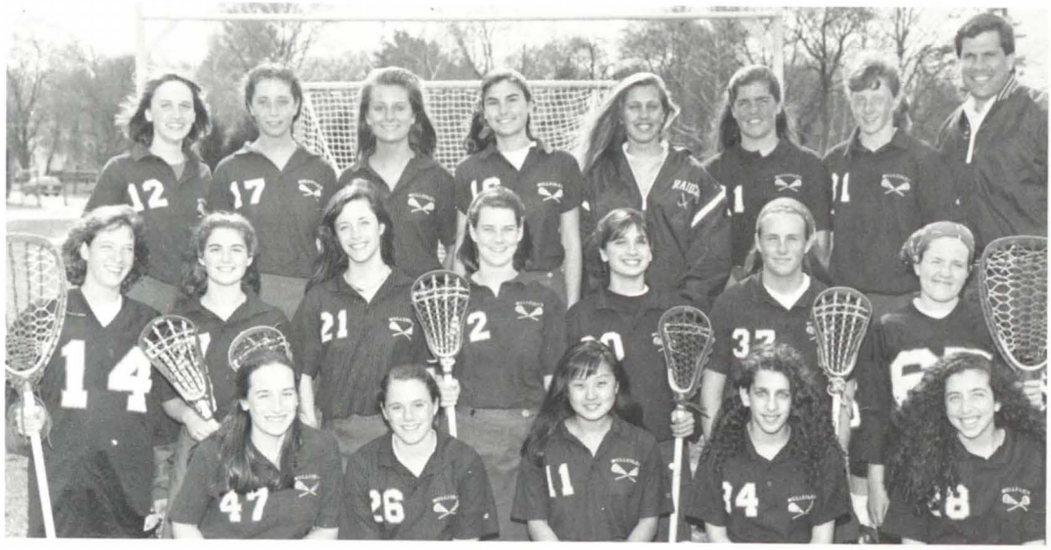

Star quality, that's what Lisa Moore has and Princeton is lucky to be getting it. Every sport's season needs excitement and this team gave it to us as Lisa's itching intimidated the opposition and made a media stir. During the Needham game there was a break in the action as press and well-wishers surged forward to congratulate her on her record breaking 1000th strike-out.

Lisa was lucky to have a first class support system with Karen Demarco catching, Karen Donahue at short stop, and Emily Senecal, Martina Moore, and Julie Gordon doing a stellar job of manning the base.

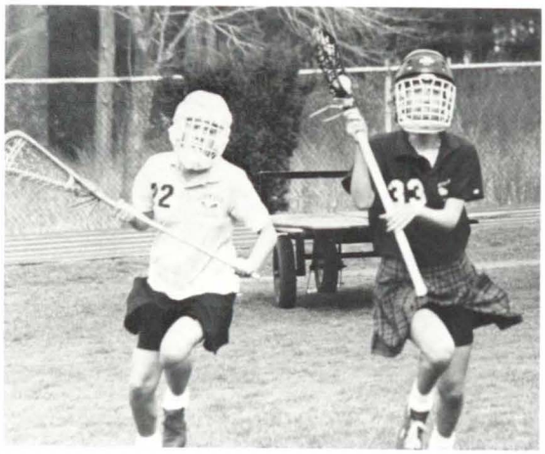

Moore struck out 16 and pitched her second consecutive no hitter in leading Wellesley to a 5-0 Division I South Sectional Championship. The victory was the 70th of Moore's career and her 20th win in this season.

LACROSSE

How well balanced can you get? Six wins, six losses, and a tie so as not to disturb the symmetry. Unfortunately the box scores don't begin to tell the story, for the women on this team are among Wellesley's fiercest competitors. Co-captained by key scrappers Agatha Donovan and Jess Toohey, the group was fired by the tough play and spirit of seniors like Steph Olsen, Vicky Crawshaw, Tennyson Harwood and Christine O'Brien. In fact the team is largely dominated by great seniors, so it looks like a rebuilding year for lacrosse. Anyone for lacrosse?

The sound effects which came from the boys' tennis practice were a bit unusual. Names like Packy and Woby were being sounded and there were a few German phrases thrown in for flavor. A sense of double vision might occur to the casual observer, for Brandon and Marc look very similar at a quick glance, and that's no lie. (Lai?) There was no cause for concern here, however, for the boys had a very successful season with a 14-5 record. Captained by Matt Zalosh and Eric Snyder, the team unfortunately drew a very strong Newton North in the state tournament, so their stay was short but spirited. Kudos to Eric Snyder, team MVP, and to Snyder and Nacho Tirado for being recognized as Bay State League All-Stars.

"Coach Seiger is in Russia?" Yes, it was a different season for the Girls' Tennis Team. Plagued by injuries, and having to adjust to "Practice a bucket of serves before the match" Goddard after the laid-back style of Candy Coach Seiger, the team nevertheless pulled off some great moments in tennis. Jen Donlon did a fine job of playing at the number one spot, and the doubles team of Pam Kunz and Brenda Croce gelled so well they were seeded number one in the State Individuals.

There were some heartbreaking moments, such as when Wellesley lost both Framingham South matches by a close 2-3 score, but the team prefers to focus on the triumphs. When Cambridge Rindge was seeded higher in the State tournament, it was a wonderful feeling to beat them by a resounding 5-0. The spirit of this team was so infectious that for the last game of the season even the bus driver was wearing a Wellesley tennis shirt!

BOYS' TRACK

Talk about setting the pace! These men did it with style. Many of the runners on this year's Boys' Track Team made some startling records. Pat Smith broke 330 hurdles within a 40 second time period. Tom Sneed held the best sprint of the season in the 110. With the loss of Sneed, Smith, and Mark Ubaldino there will be some large holes to fill, but the coaches are feeling tremendously optimistic since many members of the team were freshmen with great potential. In fact, they predict that the team will be absolutely outstanding in '92. One able-bodied freshman, Andy Mulkerin, ran a 4:59 mile. He has been the only freshman ever to hold 3 Varsity seasons freshman year — cross country, indoor track, and outdoor track. Freshman Kris Kahn joins sophomore John Reine in being the power in the pole vaulting event. When you consider that Derrick "D" Hughes is fourth in the league in the 200 and is only a sophomore too, and that in one meet alone, there was a record of 45 personal bests set by our men, you know they are on the right track!

The girls' track record may not have impressed anyone, but when you consider it's a pretty young team, they did all right and they have the potential to do even better. Of course, they'll have to do it without this year's most valuable player, Nicole Freedman. Nicole was a great sprinter, our only pole vaulter, and a pacesetter in terms of the number of points earned in one season.

There's no question Nicole will be missed, but fortunately, many of our stars are underclassmen. Two freshmen, Kristen Becker and Cinzia Solari, are very strong in the sprinting category and Johanna Helwig is the forefront winner in the two mile event. With junior Ana Emilfork back to do the honors in the hurdles and the high jump, the team should do more than hold its own next season.

John Kehoe and Pat Smith, captains of the Boy's Indoor Track Team, kept the team's morale riding high despite the team record of no wins. Sportsmanship and enthusiasm reigned supreme. Captain Pat Smith was the team's Most Valuable Player and he was named as a Bay State League All-Star as well. He placed fifth in 50m. hurdles in the State Meet. The team has many returning players, good underclassmen and promising freshmen, so they are looking forward to a much improved record in 1991.

Definitely up to par! That was the WHS Golf Team with its record of 10-3-1. Co-Captains Jon Rudders and Jim O'Brien were pleased with their ten member group. Each player participated in a minimum of 9 matches, and when the birdies and eagles were tallied, Will Brady and Joe Ferry emerged as the All-Star players. The season may have opened with heart breaking 2 point loss to Braintree, but by the final match with Dedham the team had gained some momentum and ended with a resounding 80-28 win. Jon Rudders walked away from the season as the team's MVP.

SKIING

Spirit was the strand that wove the Wellesley Ski Team into the closely knit organization that it was. Even those who were injured felt the strength of that spirit. To describe this team as merely successful would be stripping it of some of the credit it truly deserves. The overall record alone does not reflect the hours of training that were necessary to achieve such excellence.

Led by "coach" Bob McCusker, Nancy Dow, Doug McGregor and McCusker took off on a road trip through Connecticut enroute to western Massachusetts to participate in the Downhill State Championship. However, they discovered that their skiing expertise is far superior to their map reading skills.

The Cross-Country State Championship-Goers had a little more success finding their destination. Nancy Dow, Mike Doyle, Rob Seymour, Marc Ubaldino, Maria Wallace, and Greg Furie decided to miss the beautiful Connecticut environment and travel exclusively in Massachusetts.

Blessed with excellent conditions and fair weather through the entire winter, the team considered this one of their most enjoyable and successful seasons ever.

SAILING

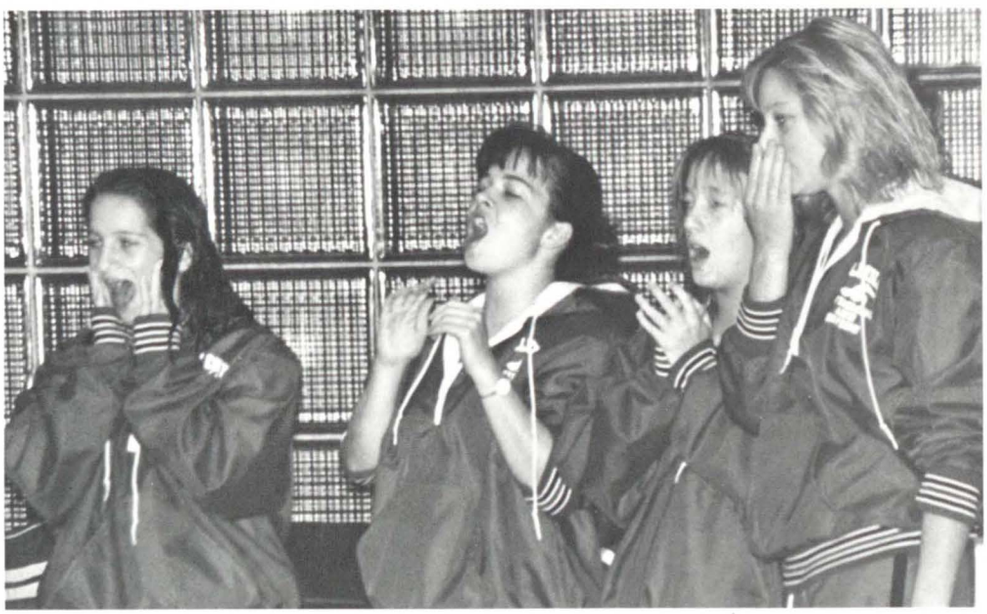

Twenty-four members of Wellesley High orked very hard at avoiding the doldrums. The am placed 18th in the New England and 2nd in state of Massachusetts. The Furie brothers, Greg Eric, sailed exceptionally well and provided the m with consistent performances.

Senior captains Brian Doyle, Nancy Dow and avid Giroux led the team throughout the season th fine sailing performances. In addition Stephen gave the team added threat with his aggsive tactics. Unfortunately for the team, light and rain plagued the season. The team pulled ough a little bit wetter maybe and looks forward next season with continued success.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Having been selected by their teachers for outstanding grades, character, service, and leadership qualities, the juniors and seniors in National Honor Society made great strides in community service work. Coordinated by Advisor, Mr. Brown, and President, Nate Sleeper, they tutored other students, visited local nursing homes, had a fund raising Car Wash, and a phone-a-thon for the Heart Association that was an outstanding success.

"The Wind of Change is Blowing"

As we enter a new decade, this yearbook staff has paralleled the excitement of change going on around the world — putting together an innovative book that goes beyond mere pictures for it holds memories of school, sports, the community, and the world during this extraordinary year.

The hardworking Publications staff is led by the senior dynamic duo — Michelle Gobiel and Kim Welburn, who have often been seen frantically pulling out their hair, trying to meet deadlines while keeping everyone on the staff enthusiastic and effective. Their unmistakable determination has been the fire under everyone's feet, igniting the staff to create the best possible yearbook. The publications room has frequently been chaotic, especially near deadlines. But we've been continually focused by Mrs. Dixon and Ms. Copell, who are also new to the yearbook scene, but have been the catalysts the modern, progressive yearbook — breaking free from the traditional, and setting a new pace. The most noticeable addition has been the video yearbook — a souvenir of the actual ambiance, sounds and movements within the high school.

No matter what each individual had envisioned the yearbook to be — what we first imagined, was not what we created. What we created was better. The final product was the compilation of the best work from the staff, so we have not just a high school scrapbook, but a portrayal of important people and events of our town, the country, and the world.

1989-90 has been a period filled with vast and incredible events of history in the making. It began with Mikhail Gorbachev's progressive steps within the Soviet Union, ending what was thought to be an endless Cold War. He seemed to bring a change to all of Eastern Europe. The change of government and collapse of communism occurred faster than anyone could have imagined. (Poland, Czechoslovakia). The picture of the murdered Romanian dictator Nicolae Ceausescu on the front page of the Globe in early January made us realize how serious the people were about obtaining their freedom.

While in response to a graffiti incident in our own community, we staged an impressive candlelight march through town to celebrate the freedom that allows and appreciates differences, we all watched the students of China in Tiananmen Square as they protested against their unjust government. We were shocked and cried as we saw them brutally gunned down by government tanks.

We have learned about revolutions that have taken months or years, but a complete change has occurred so fast. The biggest shock came when we awoke one November morning to find that "The Wall" had come down. Hundreds of East Germans poured into the West. This mass migration eventually led to the reunification of Germany, both an awesome and frightening thought.

The idea of California some day falling into the Pacific seemed close to reality when the largest earthquake occurred — killing hundreds, injuring many more, and leaving the country worried about the future welfare of that state.

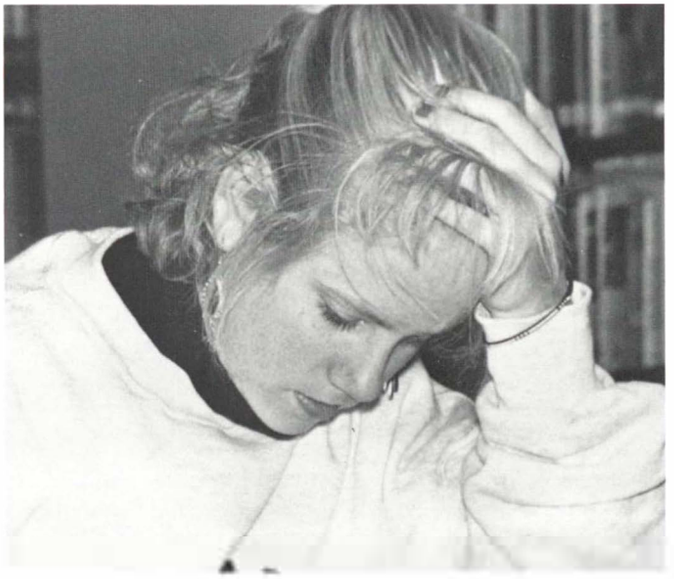

In Wellesley the major issue has been an economic one — the subject of severe budget cuts and the override of proposition 2 1/2. The economy of the state of Massachusetts is in worse shape than the town's and it can only be hoped that the current crop of graduates can go out into the world and effect a difference. This Yearbook Staff wishes you success in doing just that. Set the pace for the nineties and make the excitement of positive change continue.

"KEY" CONTRIBUTIONS

Those Key Club members are really into cooking. They started the year by hosting the Freshman and Transfer Student Cookout on the first day of school, and as the year progressed, they ran the refreshment stand at home football and basketball games. They didn't stop at feeding students, because before long they were catering a Teacher's Appreciation Luncheon. No, they're not planning to become chefs, but as an organization allied with the Kiwanis Club of Wellesley and the Babson Circle K Key Club, they are dedicated to serving the public and raising money for worthy causes.

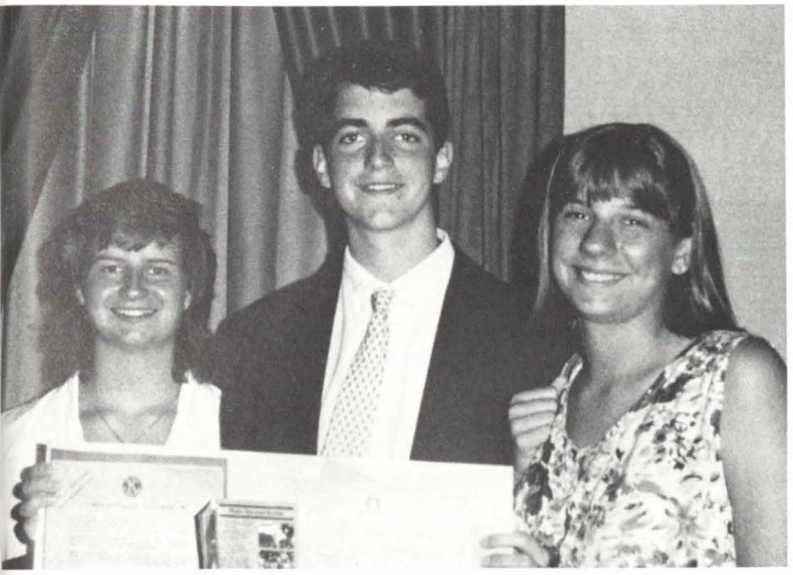

During the holidays the club sponsored a competition among classes to raise money for Globe Santa. In addition, the group participated with other clubs and classes in a First Annual Yard Sale. High on the Key Club's list of priorities is the district project, the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute. Keep on cookin,' Key Club, and thanks for all your good work.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student Council has helped with many important issues this year. First, members attended the Town Budget Meeting and joined in the "Save Our Schools Campaign." The group has been active in informing the public about the override issues and encouraging people to vote. When the Wellesley community was scarred by a graffiti incident, the Student Council organized a seminar assembly so students and teachers could discuss what had happened and why, realizing that prejudice was not something to be dismissed lightly.

The Student Council worked hard at organizing yet another successful Seminar Day, which was not only educational but enjoyable for everyone involved. This year the student caucus was held during the school day which gave all students a chance to voice opinions on changes they wanted in school. One successful issue was the recycling program, which is now in effect. Student Council also organized the peer counseling program this year so students can have someone to talk to about their problems, and currently is putting together an archives of old yearbooks and newspapers which will be a resource for students in the future. Hopefully, the Student Council of the '90's will continue to keep the pace by getting involved in school issues.

CLOSE UP — Political Experience

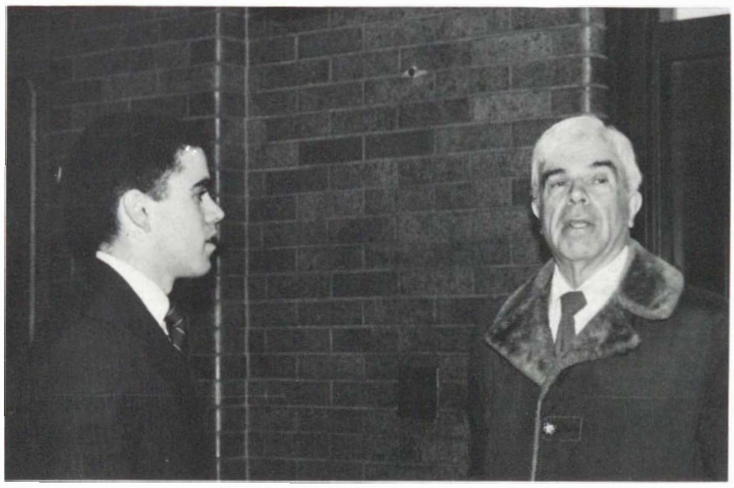

The week of March 4, 1990 was an eventful and exciting learning experience for the four juniors and one senior (Elizabeth Clarkson) participating in the Close Up Program. Guided by Mr. Kerivan, the small group spent the week in Washington, D.C., experiencing both the physical and political aspects of the United States capital. They viewed all the famous monuments that contributed to the importance and ambiance of the area.

The participants attended a diverse array of seminars on topics ranging from the judicial system to defense spending. The group was educated about the contrasting views and attitudes of the conservative and liberal factions. Given this opportunity, the students were able to assess their own political views and then debate those who held differing opinions. Senate meetings were attended and one student commented, "No one really goes to them — and I don't blame them. They're really boring." Roaming Capital Hill one day, a few participants observed a Ways and Means Committee hearing where the Clean Air Bill was thoroughly discussed. The students were honored and impressed when the Massachusetts Congressman, Barney Frank took time from his busy schedule to discuss his work.

Overall, it was an exhilarating experience.

Time to vote on the issues.

GLOBE TROTTERS

Not all learning takes place in the classroom; sometimes it takes place in another country. American Field Service and the Amigos de las Americas programs give students the opportunity to absorb another culture. AFS offers the chance to spend a summer or a year abroad. Last summer six of our students went to different countries on this program including Iceland, Australia, Denmark, Turkey, Finland, and Germany. They joined the ranks with senior Omayra Marrero who had travelled to Turkey and Liliana Lopez who had journeyed to Italy. Some of the students focused on language study while others participated in cultural study or a summer homestay.

Christine O'Brien chose to become part of the Amigos, a well-organized program in which people train one evening per week in preparation for going to live among poor Latin American people in the summer in order to dispense health care. Christine's assignment was in Mexico.

All travelling students agreed the time they spent away was probably the most incredible experience in their lives.

The Drama Club

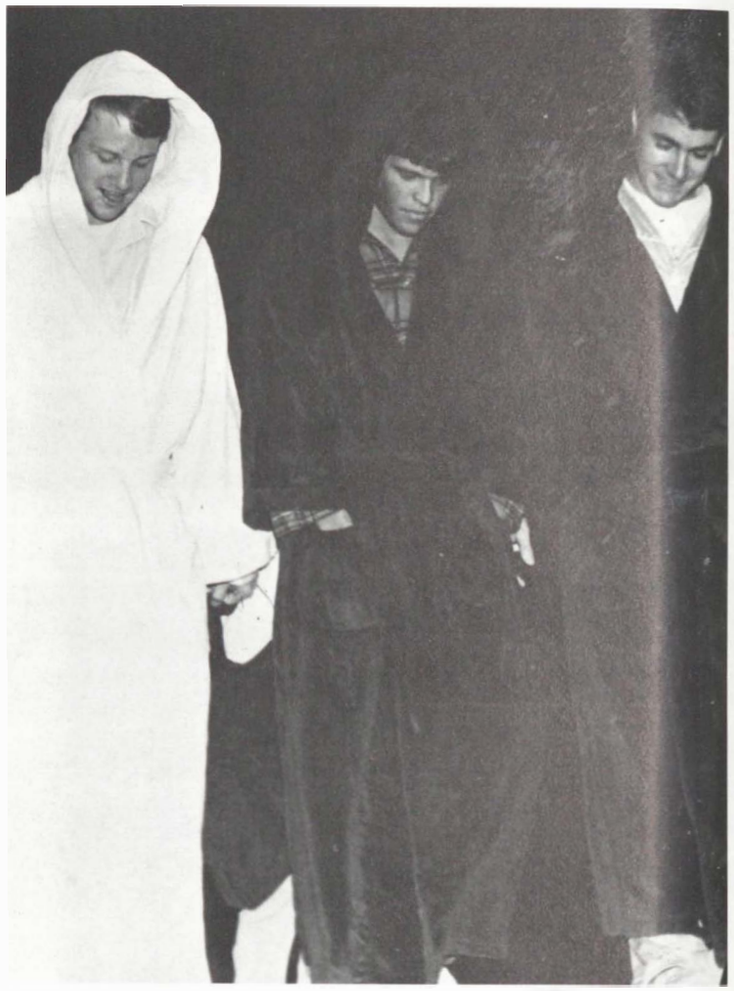

For the past three years the drama production has competed in the Boston Globe High School Drama Festival. Every year our production has made it past preliminaries, semi-finals and on to the State Finals. This year's production of Cuckoo's Nest was no exception with individual cast members picking up awards.

The Drama Club members often set up fundraisers such as the one this year which enabled them to purchase new sweatshirts with the Wellesley Drama Club logo on it. A majority of the Drama Club members work the technical part of productions, constructing the sets, doing audio, and lighting.

SADD and SAFE RIDES

The message was clear. Wellesley students cared. The SADD chapter with inspiration from advisor, Mrs. Albertini, packed the year full of fun and fundraising. Club Coca Cola, with its myriad of activities, donkey basketball, and the male fashion show raised money for the organization, and the Drug Awareness Week Seminars delivered the message.

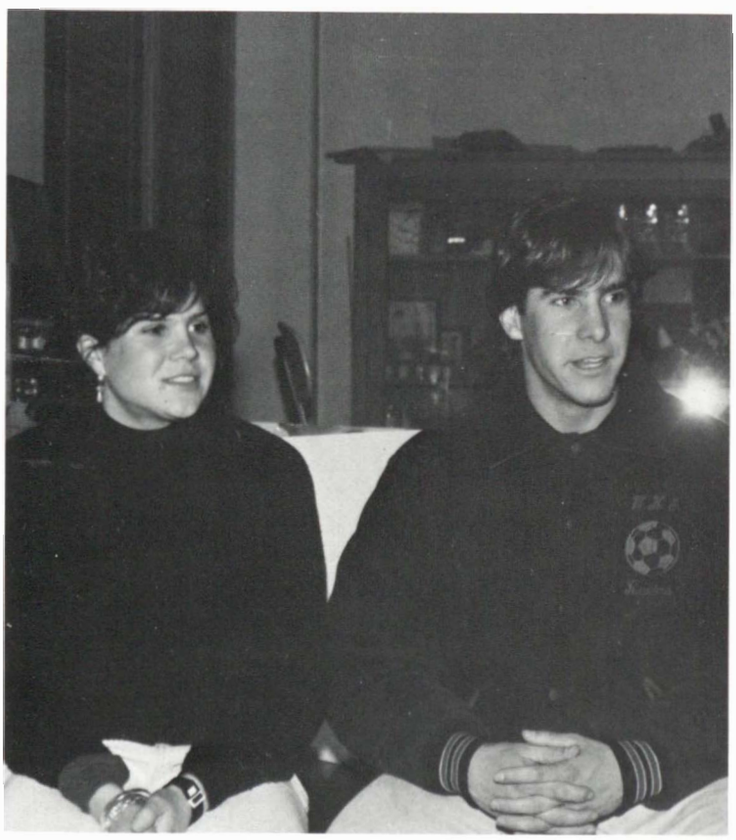

John Faubert and a group of concerned students resurrected the Safe Rides Program, reinforcing the campaign against drinking and driving. As far as we can see, these groups have all "reigning" men and women.

THE PHOTO CLUB

The Photography Club started off the school year enjoying the night life. Dedicated photographers and their tri-pods went out into the night to take pictures and enjoy the stars. Next the students got a picture of the past when they went to Photographica, an exposition of antique cameras, photos, and techniques, sponsored by the Photographic Historical Society of New England. Then the group showed their compassion when they volunteered to work at Bristol Lodge in Waltham, a homeless kitchen. After raising the money from fellow students at the high school, the members bought the food, prepared it and then served a nutritious meal to 50-60 homeless people. Lastly, the Photo Club paid a visit to the Omni theater to see the Great Barrier Reef. Not only did they learn about the making of the Omni film, but they also learned more about nature. It has been an exciting and educational year for the Photo Club.

VideoVation representative, Betsy Hadden, zooms in.

"Look out! You're on candid camera!" You can run but you can't hide from the video yearbook staff. No one is safe from the camera. Whether at school eating lunch or a jello wrestling, Video-Vation is faithfully here. Amazingly only four students belong to this club: Demetri Papageorgiou, Becky MacDonald, Andrea Pribaz, and Shamele Straughter. Betsy Hadden is the Video-Vations Representative and you might have seen her behind the camera catching you at your best. Mrs. Dixon and Miss Copell are the ever patient advisors.

This will be Wellesley High School's first video yearbook and is predicted to be a great success. From now on, remembering those favorite high school activities like proms, barbeques, dances, banquets, and just hanging out and laughing with your friends, will be just a VCR away! But not only that, highlights of one of the most significant years in the world's history and the year's entertainment are also included.

"I prefer active film." (Mrs. Dixon)

"There's no way I'm going to look straight into the camera." (Becky MacDonald)

"Hi, I'm Andrea Pribaz."

STUDENT REPRESENTATIVES

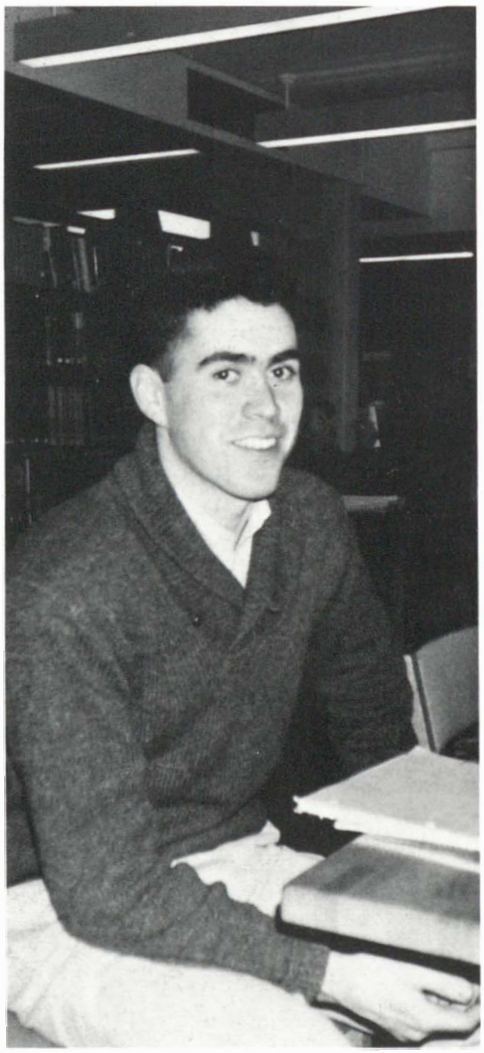

There are many organizations that allow students to voice their interests, concerns, and suggestions. The Student Advisory Committee to the State Board of Education offers the opportunity to two students from WHS to attend monthly meetings at the State House where they meet with high school students from around the state. Each year the students formulate two or three bills dealing with their rights on the state level. After gaining the support of politicians and lobbying groups, they present the bill to the State Board of Education. This year we were represented by Jane Quinan and Chip Janik.

The Student Advisory Committee to the School Committee is composed of only four members this year: Brian Doyle (Senior), Vanessa Barges (Senior), Aleka Laurent (Junior) and Alicia Talanian (Sophomore). Throughout the year they speak on behalf of the student body regarding issues which affect high school students, such as handbook revisions and budget cuts. They all sit as ex-officio members of the School Committee and have no vote.

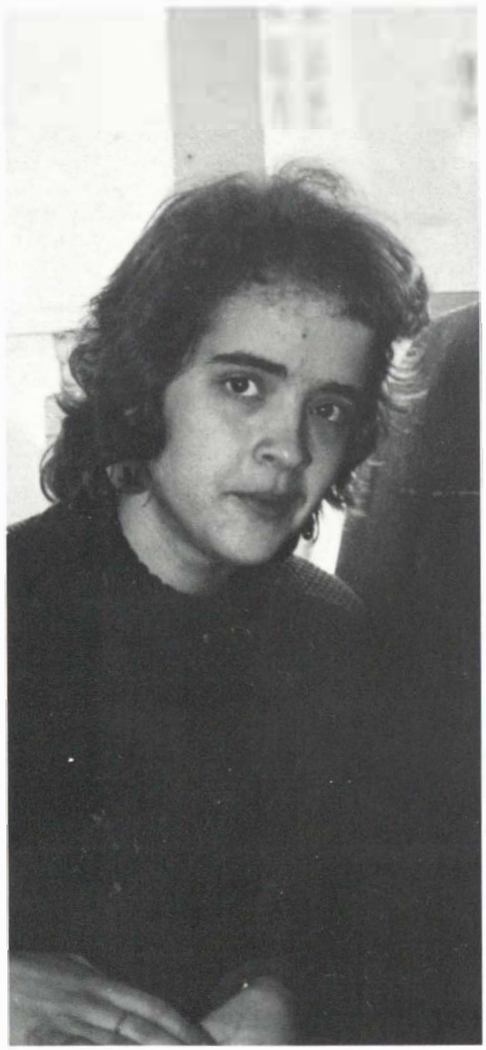

FAPS, also known as Faculty, Administration, Parents, and Students, is a group that meets monthly to discuss school issues. Although FAPS had no official members, Sara McLaren and Amy McHugh were frequently in attendance. At these meetings, there have been lively discussions on issues ranging from how to make the cafeteria more efficient to whether or not there is enough school spirit.

LANGUAGE CLUBS BRING WORLD CULTURES TO WHS

Every language club tries to raise money to support the yearly foreign exchange. However, all 60 German members know how to reach their goal and have tons of fun doing it. They enjoyed the yearly Halloween bash, the Christmas (Weihnachten) party, and the intense floor hockey battle with rival language clubs. The big fund raiser was the "Ritzy-Weekend Give-Away" — a dinner and weekend night at Boston's Ritz-Carleton. They also solicited votes for the Proposition 2-½ override.

Defending their title for the third time in the state catapult competition in Wilbraham, the Latin Club leaped into its season in October. Unfortunately it was beyond their arrow's reach, even though catapult improvements gave them a 100 foot increase over last year's shot. Members of the club traveled to Brown University in December for a holiday carol service. In April the club competed in the Certamen. Their advisor, Mr. Esposito, with courage equal only to Caesar himself, led them to the State Convention in May.

EDITORS' MESSAGE

On a sunny September morning in the year 1977, groups of small children were gathering in kindergartens all over Wellesley. It was the First Day of School, and these kids were quite excited about it all. They were starting a new phase of their lives, and their feelings toward it were a mixture of anticipation, uneasiness, and regret. Of course, they were looking forward to a new sort of existence, but just the same they were a bit unsure of what was to come, and in some cases they vaguely missed the comforting security of their homes.

We were those children. Now, it is thirteen years later, and we've changed a lot since that distant day, but strangely enough, one thing remains the same. Perhaps the trepidation has to some degree been replaced by confidence, but the anticipation and regret are still there. We have finished another period of our lives, and although we look forward to what the future may bring, we regret the passing of the irretrievable. Therefore, we pause in our long ascent to success, and, so to speak, look back at our trail.

Although we weren't aware of it, a Class was born on that September morning. It spent its early life in state of dismemberment, divided among the elementary schools: Bates, Warren, Hunnewell, Fiske, Phillips, Schofield, Perrin, and Hardy; in each, it received a good foundation for what was to come. However, it drew its first breath as a whole in the middle school, where it really got started. Sixth grade was fun. At first we got lost, forgot where to go next, and had a terrible time managing a lunch tray and a slippery carton of milk. But soon that was all straightened out, and we forgot about free Wednesday afternoons, milk and crackers at 10 A.M., extra recess, and other elementary school privileges. We joined clubs, went out for after school sports, and before long we were eighth graders. After a while we found ourselves freshmen in high school, a grown-up status which even the "Seniors" recognized. Our athletic abilities were appreciated, Lisa Moore with her bullet pitches and Agatha Donovan with whopping kicks made Varsity. Through the years we have excelled beyond belief, setting the pace for years to come.

Then suddenly one dismal day in group guidance we were called upon to face reality. We were confronted with the prospect of college. Eventually, we were forced to envision ourselves in a world independent of Wellesley High School. We were Seniors!

Last fall, our spirit was stronger than ever. Our class officers, Jason Garfinkle, Dave Collard, Pam Kocher, and Matt Cooney, fought hard to focus our energy towards class unity. Spring came upon us and so did the traditional "Senior" events, from softball games to the extravagance of the Senior Prom at the World Trade Center.

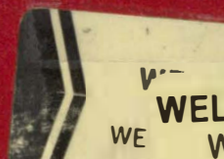

Graduation day arrived. Now on the threshold of a new phase of our lives, we find that our class as a group is to be divided, but in spirit we know that it will live on as long as does each of us.

GOOD-BYE AND GOOD LUCK!
MICHELLE AND KIM
